ACCEPTANCE BY PARIS OF DEBT BASIS NEARER AFTER NIGHT MEETING

Outlook for Agreement to U. S. Principles Improved.

WASHINGTON IS TOLD FRENCH CONDITIONS

Points Still at Issue Are Regarded Here as Technical Detail.

Paris, June 29.—(AP.).—The difficulties which made the Franco-American negotiations over President Hoover's moratorium proposal hard going this morning were largely cleared away tonight at a second meeting attended by Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon, Ambassador Walter E. Edge and members of the French cabinet.

The outlook, which had been considered rather gloomy all day brightened suddenly and tonight the prospects for a successful agreement on a general reparations holiday were considered much brighter. The French spokesmen restated the conditions under which they are willing to accept the Hoover plan and their terms weer telegraphed to the President tonight.

While reports from Washington indicated that the points still at issue are regarded there as matters of technical detail, the French are inclined to attach considerable importance to them and it is asserted here that one or both sides must make further concessions before an agreement can be reached.

What France Proposes.

Tomorrow the government must answer an interpellation in the Senate on the Hoover proposal and this may cause some delay requiring one or more meetings of the upper house.

The essential point in the French reply that Germany's unconditional reparations payments must not be changed has, it is understood, proved acceptable to Washington, and if this acceptance stands up under argument over details the chances of an agreement are greatly increased.

After tonight's special cabinet meeting at which the French position was decided upon, Premier Laval placed before Mr. Mellon the French conditions or acceptance among which these are most important.

First, France asks the United States to accept the contention that Germany must in fact make her unconditional yearly payments into the Bank of International Settlements, and that this money be made available for the needs of all nations, although in practice most of it would go straight back to Germany in the form of loans.

Second Important Condition.

Second, this payment into the World Bank be considered as like any other year's unconditional annuity so that it could be used as a guarantee to the Bank for International Settlements for the second year in case Germany should ask a moratorium under the Young plan at the expiration of the Hoover holiday. France asks this because otherwise it would be responsible to the World Bank for approximately $125,000,000 in case a German moratorium were granted.

The third French condition will require some bargaining, for it is the French wish that the conditional portion of the reparations annuity which the Hoover plan would postpone be spread over the next five years of conditional payments.

The United States, it is understood, wants to spread the payment over 25 years.

Of these three conditions the second is the most essential from the French point of view, since the first and third involve no question of principle.

Senate Debate Looms.

Premier Laval will have to explain the State of the negotiations to the Senate tomorrow, for Victor Berard, chairman of the foreign relations committee, is expected to ask about them in detail.

It was understod that Washington had no real objection to the depositing of Germany's unconditional reparations annuity with the Bank for International Settlements, but held it could not occupy itself with the question of guaranteeing how this money, which would stand to the credit of Germany, would be utilized by the German government.

Premier Laval has emphasized that this credit should not be used for armaments or for the dumping of German products.

Moreover, it was believed this evening that the United States hesitated to assume responsibility for the distribution of a part of the unconditional annuities among other states which France wishes to aid.

Significance Is Attached.

Significance was attached to what was regarded as a semiofficial note early this evening saying it was exceedingly difficult for the Laval cabinet to compromise on the fundamental principles set forth in its reply to the United States—a reply which received the approval of Parliament Saturday.

Premier Laval's problem was described thus: He must prevent any blow at the reparations rights of Slavery in Liberia

By GEORGE S. SCHUYLER

Liberian Officials Possess Slave-Wives

Elaborate Harems Maintained; "Pawned" Native Children Miserably Supported and Often Cruelly Beaten.

When is a slave not a slave? This is one of the questions the visitor to Liberia begins asking himself not long after he arrives in the country. Landing at the dock at Monrovia, pushing through the cluster of nondescript natives and officials, wending one's way through weeds, rocks and rubbish that clutter the streets and past the grotesque residences of galvanized iron and concrete, many half completed, there are no slave blocks to be observed. True, there has been, and may still be, the traffic in "boys" to Fernando Poo, though weighty minds have hastened to declare it not to be slavery in the "classic" sense.

But who are these ragged little children carrying school books for well-dressed little Americo-Liberians? Who are these servants clad in discarded odds and ends of clothing who march behind aristocratic Liberians carrying purchases, a task the latter would not dream of performing? Who are these equally ill-clad house servants who have been trained to reply, "Yassah, massa, I comin'" whenever called? Who are these wo-

SPAIN DRAWS UP TENTATIVE CONSTITUTION

MONARCHISTS' VOTE PROVES NEGLIGIBLE

Election Results Held Proof That Alfonso Cannot Regain Throne.

Madrid, June 29 A.P.).—A preliminary draft of a new constitution providing for universal suffrage, religious freedom and abolition of all titles of nobility was made public tonight by the government commission created some time ago to prepare the document.

The draft will be submitted to the cabinet, which, if it votes approval, will present it to the constituent assembly elected yesterday in a vote which gave the Conservative Republican-Socialist bloc an overwhelming majority.

The constitution, as eventually adopted, probably will differ in some essentials from this draft, but the document made public tonight undoubtedly will be basis upon which the constitution ultimately is built.

It provides for a presidential term of six years, the president to be elected by a majority of the senate and lower house in joint session. There would be 240 senators divided equally among the "cultural, industrial and labor entities" and 470 deputies elected by popular suffrage including the vote of women.

State Religion Abolished.

Religious freedom for all creeds is established and the official religion of the state suppressed. The Catholic Church becomes a "corporation," a status to which all other creeds are entitled if they petition the government.

The supreme government, under this draft, would be the central government at Madrid although it is stipulated that the provincial regions may unite for local administrative purposes.

The draft constitution also establishes freedom of speech and of the press and the right of assembly.

Mounting returns from yesterday's General Assembly election confirmed the original belief that the Conservative Republican-Socialists will have an overwhelming majority in the Assembly, with the Monarchists left only five deputies out of more than 350, and the Communists with none at all.

The election cost ten lives in riots at Malaga, Seville and Prieves. There was martial law at Malaga after a brawl, in which three were killed and nine wounded. At Seville troops were in charge of the Tablada Air-

M'DONALD ASKS BRITAIN TO CUT ALL WAR PLANS

Prime Minister Declares Only England Spends Less on Arms.

OTHER NATIONS CITED AS INCREASING COSTS

Commons Is Given Figures on Outlays of America, France and Japan.

London, June 29 (A.P.).—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, laying the statistics of world armaments before the House of Commons today, asked pledges of support from all political parties to a British policy of drastic reductions in naval, military and air forces at next February's disarmament conference.

His figurer showed Great Britain to be the only world power which has reduced its naval and military expenditures in recent years, while the United States, France, Italy and Japan all were increasing theirs.

But Great Britain has gone as far as she can go unless the other nations follow suit, he said, expressing confidence that next year's disarmament conference will bring just such a development.

MacDonald's Stand Indorsed.

Stanley Baldwin, the Conservative leader, and Sir Herbert Samuel, speaking for the Liberals, indorsed Mr. MacDonald's statement of Britain's contribution to world disarmament, but both warned that all the sacrifices can not be on one side, and that the other nations also must show a willingness to cut their armaments.

Winston Churchill's answer was more ominous. He made it clear he is in favor of armament reduction, but added that Great Britain had cut her own forces past the safety point. "England's hour of weakness is Europe's hour of danger," he said, "so it was in 1914 and so it may be again."

The prime minister's address lasted an hour. He praised the progress in the last few years toward world peace, but he recalled with sadness that yesterday was the anniversary of the treaty of Versailles from which so much was hoped, but so little gained.

Remarkable Figures Offered.

Then he produced what was perhaps as remarkable a set of figures as has been published in recent years by a leader of his authority. These purported to show the relative state of armaments in Great Britain, the United States, Japan, France and Italy since 1914, and while the prime minister admitted that they probably would be subjected to questioning, he described them as the product of the best efforts of the British admiralty and other official sources.

Briefly these figures showed decreases in the British navy, army and air service since the war and increases

Fess Will Continue As G. O. P. Chairman

Senator to Serve Until National Convention, He Declares.

(Associated Press.)

Senator Simeon D. Fess, of Ohio, expects to be chairman of the Republican national committee until next year's convention.

When he was selected for that post, it was announced that he would serve temporarily. Since then there has been much speculation as to when he would retire and who would be his successor.

After a call on President Hoover yesterday, he said: "It appears that I will now serve until convention time next year."

He emphasized that he had not discussed the subject with the President during yesterday's call, but had stopped in Washington to talk to him while en route to the Adirondacks for a two weeks' vacation.

In political circles it has been said repeatedly that the Ohio senator would retire from the chairmanship at the beginning of the next session of Congress in December. He said yes-

Fess became chairman of the committee nearly a year ago after the resignation of Claudius H. Huston.

WORLD FLIERS 36 MILES OFF NOME COURSE

Come Down at 8:45 P. M. After Perilous Trip From Khabarovsk.

LESS THAN 17 HOURS REQUIRED FOR JAUNT

Trading Post Eastward of Intended Destination; Sent No Messages.

Nome, Alaska, June 29.—(AP.).—Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, around the world fliers, landed at Solomon, 36 miles from here, late today after a nonstop flight from Khabarovsk, Siberia, a distance of around 2,000 miles. The landing was made at 2:45 p. m. (8:45 p. m. E. S. T.) today. They were not sighted over Nome.

The landing was 16 hours and 45 minutes after the takeoff from Khabarovsk, eastern Siberia, a distance of about 2,500 miles. The fliers averaged about 150 miles an hour in their dash over Okhotsk Sea, Kamchatka Peninsula and Bering Sea.

Solomon is a trading post and native village eastward on Seaward Peninsula from Nome. It is connected with Nome by a telephone line. The settlement was established in 1902 after the Nome gold rush.

Landed In Broad Daylight.

The landing was in broad daylight. Elaborate preparations had been made for the reception of the fliers in Nome, where the airfield, on a hill overlooking the town, had been lengthened to assist the aviators in taking off with their heavy load of fuel on the next hop to Edmonton, Alberta.

Tents and beds had been erected on the field to enable Post and Gatty to rest while their ship was refueling.

A light rain fell in Nome today as virtually the entire population forgot work and awaited the arrival of Wiley Post and Harold Gatty on their globe-circuling speed flight. The temperature, around 42 degrees during the morning, was normal.

Some fog was reported off the coast and north of St. Lawrence Island over the Bering Sea, but it was not considered a serious threat to the fliers, en route here from Siberia.

Flying Field Groomed.

Daylight was sure to greet Post and Gatty no matter what time they set their ship down in Alaska, for this is the time of the midnight sun in the Arctic. Only a twilight marks the difference between day and night and it always is sufficiently light in summer to land a ship or take off without artificial illumination.

The wind-swept hill which is Nome's summer flying field had been groomed for globe circlers' arrival. Tents, beds, food, fuel and oil were gathered and mechanics were ready to give the ship immediate attention.

Four Coast Guard vessels, several escort planes and numerous wireless stations maintained a continuous watch since the fliers raised their speedy plane from the Khabarovsk Field. Although many operators ear phones clamped to their heads, listened on the 35.5 meter wave length assigned to the plane's radio transmitter, no signals had been heard many hours later.

Airplanes No Novelty.

It was presumed Gatty, navigator on the flight who also was to operate the radio, did not take time to send out signals as long as all was well.

The arrival of airplanes from distant places is no novelty here, as travel by air is almost commonplace transportation. It was at Teller, 60 m iles to the Northward, that Amundsen and Nobile brought the dirigible Norge down after an epochal flight over the top of the world. Teller, also was the focal point in the search for Carl B. Eielsen, noted Alaska flier, who was killed in Northern Siberia while air-freighting furs.

Nome, which had more than 12,000 population in 1900 during the gold

ALL EXCEPT FRANCE ACCEPT DEBT PLAN

Castle Makes Announcement After Conference With President.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

With the exception of France, all the nations involved have now agreed in principle to President Hoover's proposal for a one-year holiday on intergovernmental war debts, Undersecretary of State Castle announced last night.

Mr. Castle had the statement typewritten when he emerged from the office of President Hoover at the White House, so that it must have been prepared under the President's supervision.

"Some difficulties have arisen," Undersecretary Castle's statement said, "in reconciling the French position with the spirit of the President's proposal."

The President's purpose in proposing a one-year postponement in the payment of war debts and reparations was to ease Germany's tremendous burden and thereby to aid in the economic recovery of the world.

When Undersecretary Castle says that France has not yet agreed to enter into the "spirit" of President Hoover's proposal, he means that France is not ready to give Germany the full measure of relief that the President thinks she needs.

Two more important figures entered the international drama yesterday—Senator Dwight W. Morrow (Republican), New Jersey, famous diplomat and international financier, and Alanson B. Houghton, former Ambassador to Germany and to Great Britain.

The two men were White House guests last night, and no doubt talked at length with the President about his debt holiday plan.

The statement of Undersecretary Castle presumably was issued after President Hoover had talked over the transatlantic telephone with Secretary of the Treasury Andrew Mellon in Paris.

Secretary Mellon had been in conference during the day with Prime Minister Laval, endeavoring to work out a satisfactory agreement. What evidently happened was that the French leader refused to meet the American terms, and that Secretary

ALARM OF SHOOTING BRINGS GAMING RAID

Police Smash Doors to Find Bookie Establishment but No Men.

Police didn't find a dead man in a second-floor room at Third and F streets southwest, as an unknown person telephoned they would yesterday, but they did get a whack at some good bookmaking paraphernalia.

A call was received at police headquarters and the Fourth Precinct station that a man had been shot at that address. When Detective Sergt. Howard E. Ogle and two privates from headquarters arrived on the scene they found the place locked tightly with heavy barred doors.

With the aid of several policemen from the Fourth Precinct the doors were shattered and an entrance gained. Inside the police found a room fitted up as a bookmaking establishment, with several telephones, a radio, and desks and tables. No one was in the place at the time. The fixtures were destroyed and the doors taken to police headquarters.

Suicide of Beauty Is Still Doubted

Prosecutor Hopes to Find Data Showing Murder of Starr Faithfull.

New York, June 29 (A.P.).—Although Starr Faithfull wrote a few days before her death of her plan to commit suicide, and even detailed how she expected to spend the last hours of her life, District Attorney Elvin E. Edwards is not yet convinced she came to her death by her own hand.

He received today from Albert Olson, handwriting expert, a report that all the "suicide" letters and the diaries of the beautiful Greenwich Village girl actually were written by her. But he maintained that was not conclusive evidence that she drowned herself at Long Beach, where her body was found three weeks ago today.

He admitted he had no direct evidence pointing to murder, but said he still had several "lines" that had not been pursued completely.

Middle States Gasp As Heat Deaths Soar

37 Die in Chicago, 16 in Iowa and Minnesota; Marks Above 100 Degrees Are Common; Grasshoppers Ruin Grain Crops.

(Associated Press.)

Middle United States, blistered by a week's welter, gasped for breath last night.

Scattered winds and rains over the Midwest yesterday sporadically broke summer's siege of enervating heat and burning sun. But the relief was only for a few hours and failed to lessen suffering of man and beast and threatened widespread damage to crops.

It was 106 in Rice Lake, Wis., and 107 in Rome, Ga.

Illinois, Missouri, Iowa, Nebraska, the Dakotas, Minnesota and Wisconsin continued to bear the brunt of the sun's offensive.

A 10-degree drop in Chicago at noontime, blown in on lake winds, failed to lessen the deaths attributable to the heat. Thirty-seven men, women and children died yesterday before sundown. Reports of deaths in downstate Illinois were as frequent as 100-degree readings.

Only the Atlantic Seaboard and the Pacific Coast were universally cool and moderate.

In Iowa four persons died in Dubuque; three at the Old Soldiers Home in Marshalltown. Three died in Nebraska. Wisconsin was hotter than for a week. Seven deaths were attributed to the sun's intensity.

In St. Paul 100.8 in midafternoon was the highest since 1904, when the record of 104.2 was set. Minnesota had nine heat deaths.

Westward across Kansas into Colorado and north through Wyoming it was the same story. A 96 in Denver was the season's high.

While reports of threatened crop destruction trickled into the Midwest grain centers, farmers in Nebraska and South Dakota fought armies of grasshoppers.

In southern South Dakota, along a 300-mile strip of infested territory, Government agents said 75 per cent of small grains in some sections had been destroyed. State aid was given Nebraska farmers in purchasing insect powders. In Knox County, railroad tracks were so littered with the pests that section crews could not propel handcars.

The Southern States suffered as much as Northland areas from the heat.

From Kentucky south, States were seared. In Albany, Ga., it was 105 in early afternoon; Augusta had 105. It was 98 in Atlanta, Jacksonville, Fla., had a new high for the year of 97.5.

A thunderstorm brought a drop of from 93 to 69 in ten minutes in Louisville in mid-afternoon, but the relief was not expected to be lasting.

Weather men held no hopes for general relief before Wednesday.

Over all the grain belt, the damage so far has been mainly to the oats crop. In some Iowa sections farmers were cutting the crop for hay. Scattered reports from Kansas told of heavy damage to corn, but in most

LAUNDRY GIRL HELD BY GUN IN ROBBERY

Man Covers Hurried Escape by Dire Threats, Grabs Change and Runs.

Haul of less than $3 in silver was obtained by a lone white robber who, gun in hand, yesterday afternoon entered the branch office of the National Laundry Co. at 1340 North Capitol street, warning Mrs. Dorothy Walters, 23-year-old clerk, that he would kill her if she attempted to interfere.

Earlier in the afternoon more than $100 had been collected by a company messenger and the meager sum in the till had been received by Mrs. Walters since the collection.

She told police the robber, a white man appearing to be about 25 years, medium build and dark complexion, was concealing the gun under his arm when he came into the laundry station, but exhibited it menacingly as soon as she inquired his business.

The pretty young laundry clerk was forced into the rear of the establishment while the intruder hurriedly rifled the cash register, meanwhile making dire threats of what would happen if Mrs. Walters attempted to summon aid.

Pocketing the money, she said, he backed to the door and fled precipitately down North Capitol street. He was out of sight when she ran to the door, she told police whom she summoned immediately.

Thick, late evening traffic bustled by the laundry office during the hold-up incident, but no witnesses were found by police. The robber was shabbily dressed, Mrs. Walters said, in a dark suit and a gray cap. He had a small face, she said, with small features.

Mrs. Walters lives at 2015 Thirteenth street southeast. She was considerably frightened by the affair and had difficulty at first in recounting the incident to police.

Mother Rescues Son From Death By Gas

Prompt action by Mrs. S. M. Abendschein saved the life of her son, Avery, 28, whom she found semiconscious from effects of escaping gas in the bathroom of their home on C street, near Eighth southwest, yesterday. After reciving first aid treatment, he was removed to Gallinger Hospital for observation and treatment.

Mrs. Abendschein, detecting the odor of gas coming from the bathroom, forced entrance and summoned the fire rescue squad when her son failed to respond to her treatment. She said he had been separated from his wife about four months, and was without employment.

REHEARING IS DENIED UPON SCHOOL FARES

Public Utilities Board Rules Against Petition of People's Counsel.

The Public Utilities Commission yesterday denied the petition of People's Counsel Richmond B. Keech for a rehearing of the reduced school fare matter and forthwith instructed its acting general counsel, William A. Roberts, to prepare an answer to the appeal of the Washington Railway & Electric Co., the Capital Traction Co., and the Washington Rapid Transit Co. in the District Supreme Court.

Maj. Gen. Mason M. Patrick, chairman, stated that the commission felt that nothing would be gained by a delay of the attack of the transportation lines on the 3-cent fare order and that any change in the order itself would merely postpone the fight against the legality of the school fare.

The attack of the people's counsel on the reduced fare order of last March was that it was too narrow in its interpretation of the law in that it required tickets instead of cash fare and did not make the 3-cent rate available to all classes of school children.

Counsel for the street car and the bus company, however, attacked the order from a different angle. Their

House Is Bombed In Mine Disorder

Family Escapes Injuries; Man Shot, Another Clubbed in Riot.

St. Clairsville, Ohio, June 29 (A.P.). A house was bombed, one man was shot and another was clubbed in the Eastern Ohio coal strike region today during disorders near mine properties.

The foundation and side of the home of Harry Blackers, a working miner at the Fair Point mine of the M. A. Hanna Coal Co., were damaged by a dynamite bomb set off under the house. Blackers, his wife and four children escaped injury.

Stanley Karnich, 32, was wounded slightly by a bullet and Gabo Kado, 29, was clubbed with a gun butt in a disorder at the Bradley Mine No. 1, at Smithfield. Deputy sheriffs said the injuries resulted when mine guards attempted to disperse about 100 National Miners Union pickets who had gathered around the workings.

Use of Streets To Fullest Capacity Van Duzen's Plan

New Director of Traffic Sees Capital Thoroughfares as Fine Network, But Thinks Citizens Fail to Get Greatest Benefit.

By WILLIAM ULLMAN.

It is a man with few illusions about the present state of traffic but with a great deal of confidence in the universal desire for better conditions who today will become director of Washington's new department of vehicles and traffic.

That man is William A. Van Duzer. Mr. Van Duzer and the department which he will head begin their municipal existence simultaneously, since the new agency today displaces the former traffic office and coordinates traffic affairs in the National Capital for the first time.

What can Washington expect from this new director of its transportation destiny? Certain aspects of the answer to that question are clearly implied in the law which created the department he will head. But other phases of the query find their answer in the personality of the man himself.

Without overdoing enthusiasm in the slightest, Mr. Van Duzer reflects an infectious confidence in the future of Washington traffic affairs. He thinks there are some bad spots here and there, just as there are every-

Harriman-Baker $23,000 Suit Over Dirt Pile Filed

Former Mint Director and Wife Both Named as Well as Contractor in Case Charging Dumping on Private Estate.

Mass of dirt and rocks, 4,500 cubic yards of it, that was unceremoniously dumped on grounds of the estate of Mrs. J. Borden Harriman by contractors working on the home of Raymond T. Baker, former director of the mint, and Mrs. Delphine Dodge Baker, his wife, was the object of a suit brought in District Supreme Court yesterday.

Suit estimates it will cost $3,000 to remove the dirt and that an additional $20,000 will compensate Mrs. Harriman for the damage wrought to trees, shrubbery, top soil and gardens.

Besides the Bakers, who, as well as Mrs. Harriman, are prominent socially, the William P. Lipscomb Co., J. M. Small Co., Logan Pingree and Joseph P. Maher, all of whom are contractors, are named defendants. The suit charged that none of the contractors would reveal the nature of his contract so legal responsibility for dumping the dirt on the Harriman estate at 1800 Foxall road could be determined.

Mrs. Harriman had completed elaborate plans for landscaping her grounds, the suit revealed. Sunken gardens had been planned, and all this has to be held in abeyance until such time as the dirt is removed, it is stated.

Hillig and Hoiriis Arrive at Berlin

Pair Who Flew Atlantic to Denmark Bring Friend Along in Plane.

Berlin, June 29 (A.P.).—Otto Hillig and Holger Hoiriis, who spanned the Atlantic last week in their American plane Liberty, flew to Tempelhof airdrome from Copenhagen today, bringing with them a "surprise passenger."

The third member of the party was Frank Bridges, a friend of Hillig's from his home town in Liberty, N. Y., who welcomed them on their arrival in Copenhagen a few days ago. They squeezed him into the plane for the trip to the German capital.

For Hillig it was a return to the land of his birth today. He was born in the Saxon town of Steinbrucke, and with his companion of the air he plans to visit the friends of his youth, whom he has not seen for 40 years.

Because of the short notice of their coming no official fetes have been arranged for the transatlantic fliers. The Danish Ambassador and officials of Lufthansa, German air line, greeted them at the field.

Mrs. Post Departs To Meet Husband

Hall, Backer of Plane, Also Leaves to Greet Fliers in New York.

Springfield, Mo., June 29 (A.P.).—Mrs. Wiley Post, wife of the world flier, and F. C. Hall, Oklahoma backer of the Post-Gatty plane, stopped here at noon today on their flight in a passenger liner from Oklahoma City to New York to greet the fliers at the end of their globe-circling feat. Mrs. Post said she expected to see her husband by Wednesday.

"Of course, he'll make it," the 21-year-old, dark-haired woman said quietly.

Hall said the fliers, after the New York reception, would fly to Chickasa, Okla., Hall's home town, and then to Oklahoma City. Later Post will tour the Nation on an exhibition flight and then will attempt to beat Capt. Frank Hawks' cross-continent time.

British Empire For Hoover Plan

Proposal on War Debts Accepted by Dominions, MacDonald Says.

London, June 29 (A.P.).—The entire British Empire has now accepted President Hoover's proposal for a one-year moratorium on war debts, according to a statement of Premier Ramsay MacDonald in the House of Commons today.

The prime minister informed the House that the governments of Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and Indian cordially welcomed Mr. Hoover's proposal and agreed in principle to the suspension of reparation payments, subject to acceptance by other creditor governments.

With regard to war-debt obligations to the United Kingdom, all the British overseas governments concerned had expressed gratitude for the British government's offer, Mr. MacDonald declared, and it had been accepted by all of them with the exception of South Africa. The South African government will continue to pay her debts to the heavily taxed people of Great Britain.

Bulgarian Finances Declared Desperate

New Premier to Seek Help From Neighbors and Great Powers.

Sofia, Bulgaria, June 29 (A.P.).—Former Premier Kantcho Malinoff, who was designated yesterday to form a cabinet after the resignation of the government of Premier Andrey Liaptcheff, said today the country was in a "desperate financial plight." The new premier declared that the exchequer had no resources at its disposal and that the treasury was empty. Despite this condition he said the government would attempt to surmount difficulties and would seek to gain the friendship of neighbors and support of great powers, without which he said rehabilitation would be impossible.

Resignation of the previous cabinet followed last week's election, which was unfavorable to the government.

French Budget Deficit Fixed at $92,000,000

Paris, June 29 (A.P.).—The most optimistic figures show that the deficit in the French Budget for 1931 will be 2,300,000,000 francs (about $92,000,000), the official reporter for the budget told the chamber today.

By a vote of 445 to 125 the chamber approved a supplementary credit for July of 1,943,600,000 francs (about $77,742,000), of which 447,000,000 francs (about $17,880,000) is for pensions for soldiers in the Great War.

APPREHENSION FELT IN GERMAN CAPITAL

Berlin Hopes Mellon Will Remain Firm for U. S. Debt Plan Basis.

Berlin, June 29 (A.P.).—The German foreign office and the German people were torn between hope and fear today as they awaited the outcome of the negotiations in Paris between Andrew W. Mellon, American Secretary of the Treasury, and the heads of the French government.

The question that was bothering the Germans was whether Mr. Mellon would be able to hold out for the fundamental principles of President Hoover's one-year war debt moratorium plan.

An early visit by Frederick M. Sackett, American Ambassador, to Foreign Minister Curtius, reassured German officials that Mr. Hoover in nowise purposed to wash his hands of the situation and to leave Germany to fight out with France the points raised in the French reply to America.

Mr. Sackett called to inform himself about official Germany's reactions to the proposal and to report those reactions to Washington.

Germany Holds Aloof.

Dr. Curtius reiterated to him that Germany would consider it ill-advised and tactless to encroach upon Mr. Hoover's preserves by projecting himself into the discussion.

At the same time he did not conceal the fact that Germany would greatly regret to see the principles of the Hoover plan abrogated in favor of the French thesis.

Some occasion for optimism was furnished by the receipt of the Italian government's official invitation for an "Italian Chequers"—a friendly meeting between the heads of the two governments similar to the recent conversations between the German chancellor and foreign minister with Prime Minister MacDonald and Foreign Secretary Henderson of England.

The Germans warmly accepted the Italian invitation, commenting semi-officially that "Italy hitherto always has assumed a friendly attitude toward reparations, a fact which is further proved by her acceptance of the Hoover plan."

Obstacles to Paris Meeting.

This prompt acceptance could be sent to Rome, it was explained, because there were no psychological difficulties in the way of an early meeting between Premier Mussolini and Chancellor Breuning and Dr. Curtius.

In the case of the French invitation to a similar friendly meeting, Premier Laval's Chamber of Deputies speech still rankled here. In political circles it was feared the French had missed the entire point of the Chequers meeting. This was based on what was interpreted as Premier Laval's attempt to lay down in advance what he would say to the German visitors.

Unless the chancellor, who fervently pleaded for a Franco-German understanding in a recent radio speech, is assured that the French Chequers will be a friendly meeting of equals with no strings attached, he does not intend to go to Paris.

PARIS ALONE DELAYS DEBT PLAN ACTION

Mellon so reported to President Hoover.

Leaving the White House shortly before 7 o'clock, Undersecretary Castle walked over to the State Department, followed by newspapermen. There he turned over to Michael McDermott, the State Department information chief, the statement that had been prepared at the White House. It said:

"It is our understanding that all governments have now agreed in principle to the President's plan except the French government.

Castle Still Optimistic.

"Some difficulties have arisen in reconciling the French position with the spirit of the President's proposal.

"Discussions are still continuing between Ambassador Edge and Secretary Mellon with the French ministry."

Notwithstanding the present reluctance of the French, American officials still express confidence that the Hoover plan ultimately will be adopted all around. Undersecretary Castle said as much as he was leaving the White House last night, and he was extremely emphatic about it.

Earlier in the day Mr. Castle, who is in charge of the State Department in the absence of Secretary of State Stimson, who is en route to Italy, made it clear that France must go farther than she has agreed to go if the President's plan is to go through.

"No agreement has yet been reached with France for the reason that there are still some technical points to be settled," Mr. Castle said. "The United States will accept no offer which does not fall completely within the spirit and purpose of the President's proposal."

Two Die, Seven Injured When Boiler Explodes

Hartlepool, Eng., June 29.—(A.P.). Two persons were killed and seven were injured today in the explosion of a donkey boiler on the Spanish steamer Emilias de Perez in Hartlepool harbor.

Wilbur Saves Life In Quick Operation

Mesa Verde National Park, Colo., June 29.—(A.P.)—The surgical skill of Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, Secretary of the Interior, probably saved the life of V. M. Delerchman, president of a Southwestern Colorado transportation concern.

While escorting Secretary and Mrs. Wilbur through Mesa Verde National Park yesterday Delerchman became ill. He was taken to the Park hospital, where his illness was diagnosed as acute appendicitis. Dr. Wilbur decided an immediate operation was necessary. Assisted by Dr. E. E. Johnson of Cortez, Wilbur performed the operation.

Delerchman's condition today was said to be very good. Dr. Johnson said the ruptured appendix would have caused death had the operation been delayed.

FRANCE NEARER ACCEPTANCE OF DEBT PLAN PRINCIPLES

France and must, at the same time, prevent any isolation of France which many Frenchmen believe might result if a break were allowed in the negotiations with America.

Mr. Mellon and Mr. Edge, like the French statesmen, have been working overtime, and everybody was beginning to get tired. They were, none the less, resolved to hasten the negotiations.

Paris has the impression that Chancellor Bruening and Foreign Minister Curtius, of Germany, prefer to put off their visit to the French capital until after the situation has been clarified and enough groundwork laid to provide reasonable chances at success for the Franco-German conversations.

Communique Is Issued.

At the conclusion of the cabinet meeting this evening a communique was issued setting forth the premier had informed the council of ministers of the state of negotiations between himself and the Americans.

The financial newspaper l'Information said tonight that America's representatives in the debt negotiations had proposed to Premier Laval at their afternoon conference that Germany's unconditional annuity for the year of the proposed moratorium be repaid over a period of 25 years, and the unconditional annuity be spread over 37 years.

The newspaper said the French asked payment of the unconditional installment at the end of the period of moratorium and of the unconditional annuity in five years.

DRY FORCES DEBATE RUM TAX BENEFITS

(United Press.)

The prohibition forces yesterday engaged in direct debate with the antiprohibitionists on the latter's favorite fighting ground, the alleged economic benefits of a liquor tax, replying that liquor's evils would cost $3 to $10 for every dollar of tax collected.

Ernest H. Cherrington, LL. D., Litt. D., general secretary of the World League Against Alcoholism and a high Antisaloon League official, replied to the statement Sunday of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, claiming that a liquor tax would wipe out this year's deficit, with the following:

"When the organized wets ask repeal of the eighteenth amendment in order to provide Federal revenue, they forget that for each dollar received in revenue from licensed liquor, public revenue and private charity would have to pay out $3 to $10 to meet the cost of the crime, vice, pauperism and insanity which are the inevitable accompaniments of the liquor traffic.

"The suggestion that we imitate those countries which raise from 15 to 20 per cent of their revenue by liquor taxes, carries with it the parallel, although unspoken suggestion, that we lower our standard of living to that which prevails where beer and wine are substitutes for those comforts and luxuries now enjoyed by the average American. Just as we could not have automobiles in most of the homes of America, if we have the liquor, so we could not have those other things which are the common necessities of life to an American, but which are luxuries to the beer-ridden and wine-ridden people of Europe.

"Our national drink bill today is only a fraction of what it used to be, although the press agents for the brewers would like to persuade the American people that we are today drinking heavily.

"The police of European cities find it much more easy to see drunken men and women than did Mr. Raskob, according to his published statement on his return from abroad, where he says he did not see any intoxicated people."

$1 Stamp on Letters Urged to Cut Deficit

(Associated Press)

A letter from New York City, signed by "A. Dollar," and inclosed in an envelope bearing a $1 stamp, with the author's solution for the postal deficit, was received yesterday by Postmaster General Brown.

"I intend to write to editors, patriotic organizations and prominent people all over the States to mail a letter with a $1 stamp on it," the writer said. "My slogan will be 'send a dollar prosperity letter.' I hope to get the radio people to announce 'Did you send your prosperity letter yet?'"

Belgium Accepts Plan Of Hoover in Principle

Brussels, June 29 (A.P.).—The cabinet council today approved the Belgian reply to President Hoover's proposal for a war debts moratorium, accepting the plan in principle and expressing a hope that it will contribute toward overcoming the serious difficulties of the Belgian government's present position.

At the same time the reply emphasized the special position of Belgium regarding reparations and said that it was hoped that this would be taken into due consideration when the time comes to establish the bases on which the Hoover scheme will be put into execution.

Hoover War Debt Plan Is Accepted by Portugal

Lisbon, Portugal, June 29 (A.P.).—Portugal today accepted President Hoover's plan for a year's moratorium on war debts payments, saying she was willing to make the sacrifice for the general good of the world.

The announcement was contained in a budget statement, which was approved by a special cabinet council.

Spain's Exiled King Reticent on Ballot

Alfonso Is Reported to Be in Seclusion on Estate of English Friends.

London, June 29 (A.P.).—Apparently unconcerned over yesterday's Spanish elections, which seemed virtually to have written "finis" to his career as king, Alfonso XIII, the deposed monarch, spent the week-end in the seclusion of the country estate of friends (believed to be Lord Mountbatten's, but unverified).

Except for a brief appearance at the Wimbledon tennis matches, Alfonso has remained in the background while his subjects prepared for the election in which they voted overwhelmingly for a republic, and the Catalonian state voted equally strong for a seperate state under the federal republic.

At the home of Lord Mountbatten it was merely said that Alfonso was "in the country for a few days."

WICKERSHAM GROUP ENDS WORK TONIGHT

Will Depart After Making Ten Reports to Hoover; $20,000 Not Used.

(Associated Press.)

A crime-wearied Wickersham Commission reached the eve of its dissolution last night with prospects that it would depart with none of the fanfare that heralded the entry of its members into the Capital 25 months ago.

Last night only two members remained at their task and the commission's usually immaculate offices were littered with moving material. Tonight at midnight they must be bare and probably only Chairman Wickersham will remain in the Capital. The commission's conduct of the most extensive survey of crime ever undertaken could be accounted for last night as follows:

Ten major reports were either in President Hoover's hands or on the way to the Government printer;

Four reports, one of them the commission's historic inquiry into the Nation's prohibition problem, have been made public;

Approximtely $20,000 of its $500,000 appropriation can be turned back to the Treasury shortly as unused funds.

The view was expressed at commission headquarters yesterday that although the commission's life technically ends on July 1, actually it will exist until a final accounting is made to President Hoover and he accepts the task as done.

Will Wind Up Details.

To accomplish this end, temporary headquarters have been established near the White House. There Chairman Wickersham and a small staff will wind up final details probably by mid-July and submit to the President a fifteenth report, containing the commission's history and expenditures.

Neither member of the commission nor Chairman Wickersham would comment yesterday upon the source of the funds to run this temporary establishment. It was said authoritatively they can not be taken from the regular appropriation, but whether they will come from the pocket of some member, from an outside contribution, or from President Hoover was not disclosed.

Many of the commission's observers supposed that a final meeting with some brief ceremony would be held upon its last day. This was made impossible, however, when a majority of the members returned home immediately after the final report was approved last week.

Although none of the commissioners would be quoted, several have pointed to the forthcoming report upon the deportation of aliens as one most likely to arouse public discussion.

Brought Protest From Doak.

When one of the expert's reports to be attached to this document was submitted to the Labor Department, Secretary Doak became so incensed that he wrote a lengthy letter of protest to the commission. Members said this letter was before them when the commission's report was drawn up.

Another of the reports pointed to particularly was the one already delivered to the White House, dealing with "lawlessness in law enforcement." It will discuss graft and corruption in public office and illegal methods used by enforcement officers.

The titles of other forthcoming reports giving some idea of the scope of the commission's work, will be juvenile delinquency, crime among the foreign born, penal institutions, probation and parole, the causes and costs of crime, and the work of the police. A study of the Nation's courts will be carried on by private sources and only a "progress report" will be made by the commission.

Doctors' Report On Fall Is Ready

Fihelly, Justice Wheat, Pomerene Get Copies; Finding Withheld.

(Associated Press.)

A report by Army physicians on the physical condition of Albert B. Fall yesterday reached the district attorney's office here. On it will depend whether the former Interior Secretary will come to Washington to begin a year's prison sentence. His physician has said that Fall is not able to make the trip.

The report was given to John W. Fihelly, acting district attorney, by the War Department. A copy was given to Chief Justice Wheat, of the District of Columbia Supreme Court, and one went to Atlee Pomerene, of Cleveland. He was special counsel for the Government in the oil prosecutions.

Fall, Secretary of the Interior under President Harding, was convicted of accepting a bribe from Edward L. Doheny. No intimation was given as to when the report would be made public.

Hurley Will Pay Visit To Philippine Islands

(Associated Press)

Secretary Hurley announced yesterday he had "practically decided" to visit the Philippine Islands this summer to acquaint himself more intimately with the details of their problems.

Under present plans he will leave Seattle late in July, accompanied by Mrs. Hurley.

TREASURY'S DEFICIT TOPS $800,000,000

Government Concludes Year With Cash Balance of $502,438,034.

(Associated Press.)

A financial rainbow that has lasted 10 years faded rapidly last night for the richest government in the world. Despite a half-billion dollars in ready cash, the Treasury reached the end of the last day of the 1931 fiscal year with expenditures apparently topping collections by over $800,000,000. The last year to close with a deficit was more than a decade ago.

Yesterday's Treasury statement, issued for the close of business June 26, showed a deficit of $868,278,858. Receipts for the year were $3,298,833,366 and expenditures $4,167,112,224. The net balance in the general fund was $502,438,034.

Whether any of the cash balance on hand would be applied to reducing the deficit, no official would say, but it has been the custom in the past to carry over a comfortable balance to meet expenditures until September 15 tax collections are received. Last year the balance carried over was $400,000,000, but then there was a surplus of $185,000,000.

Officials Make Estimates.

As the last day of the year approached officials were able to take stock of the decrease in receipts and the increase in expenditures which brought about the deficit. On the receipt side of the ledger customs taxes for the year had declined $110,000,000 to $374,000,000, while income taxes had dropped off $551,000,000 to $1,854,000,000 as compared with the preceding fiscal year.

Miscellaneous internal revenue dropped $60,000,000 to $564,000,000, a total decrease of $721,000,000 in the three chief items of Government income.

Proceeds from the sale of surplus property dropped $13,000,000, Panama Canal tolls fell off $1,000,000, payment by foreign governments on principal of their debts were $46,000,000 less and income from various miscellaneous sources decreased $40,000,000 to $159,000,000.

Decrease Is Reduced.

The total decrease of $821,000,000 was partially offset by a $14,000,000 increase in the amount realized from railroad and other securities and an increase of $43,000,000 in the amount of interest on debts received from foreign governments which totaled $184,000,000.

On the other side of the ledger there was an increase in general expenditures of $221,000,000 to a total of $2,371,562,065. Chief among the important increases was the postal deficiency which this year amounted to $133,579,676 as compared with $81,714,204 for the same period last year, and the Federal Farm Board, which this year has received $192,932,089 as compared with $137,567,057 last year.

The adjusted service fund from which loans to veterans were made called for $113,000,000 more this year than last. Public debt retirements called for an outlay of $440,082,000, as compared with $553,883,000 last year.

Total ordinary expenditures of the Government, which includes general expenditures, amounted to $3,727,030,224 this year, an increase of $330,000,000 as compared with the preceding year.

Large oversubscription of $100,000,000 of two series of Treasury bills which were offered June 25, was announced last night by Acting Secretary Mills. The tenders were opened yesterday at the Federal Reserve Banks.

The $50,000,000 issue of 91-day bills dated July 1 and maturing September 30, was oversubscribed to a total of $201,227,000. The highest bid was 99.848, eqquivalent to an interest rate of about .60 per cent on an annual basis. The lowest bid accepted was 99.833, or an annual interest rate of .66.

On the other $50,000,000 issue of 90-day bills dated July 2 and maturing September 30, tenders were made for $180,034,000. The highest bid was 99.850, equivalent to .60 per cent interest annually, and the lowest accepted 99.835, or .66 per cent annually.

REHEARING IS DENIED ON CHILDREN'S FARE

chief objection was that the commission had not raised adult fares to offset alleged losses from the school rate. The argument was also advanced that the hearing held by the commission was illegal in that it was held prior to the enactment of the law.

A stay order will probably be asked by the appellants in the case after the commissions files its answer, but only a small number of children will be affected if the order is granted. The commission hopes that the issue will be settled before the schools reopen in the fall.

Strict Ban Sought On Russian Goods

Smoot Predicts Treasury Regulations Will Be Comprehensive.

(Associated Press.)

The imposition of strict Treasury regulations on Russian imports produced by forced or indentured labor was predicted yesterday by Chairman Smoot, of the Senate finance committee. Senator Smoot helped frame the new tariff act which carries provision for an embargo against such goods, which goes into effect January 1.

Smoot believes that under a strict interpretation of the law, all Russian products would be subject to scrutiny. Congress knew what it was doing, he said, "and I have no doubt whatever that the Treasury will carry out the intent of Congress." The Treasury already has placed upon importers the burden of proof when the status of imports is questioned. Some shipments from Russia are now under consideration, including cargoes of lumber and pulpwood. Senator Smoot believed both lumber and pulpwood would come under the forced labor ban after July 1. He did not say all Russian products would be barred and there is no indication that a complete ban against all Soviet articles is contemplated.

M'DONALD ASKS CUT IN ALL WAR FORCES

Prime Minister Says Britain Is Only Power Spending Less on Armaments.

for all three branches in Italy, France, Japan and the United States.

Great Britain cut her annual naval expenditures from the 1914 figures, which at the present rate of exchange would amount to approximately $380,000,000 to approximately $280,000,000 in 1924, and to about $260,000,000 in 1930.

U. S. Expenditures Cited.

Naval expenditures of the United States, he said, increased from about $210,000,000 in 1914 to practically $350,000,000 in 1924, and $390,000,000 in 1930.

The French naval expenditures, while decreasing from 1914 to 1924, increased to more than $120,000,000 in 1930. Italy similarly had decreased expenditures between 1914 and 1924, but increased them to nearly $85,000,000 in 1930. Japan, the figures showed, spent approximately $75,000,000 in 1914, raising the outlay to $115,000,000 in 1924 and to $130,000,000 in 1930.

Mr. Baldwin, in expressing approval of the prime minister's assertions, pointed out that "there is a tendency to make France the scapegoat for all of Europe's troubles, but we must never forget that three times in 120 years her manhood has been bled white in a fashion which has burned into the soul of France. Let us offer her all the sympathy she deserves, and let us do all we can to bring her along with us."

U. S. Increase Submitted.

As for Army expenditures, Mr. MacDonald's figures showed, the United States total had been increased by $90,000,000 since 1925, the French by nearly $105,000,000 and the Italian by more than $90,000,000, while the British total from 1914 to 1931 remained practically stationary at about $200,000,000. Certain extraordinary expenses, such as salary increases and cost of mechanization, made what really was a reduction in total expenditures appear to be practically an equivalent in comparing 1931 and 1914 totals, Mr. MacDonald said.

He recalled that at the end of the war Great Britain had the finest air service in the world, but he said she had scrapped most of her planes and now has only 800 available ships as compared with 1,300 for France and similar excellent equipment in the United States, Italy and Soviet Russia.

He besought every nation interested in peace and disarmament to study these figures and to recognize that one nation by its own example can not bring about world disarmament.

Action Is Urged.

Reviewing the world disarmament movement before the House of Commons today, Mr. MacDonald said he hoped when the disarmaent conference opened next February is adjourned "we shall have not merely pieties but scales, not merely principles but standards, something each nation can examine and see that obligations undertaken by other nations are actually fulfilled."

The Prime Minister listed events of recent years which have had pacifying influences and remarked that the announcement of the impending meeting of the French and German Ministers "makes one's heart glad." "It was what those striving for peace had been praying for," Mr. MacDonald continued.

"Later on the initiative of President Hoover will have its effect, and will show that the world today is not the abandoned place so many superficial cynics always are claiming it to be."

The Prime Minister declared the touch of sympathy was bound to keep France and Great Britain together "so long as we in this country have imagination to see what French men and women feel when war is talked about and disarmament is being negotiated."

Roosevelt Rapped By Woman Writer

Editorial for Laws Group, by Mrs. Nicholson, Hits Wet Views.

(Associated Press.)

An editorial characterizing Gov. Roosevelt, of New York, as "wetter than Smith," and calling upon Southern Democratic women to bolt the party if he is nominated for President was published yesterday by the National Woman's Democratic Law Enforcement League.

The article was written by Mrs. Jesse W. Nicholson, president of the league, and appeared in its official organ "The Woman Voter."

Mrs. Nicholson also assailed Col. Edward M. House, confidential adviser to President Wilson, who recently conferred with Gov. Roosevelt in Massachusetts. Referring to a statement attributed to Col. House that the New York governor would be acceptable to the drys, she said.

"What drys does he mean? The very few Southern politicians who supported Smith in 1928?"

A July Tip to a June Bride

Dear Madam: There is one fickleness that even your own brand-new husband cannot avoid: in hot weather his appetite may stray, at times, from the domestic board. One excellent way of bringing back his errant appetite—and of keeping it from erring in the first place—is to be sure that the water glasses at the table are always generously loaded with clear sparkling cracked ice. Power Commission Abolition Urged

F. E. Bonner, Resigned, Says Unit Has Outlived Its Usefulness.

(Associated Press.)

F. E. Bonner, one time executive secretary of the Power Commission, left the Government service yesterday with a recommendation that the power agency be abolished. After calling at the White House, Mr. Bonner issued a statement saying he presented the suggestion to Walter Newton, Secretary to President Hoover, as a step "in the administration economy program."

"The commission has outlived its usefulness, and the trivial duties remaining might well be absorbed elsewhere," he said. "There was not much need for it at the outset, and now it has become merely a device to serve the ends of professional politicians. Whatever usefulness it had is ended."

Mr. Bonner left the commission last December at its reorganization. He had been for more than a year involved in a controversy with other commission officials. Since then he has been in the reclamation service making a survey of California water resources.

Farm Produce Prices Decline During Month

(Associated Press.)

The Agriculture Department said yesterday farm prices declined 8 points from May 15 to June 15. The June 15 level was 80 per cent of prewar level, as compared with 86 a month previous and 123 a year ago.

The continued decline was due to generally lower prices of all commodities, except apples, eggs and chickens. June 15 indices by groups showed the following declines from May 15: Cotton and cottonseed, 9 points; meat animals, 8 points; grains, 7 points; fruits and vegetables, 5 points, and dairy products, 5 points. Poultry and poultry products went up 4 points.

LOIS LONG DIVORCES ARNO, CARTOONIST

Writer-Wife Cites Cruelty; Husband Is Accused in Vanderbilt Case.

Reno, Nev., June 29 (A.P.).—Lois Long, writer-wife of Peter Arno, obtained a divorce from the cartoonist here today on a cross complaint, which charged that she lived in "abject terror" of Arno because he was violently abusive on "hundreds of occasions."

Miss Long did not personally appear in court, her testimony being offered by deposition.

Arno was there, however. His only witness was True Vencill, at whose home Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, jr., has been staying since she separated from Vanderbilt after a quarrel, a fortnight ago, over attentions Arno was allegedly paying her. Vencill established proof of Arno's residence in Reno for a six weeks' period.

Within two months after their marriage at Stamford, Conn., on August 12, 1927, Arno became subject to "outbursts of jealousy," his wife's deposition said.

On one occasion, she alleged, he dragged her from a table at which she was dining with a friend, and there were "several occasions" when he struck her. They separated November 10, 1930.

Arno will pay $8,000 alimony the first year, $7,000 for each of the two succeeding years, and $6,000 a year thereafter. Two hundred dollars a month is to go to support of their daughter, Patricia, whose custody will be divided.

Arno, whose true name is Curtis Peters, jr., expects to remain here for another week, and then go to Los Angeles. He had no comment to make on any future matrimonial ventures.

No immediate local relief from the recent torrid temperatures is seen by the United States Weather Bureau. The forecast issued last night indicated the heat will continue today and last through tomorrow. Moderate northerly winds were predicted, however, which provide some respite.

A colored bakery employe was the only recorded heat victim here yesterday. Lawrence White, 29, of 1628 Tenth street northwest, was prostrated while working in Havenner's Bakery, 476 C street southwest. He was taken to Casualty Hospital, where his condition last night was said to be undetermined.

The high mark of yesterday's temperatures as shown by the Pennsylvania avenue kiosk was 98 at 4 p. m., the temperature at noon being 92. The official report gave the highest temperature at 88 degrees, and lowest 70 at 6 o'clock yesterday morning.

Heat Average This Month Is Lower Than Last Year

Maximum Temperature on Hottest Day Higher Than Record Year Ago, But Mean for Period Is 2 Degrees Less.

Washingtonians who have been sweltering in the heat of the last month may find some consolation in the fact that temperatures in June of 1930 were higher than the average for this year.

Normal thermometer registration for June is 72.2 degrees. Last year the average for the month was slightly more than three degrees higher, and although the average for June, 1931, can not be compiled until after today's registration, officials at the Weather Bureau say that the heat will only be about one degree higher than the average for the month.

The warmest day this month was June 20, when the thermometer registered 99 degrees. Average that day was 73 degrees. Highest reading for the same month last year was June 26, when the thermometer registered 97 degrees. However, there were consistently warmer days throughout the month of June, 1930, which made the average higher.

Comparative readings for June, 1930, and June, 1931:

Rum Truck Bond Refusal Scored

Newark U. S. Judge Tells Dry Officer Act Hits Volstead Law.

Newark, N. J., June 29 (A.P.).—Federal Judge Guy L. Fake today rebuked Deputy Prohibition Administrator Lewis J. Tutt and told him he had violated the Volstead act by his refusal to free trucks under bond.

The court said, "By your attitude you are setting up an imperialistic form of government and acting contrary to the Volstead act, which you are sworn to uphold."

The deputy administrator gave as his reason for refusing to release two trucks under bond the alleged fact that one of them had previously been seized, and the other, twice before seized. One of the provisions of the Volstead act specifies that seized trucks, alleged to be transporting intoxicating liquors, must be released under bond until it is proved they were actually engaged in the practice charged by the Government, it was pointed out.

drome, where revolt flared on election day.

Monarchy Called Finished.

Banks were closed throughout the country, for this is the religious holiday of St. Peter and St. Paul. Consequently, there was no business reaction to the election, and because of the intense heat there were few people in the streets for election celebrations. The churches, however, were crowded.

Provisional President Alcala Zamora described the vote as a conclusive demonstration that the people are through with the monarchy, and Foreign Minister Alejandro Lerroux, who is the outstanding candidate for premier, said the vote "clearly demonstrated that Alfonso can not return."

Meanwhile Ramon Franco, Spain's premier aviator, who was relieved of his army command as a result of electioneering activities offensive to the government, is in a hospital here with a broken leg suffered when a platform collapsed under him while he was making a political speech.

Tonight he issued a statement denying charges that he is a Communist and asserting that the government's "persecution" was purely political because of his opposition to the present regime. Franco will be a member of the new assembly.

Officials to Meet On New Bus Order

Is Designed to Control Use of Downtown Streets by Interstate Vehicles.

William A. Van Duzer, new District traffic director, will confer this morning with Maj. Gen. Mason M. Patrick, chairman of the Public Utilities Commission, on the order which has been drafted to control interstate buses under the new traffic act.

Consequently, though two of the District Commissioners are on leave, it is expected that an agreement will be reached among the two members of the utilities body and Police Commissioner Herbert B. Crosby.

The order is the outgrowth of a hearing held recently by the commission. It is expected to prevent interstate buses from loading or unloading passengers from the streets in the congested area after a certain time.

Job Agency Loses In Maid Theft Suit

$1,000 Robbery Case Sent Back for Retrial by Appeals Court.

Eureka Employment Agency, headed by Mrs. John T. Newsom, lost a case in the District Court of Appeals yesterday when that body found the agency had not properly investigated and recorded statements made to it by a servant who secured employment through it.

Mrs. Bertha Janof brought suit against the agency because a servant sent to her by the Eureka disappeared with $1,000 worth of jewelry 24 hours after she had been employed. The suit developed that the address given by the servant was fictitious and that there were no records in the employment bureau about references and other data required by the District.

Two others who had employed the servant through the Eureka told the employment bureau that she was all right, though she did not stay long. A detective who specializes in employment agencies testified that the servant's description fitted that of a well known "servant thief." The court reversed a decision of the Municipal Court, which had held in favor of Mrs. Newsom, trading as the Eureka Employment Agency. The case was remanded for a new trial. Mrs. Janof was represented by Leon Pretzfelder and Joseph D. Milenky.

AUTO DEALERS SEEK TO SAVE TITLE COST

Compromise Plan Gives Job of Issuing Certificate to Vehicle Bureau.

New auto title procedure suggested by William A. Van Duzer, who becomes director of the Department of Vehicles and Traffic tomorrow, is expected to be adopted with some modifications by all Washington automobile dealers as consequence of a compromise scheme put forward yesterday by Vernon L. West, acting corporation counsel.

Compromise was proposed following a fruitless conference of Ford and Chevrolet representatives with Maj. Gen. Herbert B. Crosby, police commissioner, and other District officials. R. B. English, District Ford manager, and L. M. Cary, Baltimore Chevrolet manager, appeared in opposition to the new title regulations.

These representatives expressed the belief, however, that the compromise plan would be acceptable to manufacturers, whose chief objection to the original plan was that it would cost them too much money. Under the new scheme the manufacturer's invoice with certain stampings would be used instead of a manufacturers' certificate of title.

Only fault with the new plan is that it will require more work on the part of the Department of Vehicles as each dealer will have to obtain a dealer's certificate from this bureau by presentation of the manufacturer's invoice. Under the original proposal this would not have been necessary.

After the compromise agreement is taken up with the manufacturers another conference will be held, probably July 10. The Washington Automotive Trade Association has already announced its support of the new procedure.

Ford and Chevrolet representatives said that the manufacturer's certificate would cost about 25 cents each or the services of an extra employe at about $2,400 a year.

The accused were committed to stand trial on charges arising out of an allegedly false prospectus issued by the Royal Mail Steam Packet Co. in 1927 and 1928.

USE OF STREETS TO FULLEST CAPACITY, VAN DUZER'S PLAN

where, but he regards them as small in comparison with the "splendid possibilities" of the National Capital for free and easy movement of both motor vehicles and pedestrians.

As an engineer, Mr. Van Duzer is impressed with Washington's fine wide thoroughfares. They strike him as the country's finest network.

As a traffic official, however, Mr. Van Duzer is sorry that he must believe Washington citizens fail to get the most out of their streets. They are not carrying the traffic burden they could with the speed at which they could move it. The defect is not in the streets but in the manner in which they are used.

Lane driving, even if it has to be taught by the painting of lines on busier thoroughfares, will make the Capital's streets a joy beyond the dreams of the average motorist, Mr. Van Duzer believes.

Concerning Washington's mooted left turn, probably the most discussed of all local traffic rules, Mr. Van Duzer sees much merit in the present rotary method. At the same time he feels both the rotary and the so-called Hoover turn, in effect generally throughout the country, have their disadvantages and advantages but that the preponderance of advantages are with the inside turn.

Among these are that it permits uniformity of left turn method throughout the entire city and that it is the system with which motor visitors to the city are familiar. Were all intersections wide enough to permit its use in all parts of the country, Mr. Van Duzer concedes that an excellent case could be made for the rotary left turn.

Both schools of thought on Washington's traffic light situation can derive satisfaction from Mr. Van Duzer's ascent to the traffic dais. He believes in traffic lights and clearly he is the type who does not know the meaning of the word "straddle." Yet, while he is strong for the automatic signals, he believes that every single installation should have its justification from the standpoint of the volume of traffic it affects.

"There are general considerations and special rules that govern traffic light installation," Mr. Van Duzer said. "Under special circumstances, such as in the vicinity of a school or church, a light may be justified when the volume of traffic is somewhat shy of the intensity that ordinarily dictates its installation. Generally speaking, however, the intersection must have certain a degress of use, divided in a specified fashion between the primary and secondary thoroughfares, to justify locating a light there.

"No traffic light will go up or stay up unless there is justification for it."

Mr. Van Duzer does not set pedestrians as a class apart in his concept of making traffic flow easily and smoothly. As a matter of fact, to so classify walkers is one way to irritate him.

"Traffic," he said, "is made up of many elements. Street space and time must be apportioned fairly between them. Most of us alternate in being motorists and pedestrians and we have rights when we are either walking or driving. Those rights must be intelligently and fairly determined. The majority will voluntarily respect them. Others must be made to do so. Class clashes have no place in traffic."

Mr. Van Duzer's plans envision first a study of the congested area of the city with the idea of improving the flow of traffic. He believes both motorists and pedestrians can be less retarded in their efforts to get somewhere.

"The thing we must do," he says, "is to learn to use our streets to their full capacity. If we can learn that—the orderly use of the full width of the streets—we can move traffic faster and safer.

"It is a fact that traffic moving in an orderly fashion—getting in the lane in which it belongs and staying there—can cover more ground at 18 or 22 miles an hour than it can otherwise at a much higher speed. What we all want to do is not to hit a high mark on the speedometer but save time by the clock. If we can get rid of rush and confusion, we can save time."

Mr. Van Duzer is not going to seek any new laws to get motorists to use Washington streets in the proper fashion. One gathers very definitely that he would rather see one or two sound traffic regulations voluntarily obeyed or strictly enforced than 98 to which to which every one was casually indifferent.

That is indicated positively in his attitude toward various types of drivers. He thinks the reckless driver is the one to "get", and he believes in the capability of the police and courts to get him. He views more tolerantly the unwitting offender; and as for the driver incapable of making safe judgments, Mr. Van Duzer is positive the time to eliminate him is when he seeks a driver's permit.

Don't Rasp Your Throat With Harsh Irritants

"Reach for a LUCKY instead"

Place your finger on your Adam's Apple. You are actually touching your larynx—this is your voice box—it contains your vocal chords.

From the report of a famous scientist who studied the effects of LUCKY STRIKE'S exclusive "TOASTING" Process—

"During the course of some recent investigations... we became interested to ascertain whether Ultra Violet Rays produced any change in the quality of the cigarettes. It may interest you to know that I was able to detect a very definite difference in the irritant qualities of the treated and untreated cigarettes. Several tests were made, not only on myself, but others as well, and we experienced little difficulty in selecting the treated or irradiated cigarettes as distinctly less irritating to the mucous membrane of the nose and pharynx than the control or untreated cigarettes."

Sunshine mellows—heat purifies—that's why LUCKY STRIKE'S exclusive "TOASTING" Process includes the use of modern Ultra Violet Rays. Remember—LUCKY STRIKE is the only cigarette in America that brings you the added benefits of "TOASTING." And so we say "Consider your Adam's Apple." Be careful in your choice of cigarettes.

CURRENT EVENTS IN VIRGINIA AND MARYLAND

COMPLETED AVENUE TO BE OPENED TODAY

Contractors Finish Frazier Roadway in Arlington County; Is Widened.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 809. Clarendon, Va.

Frazier avenue, in Jefferson district, extending from Mount Vernon avenue to the Washington-Richmond highway, a distance of 1 mile, which has been under construction for the past 60 days, will be opened to traffic today, according to an announcement yesterday by the contractors.

The roadway has been widened from 18 to 40 feet, and will be the widest hard-surfaced road in Arlington County.

The construction consists of a concrete base of 7 inches, with a surface of Amieste, which is manufactured by the Interstate Amieste Co., of Martinsburg, W. Va.

In addition to the widening of the highway and considerable excavation to establish a uniform grade for the roadway, retaining walls and considerable sidewalk will be necessary.

The completed project, according to the contractors, the Northern Virginia Construction Co., will amount to approximately $35,000.

The original accepted bid was $23,302.88.

The carnival of the Clarendon Rebekah Lodge, No. 28, and Arlington Lodge, No. 193, I. O. O. F., being staged on the grounds at the intersection of Clements avenue and Wilson boulevard, will be continued throughout the entire week. The proceeds will be used for the maintenance of the Odd Fellows' Hall at Clarndon.

The committee in charge of the arrangements announces that in addition to nightly dancing there will be a number of new features this week.

Bids for rebuilding of a portion of the old Georgetown-Alexandria pike, also known as the Tea House road, between Mount Vernon avenue and Military road, at the southeast corner of the Arlington National Cemetery wall, and also that section of the pike fronting the oil tanks from the intersection of the Military road in Rosslyn and extending to the north wall of the National Cemetery, will be opened by the county board of supervisors at its meeting to be held at the courthouse today at 11 o'clock.

In addition to the opening of these bids, a delegation representing the advocates of Washington street as the direct approach to the new Arlington Memorial Bridge, will appear before the board and request that they accept the offer of the free right of way for the road.

Joseph C. Anderson, Walter U. Varney, Albert H. Cohen and Dr. Ernest R. Hagan, delegates to the annual State convention of the Monarch Club, left yesterday for Richmond, where they will attend the convention as representatives from the Arlington County Monarch Club.

Clarence R. Ahalt, past national president, member of the local club, will also attend the convention.

There will be a meeting of the executive committee of the Arlington County Bicentennial Council tonight at the home of Mrs. Sade Catherine Coles, 62 Preston avenue, Cherrydale, and not 26 Preston avenue, as previously announced.

According to Arthur Orr, president, the committee will take up appointment of committees on projects adopted by the council at its last meeting.

William P. Burrows, charged with reckless driving, was fined $14.25, including costs, in police court yesterday by Judge Harry R. Thomas.

The Arlington Methodist Church will hold its annual Sunday School picnic tomorrow at Rock Creek Park, Washington. Buses will leave the church in the morning at 10 o'clock, returning from the park at 6:30 o'clock in the evening.

Deliberating for four hours in the case of Annie Bladen, of Ballston, against the J. B. McCrary Engineering Corporation, of the State of Delaware, for $5,000 damages, a jury in the Circuit Court of Arlington County failed to reach a verdict.

The case grew out of alleged injuries sustained by the plaintiff in January 14, 1931, when it was claimed she fell in a ditch during the construction of a storm sewer by the defendant.

Judge Harry R. Thomas and Homer Randolph Thomas appeared for the McCrary Corporation, while Attorney R. E. O'Neil, of Alexandria, appeared for the plaintiff.

The special committee of the Lyon Park Citizens Association of which A. A. Moore is the chairman voted its opposition to the Washington street approach to the New Arlington Memorial Bridge at a meeting held last night until further investigation of the proposal for extension of Taylor avenue as an adequate approach to the bridge.

The committee further voted to appear before the board of supervisors at its meeting today and ask that no action looking to the adoption of Washington street be taken until they have made a further study of the Taylor avenue route.

Chairman Moore stated that the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce sometime ago, together with a number of those now advocating the Washington street approach, approved the Taylor avenue route.

The committee, he stated, will ask the board to have the county engineer prepare a map showing the proposed route to the bridge over Taylor avenue.

Baltimore & Ohio Says Alton Is Losing Money

(Associated Press.)

Testimony that the Chicago & Alton Railroad is operating at a loss was presented to the Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday by Luther Walter in behalf of the Baltimore & Ohio's petition for approval of its purchases of the road.

The Baltimore & Ohio purchased the Chicago & Alton at a receivership sale last December for $23,000,000 in cash and the assumption of bonds aggregating $49,000,000. Stockholders of the Chicago & Alton are opposing approval by the commission on grounds that the price was inadequate and that stockholders have an equity in the line.

ALEXANDRIA PLANS SEWERS ORDINANCE

New Law Is Made Necessary to Obviate Loss of Fees in Use of System.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

The city council will shortly be called upon to adopt an ordinance on public sewers within the city limits and fix the rates to be charged for sewer service. The necessity for this action arises from the fact that many property owners in the newly annexed territory have never paid a fee for tapping the sewer. Some have their sewers emptying into Hooff's Run while others are connected with the main lines. All property owners in the older portion of the city have been compelled to pay for this service.

The city is held responsible for anything going wrong with the sewer system in the newer section just the same as in the older portion of the city. The ordinance proposed provides, among other things, for the payment of $1.20 for each linear foot and also provides that it shall be unlawful to make any sewer service connection from any property to the public sewer system without first obtaining a permit from the city engineer.

A meeting of the playgrounds teachers was held yesterday in the Alexandria High School building, with Mrs. Lelie Ryder, president, conducting the meeting. The teachers reporting were, in addition to Mrs. Ryder, Mrs. Smith, of the Wash- Mrs. Ryder, Mrs. Smith, of the Washington School; Miss Sue Ella Reynolds, of the Friends playground, and Mrs. Richard Roseberry, of the George Mason grounds.

It was resolved that each teacher attempt to secure the cooperation of all parents in their respective neighborhoods, to procure more playground equipment, as not enough is available at present. The city has contributed toward the purchase of some supplies, which will be bought this week, but which is not considered sufficient for the needs.

Edward Scherer and Alfred Morales were badly beaten and Scherer was robbed of $19 by several Negroes Saturday night, both men requiring hospital treatment. The police yesterday arrested John Wabash, 21; James Adams, 19; James Mitchell, 22, and Claude Butler, 21, all Negroes, who were charged with assault on the two men, and were held for the grand jury.

Five cases are scheduled to be heard in the Corporation Court today, Judge William P. Woolls presiding. They are Lewis Putnam, cutting; George Allen, cutting; L. O. Broadneck, shooting; John Leary, cutting, and Charles Wallace, attempted robbery.

Dan S. Hollenga, business manager of the Chamber of Commerce, fearing that the construction of the road from the Richmond-Washington highway through Fairfax to Annandale, thence to Washington, as proposed by the State Highway Commission, may divert traffic from Alexandria, has taken the matter up with the trade body. He stated yesterday the matter has been referred to a committee for a report, and the recommendations will finally be presented to the highway commission.

Theodore Kraus, 26 years old, of Franconia, Fairfax County, who was taken to the Alexandria Hospital Saturday suffering from a gunshot wound in the head, is said to be recovering, although at first little hope of recovery was held out. A brother, Julian H. Krause, claims that the wound was self-inflicted. Krause having fired two shots from a 32-caliber revolver into his head while in his home, then went into a nearby field and fired a third shot.

Krause has a wife and one child.

JELLIES AND JAMS MADE AT HOME ARE GOOD INVESTMENT

Every housewife has the chance to "get ahead" next winter by putting up fruit now. Sugar is low in price, and there are always bargain days for each fruit and berry.

A little concentrated effort as each fruit crop reaches its peak will result in a cupboard well stocked with canned fruits, jellies, jams and relishes from which one may draw freely throughout the winter.

Since fruit belongs in the diet and should appear in some form at every meal, the economy of a home supply is readily apparent. Cane sugar is ideal for all kinds of canning. Preserve with refined cane sugar. The Sugar Institute.

SOURCES OF MISCHIEF.

Negotiation of the proposed agreement for a one-year debt and reparations holiday is one of the most delicate problems that has confronted President Hoover's administration. On one hand, it is necessary to secure the cooperation of both parties in the United States and to keep the issue out of politics. On the other, the Government must take every precaution against turning this movement into a campaign for cancellation of debts.

Thus far President Hoover's proposal has been subjected to remarkably little partisan criticism. Democrats are lending their cooperation in the hope that the moratorium may prove to be the turning point toward better times. In that event it will redound to the benefit of both parties and the whole country. Political leaders have an excellent opportunity to demonstrate their interest in the national welfare, leaving politics in the background.

But the harmony which has marked the negotiations thus far by no means gives assurance that politics will not be interpolated. Republicans are tempted to make political capital out of the proposal, and Democrats to frustrate it. They are held to a common course only by a gentlemen's agreement that politics shall be laid aside. If either party violates the spirit of that understanding, the result may be disastrous.

In view of this situation it is difficult to understand why James L. West, director of publicity for the Republican national committee, sought to make use of the moratorium proposal in his recent political address over the radio. Does Mr. West wish to fan the flame of partisanship? It is absurd to suppose that harmony in this undertaking can continue if one party begins to claim the credit for it. Republican leaders who have their party's interests at heart will do their utmost to keep the moratorium negotiations on a nonpartisan basis.

Cancellationists are taking advantage of every development in the moratorium plan to advance their propaganda. They would like to see the Young plan broken down by the debt holiday so that the whole question might be opened for reconsideration. If a moratorium is agreed upon and has a salutary effect, they will press for cancellation of all obligations growing out of the war as a move to further stimulate business. Should the effects of the debt holiday be disappointing, they will cry out that only through complete annihilation of the debts can Europe be revived.

Nothing could be more damaging to the negotiations that are now going on than this sort of propaganda. President Hoover does not intend that war debts shall be further scaled down or canceled. France will not permit the Young plan to be impaired. It is imperative, therefore, that the agreements now in effect on reparations and debts be preserved intact. Security against a stampede toward cancellation at the end of the one-year holiday should be considered a prime essential of the agreement.

The question of when the suspended payments shall be made up is troublesome. If this burden should be imposed upon Germany during the years immediately following the holiday, little benefit could be anticipated. Yet definite arrangements for payment of the suspended annuity are important. The project is complicated by many such delicate and intricate issues that must be completely understood before an agreement can be reached.

It is not discouraging, therefore, to find that Secretary Mellon and the French authorities are taking their time to reach complete accord. An agreement hastily entered into with little consideration for resumption of the routine payments after the year has expired might easily lead to grief. A comprehensive understanding with no ambiguities and no uncertainty as to future policy will work to the best interests of all nations concerned.

SPAIN VOTES REPUBLICAN.

While returns from the election in Spain are incomplete reports have been received from a sufficient number of cities and provinces to insure the election of a substantial working majority for the Republican-Socialist combination in the national assembly and to doom all hopes of the Royalists that the balloting might indicate a demand for Alfonso's return. Provisional President Zamora, the even more popular Foreign Minister Lerroux and Ambassador Madariaga, now in Washington, will have seats in the assembly that will meet on July 14 to decide upon the new form of government for Spain.

The election also decided that Spain will not be a centralized republic if Catalonia can prevent it. Provisional President Francisco Macia was elected to the Cortez amid great enthusiasm on his platform for federalized Spain. The Catalans will demand autonomous statehood within a federal republic and similar demands are expected to be made by such distinctive regions as Aragon, Galicia and the Basque country.

The fight for local sovereignty, centering in Barcelona, was opposed in a hot campaign led by Lerroux himself. He charged Col. Macia with failure to cooperate with the Madrid government, with undue support of the powerful labor organization, the Syndicato Unico, and unjust opposition to the church. The independent spirit of Catalonia, however, has overridden all opposition and President Macia announces significantly to his countrymen that if his demands for autonomy are not granted by the assembly he will return for new instructions.

As might have been expected, Spain's first election under the new republic did not pass off without some serious clashes at the polls, but a large vote testified to the prompt interest of the people in the exercise of the franchise. The assembly will face difficult questions in formulating a constitution and in adjusting the relations of church and state. Spain has stood the first test of a sudden transition to popular government by reaffirming her belief in the republic. The process of forming a new government will now be watched with interest and sympathy.

HISTORICAL ARCHITECTURE.

Archeologists and historians delving into the ruins of cities and palaces of mighty peoples who have disappeared from the earth in centuries of long ago are bringing to light knowledge of ancient architecture and of the habits, customs, ideals, sentiments and philosophy of forgotten races.

Builders of a nation, either consciously or unconsciously, record the story of that nation in its architecture. The ancient Greeks recorded in their Parthenon, for instance, the story of the Hellenic race. Athens had its eight gods in the beginning, as the United States had its thirteen original colonies. Memory of these gods is preserved by eight columns in the end portico. To each of them the Greeks built a temple with columns to represent his virtues.

It was the idea of George Washington, Jefferson, Architect Hoban and Benjamin Franklin that the architecture of the public buildings in Washington should record the story of the birth and growth of the Republic. Daniel Webster amplified this idea in his oration at the laying of the corner stone of the House wing of the Capitol. It was embodied in the symmetrical proportions of the dome. Thirteen columns, representing the thirteen original colonies, support the pedestal of the goddess; 36 columns, representing the number of States in the Union when Lincoln became President and civil war broke over the land, girt the center of the dome. The 36 columns surrounding the Lincoln Memorial represent these 36 States.

There are now 48 States in the Union and that number of columns built into a temple would give a square structure with thirteen columns to the side in formation of the entire girth.

The plan of architecturally recounting the story of the Nation is kept in mind by the Bureau of Architects in the present building program. Philosophers will find in this building era food for thought in after years, and historians will read in it the story of America.

With the completion of the United States Supreme Court Building and the National Art Gallery, now in the embryo, two of the most artistic buildings in the world will be added to the noted Government structures in Washington. Twenty-five years more of building and Washington will be a greater seat of ensembled art in architecture than was left the world by ancient Rome. In this development of the Nation's Capital the names of Calvin Coolidge and Herbert Hoover will be inseparably linked.

EMPLOYMENT SAFEGUARDS.

A number of American cities have formulated plans for handling unemployment problems. Cincinnati and Rochester have both adopted projects. One was brought into being by the efforts of Cincinnati's city manager, Col. C. O. Sherrill, while the other is the outgrowth of a study made by the leading manufacturing concerns of Rochester.

Early in 1929 Cincinnati appointed a committee for stabilizing employment. This body gathered information on the various aspects of the question and kept a current census of unemployment. When the depression came Cincinnati had as many jobless men as most other cities, but it had a reliable body of information to guide it and a plan for dealing with the difficulties. Through ten subcommittees the business of gathering and coordinating facts on employment was carried on for the mutual benefit of employers and labor. These subcommittees effectively organized private charities. They distributed funds, established soup kitchens and provided departments of health and training for those out of work.

This work is financed largely through the community chest, although the city welfare department contributes a large sum as well. The April campaign to raise funds for the chest provided sufficient money to pay for last winter's outlay and $250,000 for next winter. Many of the activities of the committee are curtailed during the summer. Soup kitchens were discontinued as applicants decreased from 2,700 persons in winter to 250 when warm weather came, and the committee's investigators found that most of these were habitual loafers.

Character building has been one of the aims of the project, as the committee has endeavored to counteract the moral deterioration which accompanies economic distress. The committee has made a notable contribution toward maintaining the health and morals of jobless men.

The Rochester plan is an agreement between fourteen manufacturing companies that employ about a third of the working population of the city. These firms set aside a minimum of 1 per cent of their total pay roll as a fund for aiding their employes. In time of depression this fund is used to supplement wages that are cut, due to reduction in hours of labor, or given to employes as temporary insurance if they are discharged. Any man who has been with a company a year is eligible to receive 60 per cent of his usual wage. A number of employers find it necessary to exceed the minimum amount, due to business conditions, and many have voluntarily increased the rate of their saving fund to provide greater benefits. This plan is of special merit in that it is entirely voluntary on the part of the industrialists. It is doing much to stabilize employment and to build up an insurance reserve against future depression.

A Virginia man was arrested for transporting liquor in an ark. Maybe he was just a modern Noah, using firewater to create his menagerie instead of calling the animals in from the four corners of the earth.

Spain votes Republican with only about a dozen casualties. Frenchmen looking across the border will doubtless sneer at such an insignificant price.

CALVIN COOLIDGE SAYS:

Northampton, Mass., June 29—At times we can be thankful for what is behind us. For nearly two years the world has been going through a readjustment period. There has been a world-wide economic depression which no business skill has been able to prevent, followed by political revolutions in many countries which no statesmanship found it possible to restrain. Both finance and politics have been seeking a more stable equilibrium.

In spite of heavy losses and a good deal of concealed suffering, public and private charity have not failed to provide ample relief for our people. We have been free from public disorder. No one doubts the stability of our Government. However severe the pressure, however great the danger, the patience and the courage of the Nation have been greater. We have had a demonstration of the great financial resources and of the strength and character of our people. Whatever excesses they tolerated in the time of prosperity they stood firm. They have shown a reserve power sufficient to master their difficulties. Nothing has been able to shake their faith in their political and social institutions. A country which has met this test in this way is worthy of confidence.

HORSES IN CITIES

From the Christian Science Monitor.

All the omnibuses, lorries, motor coaches, taxicabs and private automobiles which throng the streets of London have not succeeded in ousting the horse-drawn cart. Once a year the London Cart Horse Parade Society provides a demonstration of beautifully cared-for animals, each with its wagon and gay harness, prizes being offered for the best turnout to drivers within the metropolitan area. On 41 occasions this handsome parade has taken place in the heart of London. How many more will there be? For many years it has seemed that the doom of the city horse was sealed.

The president of this society once again put in a plea for its retention. He tried to prove that the cart horse was in no wise the cause of the congestion of traffic. He was on safer ground when he asserted that its use in certain forms of business was more economical than the use of automobile trucks.

But he was championing a forlorn cause. No doubt certain traders find it economical to use horse-drawn vehicles. But their gain is at the expense of all other employers of transport in the streets. Various estimates have been made of tremendous losses to the community caused by the slower forms of traffic in certain English and American cities. The thoroughbred cart horse is powerful, patient and beautiful, but speedy he is not; and he is, therefore, an obstruction. It may be that he has learned to tolerate the motor traffic, but the motorist can not feel so patient with him when forced to drive behind him at a maximum speed of 5 miles an hour.

It is time that he disappeared from the narrower and more crowded streets of large cities. We may miss him. We may regret him. But sentiment must yield to accomplished facts. Horses and gasoline do not mingle well in a congested thoroughfare. Since the automobile unquestionably has won the day, the sooner the quadruped retires the better for him and for every one else. We shall honor him more sincerely for his services in the past if he refrains from being a nuisance in the present. It is too late to attempt, in this or any other way, to put back the clock of mechanical progress in favor of the merely picturesque, or in favor of small minorities. No one would attempt to build thatched cottages on Broadway. A cart horse in the street of a crowded city is equally out of place. But there are places for thatched cottages—and horses.

POST HASTE.

The reverberating silence you hear coming from New York is the cheering of Smith and Roosevelt for the moratorium.

Spain's election enthusiasm was somewhat more sanguinary than the revolution, but, still, consistently republican.

Col. House was welcomed home to Texas by Tom Love as a long-lost citizen, but his Rooseveltian suggestion was answered by "Three cheers for McAdoo!"

The bumper wheat crop may give Henry Ford an idea for another home-grown accessory.

Dip the colors for Raskob and Shouse. They're big enough to salute the moratorium.

With the Nats and moratorium plans holding their own and a 10-degree temperature edge on most of the country, Washington can't complain.

Some financial writers are brutal enough to point out that French concern for the sanctity of contract was not so pronounced during the contractural debt parley with the United States.

And possibly it is just as well, after recording the sudden $8,000,000,000 rise in stock values, to heed trite words of caution to the effect that "a too-rapid advance always contains within itself the possibility of severe reaction."

Buses and trucks are absorbing twice the sum the railroads hope to gain by increasing freight rates. Will higher rates improve rail earnings or extend truck business?

Just so the topic may not be entirely forgotten Mr. Raskob says that in a two months' search through five European countries he did not see a drunken man.

Is Hoover growing as a diplomat? Well, Mellon is in Paris and Stimson is on the high seas bound for Italy.

Maj. Franco's election to the Spanish Assembly will enable him to line up frankly with the Communist minority where he has belonged for some time.

The Association Against the Prohibition Amendment publishes the claim that repeal would bring revenue of nearly a billion dollars to the Treasury and wipe out the deficit. Faulty psychology! Prohibition will never be decided on that material issue.

Gandhi will be encouraged in his efforts with the Moslems and Buddhists to hear that the Congregationalists and Christian churches have united.

PANIC VICTIM.

He built his pride on money,
But one day the market fell;
Now skies above are sunny,
And he has no joy to tell.

I do not write to mock it,
For money all men need,
But time has picked his pocket
And he is poor indeed.

About and ever near him
Are pleasures good to know,
But still they fail to cheer him
Because his purse is low.

Who gives to gold tyrannic
The keeping of his joy
Must dread the passing panic
Which can his peace destroy.

But he who plays the neighbor
Loves flowers and trees and friends,
And is content to labor
Draws lasting dividends.

If He Is Civil Only When Frightened, Your Civility Seems an Evidence of Fear.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

DOGS, even of the same breed, differ in character as men do. And like men they reveal the social standing of their masters.

The rich man's dog stares in aloof and supercilious silence; the outlaw's dog snarls at everybody; the beggar's dog cringes.

The hound dog, lean and mangy, that lies in the flea-infested dust beneath a tenant cabin, is the one most like those humans described as "yellow."

The hound rushes forth with a show of courage when a stranger approaches; scurries for shelter in yelping frenzy if violence threatens; and then creeps out to snap at the stranger's heels when his back is turned.

He recognizes only two kinds of people—those who kick him and those he can frighten. One who doesn't threaten him seems a weakling he can attack with impunity.

In all lands occupied by two races of men, people who belong to the superior race say of the others: "You can't be good to them. The moment you try being kind, they become impudent and overbearing. You must be careful to keep them in their place."

It is a truth long known to nations experienced in colonization, but the truth of it isn't confined to subject races.

There are people of your own race much like the tenant's hound dog and the house boy in Java.

By nature or environment denied understanding or appreciation of good manners, they see in courtesy nothing more than a confession of weakness.

Their world is divided into two groups—those they fear and those they can bully; and any show of gentleness or kindness seems an evidence of inferiority and thus an invitation to attack.

In personal contact, or in speaking over the telephone, and especially in an exchange of letters, they refrain from impudence and abuse only so long as they are afraid. The moment courtesy gives them assurance of safety, they behave as the hound does when a back is turned.

It would be a much more pleasant world if everybody could be courteous and kind, but it can't be done in safety until the race is rid of its yellow streak.

PRO AND CON

Avaunt to Fear.

Minneapolis Journal.

Almost in a trice President Hoover has turned the world from fear to hope. His proposal of a year's postponement of all international debt payments seems, as if by the wave of a magician's wand, to have exorcised the specter of fear that has so long beaten down and deadened men's hopes.

In every market of the world the quickening pulse has been felt. A year in which to make recovery, to readjust conditions, to let men and governments get their feet under them for the long march upward that follows every depression, and must follow this one.

The American proposal is more than a gesture of generosity, more than an invigorator of trade. It is a challenge of the good faith of those Europeans whose treasuries are halfway posts along the line that runs from primary debtor to ultimate creditor—that is, from Germany to France, Great Britain and others, and from them to the United States.

Germany Must Be Saved.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

In proposing a year's moratorium on war debts and reparations, Mr. Hoover has spoken the word which all Europe, and, indeed, the whole harassed world has long been awaiting.

The President's proposal is regarded as the most important governmental pronouncement since the armistice and as epochal, in a historical sense, as was our decision to enter the World War.

As President Wilson saw it, in 1917, the imperial German government had to be destroyed in order to make the world safe for democracy. Now, fourteen years later, President Hoover declares that Germany must be saved, and for no less a reason, it might be added, than to make democracy secure.

"Dirty Politics."

Minneapolis Journal.

Short-sighted folk who broke up an unemployment session at the National Conference of Social Workers last week with their demands that President Hoover be denounced for failure to "start a huge program of public works to provide jobs," accused the President of being engaged in "dirty politics."

Wrong. Rather, Mr. Hoover would be playing dirty politics, did he heed the demands of these men and plunge the country into new taxes and new debts in order to pass out largess to some millions of unemployed.

True, such a policy would greatly enhance his popularity, for the time being, with large groups of voters. But, if willfully following an unwise course to curry favor with groups of voters is not dirty politics, then what is?

The President knows that a country can not be taxed into a state of prosperity. Most business men also know it. Otherwise, they would not be opposing these present proposals to commit Uncle Sam to vast public works at a time when there is no money in the United States Treasury to meet the bill. For business has far more to gain from a restoration of prosperity than it has to lose through any conceivable addition to the tax load.

The Burning Issue.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Robert J. Kratky, who sprang into notice in 1928 as Victor J. Miller's campaign manager, is apprising St. Louis Republicans of the struggle the party faces in 1932, and has defined the issue of the campaign. Is it the electric power question which agitates his breast, the record of the Farm Board, unemployment or prohibition? No, it is not along such lines that Mr. Kratky's mind works. The issue, as he sees it, will be: "Will we have all the offices or none of them?" Hanna, Platt, Quay and Penrose, all rolled into one, could not be more practically political than that.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Conservation of Waste and Raw Materials to Be Studied at International Conference.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Governor of New York on his recent visit to France appears to have been impressed with the success of the French in establishing a working balance between agriculture, manufacturing and other types of business—enough of each and not too much of any.

For generations it has been a current proverb that a French family could be reared in affluence upon what an American family wastes. France has well recognized, as we have not yet, that the soil, the water and the atmosphere are the raw materials of agriculture, and so of business and life.

It is the conservation of each of these, which leads to a balanced ration, not only a food, but of business and of the other concomitants of life, such as creation and recreation. In France the wastes of agriculture and of business has been checked up, and put back into use. French agriculture has developed into an increasingly efficient partnership with nature, wherein the brain and brawn of mankind do team-work for utilizing the raw materials. To a far greater degree than with us, biologic laws are studied and put to work by man for mankind. Such wasted materials as sewage, garbage and what not, are being converted into such quickly useful biologic combinations as will promote agricultural industries, a better balanced national ration, and greater business prosperity.

In North America inadequate conservation, notably of the soil, the water, the raw materials of life, has led to a surplus of cereals and a lack of wild fowl and timber. We are putting out of business the raw materials of agriculture and of industry, by the spread of pollutants destructive to the soil, the waters and the atmosphere. For the further consideration of these problems an international conference, under the presidency of the Minister of Agriculture of France, is about to convene in Paris.

Citizen Who Had His Automobile Stolen Complains at His Imprisonment by Police.

To the Editor of the Post—Sir: Must law abiding citizens suffer the embarrassment of being thrust into the lock-up for at least 24 hours for investigation, while criminals of the worst degree run at large unmolested?

On Monday, June 22 my car was stolen while I was asleep. Fatigued from a long auto trip I retired at 11 a. m., and did not arise until that evening at 9 o'clock, at which time I discovered some one had absconded with my car. I immediately reported the loss to the Eighth Precinct. At 11 p. m. I was notified that the car had been found and that they were holding one of the boys, but the others had made his escape. I went to the Ninth Precinct where the arrest had been made and was asked to show my registration card and driver's permit, which I did with satisfaction. After doing this the sergeant of the precinct ordered my arrest and would not tell why he was holding me. The cell that I was given was as filthy as a hog pen. The smell was so rank that I smoked at least forty cigarettes during the night, not daring to sleep. The next morning a dirty fellow in shirt sleeves came around with sandwiches. I can't tell you what kind, as that is a puzzle that I haven't been able to solve. Of course I didn't eat them. Soon thereafter an officer in plain clothes questioned me as to when I reported the loss, &c.; then he returned later and told me he wanted me to go with him and another officer to try and locate the thief, as his apprehension meant my release. Hungry, tired and sick we rode from one end of the city to the other, without any success, finally returning to the precinct. After discussing me for a while they decided to give me my freedom.

Such treatment as this from police would drive a weak-minded citizen to crime.

I know nothing can or will be done, but I have been relieved when I tell the public.

Egyptian Parliament Opened by King, Who Delivers Speech From the Throne.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The opening of Parliament took place in Cairo with the customary ceremonial, when His Majesty The King drove in state amid the spectacle which the capital witnessed with fervent enthusiasm.

The speech from the throne summarized the advantages of the new constitution, which was welcomed with satisfaction by the people whose representatives were recently elected. The speech also made an impressive account of the administration of the present cabinet, especially in connection with its economic policy.

As to foreigners, the speech referred to the foundation of the agricultural bank and emphasized the close and fruitful cooperation of Egyptians and foreign capitalits who have subscribed to half the capital of this new institution. "Foreigners," runs the speech, "find every facility and every protection from my Government, which looks after them, after their welfare and after the safety of their interests, and welcomes warmly all services they render and every activity they display in intellectual, scientific, commercial or industrial spheres, while it continuously endeavours to foster the ties of concord and sympathy betwen them and the Egyptians."

In spite of the continual attempts of the opposition to stir up trouble, everything passed off peacefully and quiet reigns all over the country.

Blisses Send Byzantine Art To Paris Show

Valuable Pieces Taken From Residence in Capital.

HAVING collected rare treasures from all parts of the world, Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss, of Washington, wife of the United States Ambassador to Argentina, has sent several valuable pieces to the Byzantine Art Loan Exhibition at the Musee des Arts Decoratifs in Paris, which with the Colonial Exposition, now in progress, is one of the most notable attractions in the French capital.

Although Mrs. Bliss is in Buenos Aires, the treasures came from her palatial residence on R street in Georgetown, where the spacious rooms form an impressive background for the objets d'art which she has collected during many years of travel abroad. She has sent an ivory crucifix formerly in the Walter Burns collection, a wonderful Greek tapestry from Egypt, with allegorical figures and short inscriptions, several pieces of church silver and some fascinating and rare pieces of jewelry.

Since Ambassador and Mrs. Bliss purchased the old Blount estate in Georgetown a number of years ago, few have had opportunity to view the interior, for the Blisses have only occupied it at weekly intervals over a period of several years, since the extensive remodeling was completed. Furnished throughout, it has been in charge of a caretaker during the residence of its owners in the Argentine capital.

The magnificent grounds of the estate, however, were thrown open for the first time early in the spring in connection with the tour of old Georgetown gardens. The tract covers many acres, extending from Montrose Park to Thirty-second street, and back as far as the area owned by the U. S. Government, where the Naval Observatory is situated.

Formerly the residence of Col. and Mrs. Henry Blount, the house was Victorian in style. The old brick had been painted a dark gray. Now it is red brick and rises to impressive heights amid old oak trees, behind a high wall which incloses the property.

Mr. Jan Stalinski Here From Warsaw.

Mr. Jan Stalinski, former Second Secretary of the Polish Embassy, has arrived in Washington from Warsaw, and has joined Mme. Stalinski, who has been in town for several weeks. They will remain here until June 9, when they will sail again for Poland, where Mr. Stalinski will resume his duties at the foreign office.

Countess Cornelia Szechenyi, daughter of the Hungarian Minister and Countess Szechenyi, is the guest of Miss Mildred Tytus and Miss Victoria Tytus at their summer home at Tyringham in the Berkshires.

From Italy comes the news that Mr. and Mrs. William A. Conkwright, of Milan, are receiving congratulations on the birth of a son, William A. Conkwright, jr., on June 10, in Rome.

Mrs. Conkwright was formerly Miss Ana Teresa Grisanti, daughter of the former Minister of Venezuela and Senora de Grisanti. The marriage took place more than a year ago after the Grisantis left Washington for the southern republic. Senor Grisanti is now Venezuelan Minister to Rome, and Mr. and Mrs. Conkwright make their home in Milan.

Mrs. Wilson Pritchett, of Philadelphia, who has been passing the winter in Washington with her aunt, Mrs. Sidney Cloman, will return tomorrow from New York, where she has been for several days. SPEED AND MORE SPEED!

EIGHT years ago it took nearly eight minutes, on the average, to make connections on out-of-town telephone calls. Today the average speed of connections on all out-of-town calls —no matter how great the distance—is sixty seconds—JUST ONE MINUTE!

Eight years ago it took from five days to a week from the time orders were received to install telephones. Today they are installed within an average of two days, or on the dates requested by customers in over 98% of the orders given.

These are but two of the many outstanding improvements in telephone operation which have been introduced during the past few years in the interest of furnishing better telephone service.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

I FOLLOWED your advice and my Easter lily is doing beautifully in the garden. I really believe that at the rate it is progressing it may bloom in August, as you said, but what after that? Is the Easter lily hardy? MRS. THOMAS R. W.

In your locality, south of Baltimore, the Bermuda lily should be perfectly hardy. Farther north it is not reliably hardy and has to be stored in the cellar.

Please tell me how to better the condition of the begonia, a portion of which I am inclosing in this package. Also please tell me the name of the inclosed vine.

MRS. CHARLES S. D.

Your begonia is suffering from the "rot," a disease brought on by too much or too little water, too little sun or too little fresh air. A begonia usually does best in an eastern window. There is no set rule about watering. The roots must always be in cool, moist soil. Water permitted to collect about the crown of the plant sometimes precipitates an attack of "rot." I would cut the plant back to the roots at this time, set the pot on a porch where it will have morning sun and water it every day. The vine of which you inclosed a branch is a wildling, Gill-over-the-ground, ground ivy (nepeta glechoma).

Please tell me how to care for an Easter lily from now on.

HELEN H. C.

Remove dead tops and plant bulb in open ground in your garden, choosing a sunny spot. Water the bulb every day after growth is established. The Easter lily is not hardy north of Washington, D. C., so you will have to bring the bulb indoors in winter.

Kindly tell me the name of the plant of which I am inclosing a leaf. Also the care it should have at this time. MRS. S. G. G.

The leaf you sent me, while dry and discolored, resembled the leaf of a funkia. If it is a funkia, it should now be growing in a moist, shady place. It is hard definitely to identify a plant from one leaf and absolutely no description.

Please tell me a good rose to plant on a bank on one side of my drive. Last year you suggested for a spot at one side on my lawn the yellow hugonis. In the fall I planted twenty bushes and am delighted with the result. Also tell me the name of the rose which is a sport of the old Dr. W. Van Fleet.

MRS. THOMAS R. W.

If you stagger your roses on the bank I know of nothing better than the Lafayette, as it is an everblooming variety. I am so glad you like the hugonis. You will find that they become more beautiful each year. New Dawn is the name of the sport of the Dr. Van Fleet.

YOUR NAME — WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

By HARRY A. DEFERRARI, Ph. D.

THE great frequency with which the family name Rogers is found today is due to the extreme popularity of "Roger" as a personal name in England at the time when personal names were becoming hereditary. This personal name is ultimately of Teutonic origin, and means "famous spear." Two of the many instances of this name in the Hundred Rolls are Adam Rogeri and Robert Rogeri, in which names "Rogeri" is a Latinized form which may be translated "the son of Roger." The commonest modern English variations of this name are Rogerson, Rodger, Rodgers and Rodgerson, not to mention its countless diminutives, such as Hodge, Dodge, Hodgkins, &c. The popularity of this name in Germany is likewise proved by the dozens of modern variations. Some of the commonest are Roger, Rogger, Roeger, Rudiger, Rugger, Rucker, Rotgers, Roetgers, Ruttgers and Ruettgers. In France the prevailing forms are Roger, Roget, Rogier, Rougon, Rougion, Rougel, and Rougeau. The commonest Italian equivalents are Ruggero, Ruggieri, Roggero and Roggeri.

The family name Nibbs is of English origin and means "the son of Isabel." Isabel is a French form of Elizabeth, which is of Hebrew origin and means "God is her oath." A great many nicknames have been derived from the personal name Isabel. One of the commonest of these in England in early times was Ibb, from which the family name Ibbotson is derived. Familiarly Ibb often became Nibb, just as Oliver frequently became Noll. The family name Niblett, which is still fairly common, is merely a diminutive form of Nibb or Nibbs.

Watch this column every day. Your name will appear here.

Art Interprets the Mode

Stunning beach pajama of red and white wash silk printed with conventional roses, and worn over a red jersey bathing suit. (Courtesy of Dupouy-Magnin, Paris.)

New York, June 29.

ONE disadvantage of the lingerie collar and cuffs—at least as far as the haut couturiers are concerned—is that they are so easily imitated and that essentially they are meant for the type of woman who is obliged to get several effects with one dress by means of the simple expedient of having several sets of collar and cuffs for it. And, naturally enough, a haut couturier isn't too much concerned with the type of woman to whom the smartness of lingerie touches was a godsend.

Whatever the reason, the contrasting collar and cuffs seen in such great profusion, on the majority of daytime dresses at the beginning of this year have almost entirely disappeared from the most recent collections of the haute couture. And, of course, I should tell you they weren't really worn by the leaders of fashion—because while they're fresh and youthful and all that kind of thing—they are not distinctive or distinguished except in the rare cases when they're made of real lace.

The newest idea is incrustations of material contrasting to the dress at the throat and wrists. And very often these incrustations take the form of a very deep yoke at the top, the entire lower half of the sleeve being in the contrasting material. Or the dress is beaded around the neckline and the wrists, or tuckings or stitchings finish them. And, of course, one very charming way to get that becoming contrast around the throat is by means of an attached scarf—which so many of the couturiers like—Jane Regny in particular. Mirande showed an afternoon dress with a chiffon handkerchief in tangerine and white and black fastened to one shoulder with a little bunch of flowers of the same colors—the dress was beige crepe.

However, certain collar effects are still chic—such as a fine crisp white ruching around the surplice closing of a black daytime dress that Worth showed.

The salty, curling breakers at the shore are only half the attraction nowadays—the other half is the golden sand whereon to lie in careless, graceful pictures and keep a keen eye on the loveliness of other fashionably clad loungers! 'N' if you're clever, my deahs, you'll see that your beach wardrobe contains a chic and abbreviated bathing suit for the waves and a stunning lounging pyjama for the sands! I've sketched for you today one of the most attractive beach ensembles I've ever seen. This is from Dupouy-Magnin. The red jersey bathing suit is cut for aquatic activity and ornamented with a white, conventionalized flat rose appliqued low on one side. And over this suit is worn a pair of white wash silk trousers, with a wide band incrusted in a scalloped line and printed with red roses. 'N' finally, the sleeveless, longish jacket is of red wash silk, printed with white roses, and banded with white. So whichever element you choose to disport in or on, you're chic, n'est-ce pas?

And if you're smart as well as clever you'll buy a beach ensemble, instead of just miscellaneous thises and thats!

• • • •

How would you like to own a smart, beautiful evening dress, black satin, of course, that was magic? Yes—honestly, magic! One that you could add a charming blouse to, and make into a Sunday night gown that is both gracious and lovely! 'N' if you send your stamped, self-addressed envelope right off to the Dare department of The Washington Post, you will receive this week's illustrated leaflet that will prove to you how easily and how marvelously this magic can be accomplished.

We know you will not regret looking for Dare's weekly fashion letter in The Sunday Washington Post every Sunday.

Wives of Tomorrow

—FRANCES M'DONALD—

Felix and His Girl Friends.

DEAR FRANCES M'DONALD: I have been a reader of your column for some time and I find it necessary to come to you for some advice myself.

I am a young fellow 19 years old, my only habit is smoking cigarettes. I never bothered about having a girl friend until about a year ago, before that I lived with relatives, but now that I have left that town, I am with strangers and I get very lonesome and felt I would like to get acquainted with a decent, respectable girl. I have found that they are hard to find.

There is a girl living close to me, whom I met. I was only in her home once, and her personal appearance turned me. I stayed away after that, but she started to come to my place. She has a regular friend. I told her I did not want to come between them. But she said he did not mean anything to her. She keeps coming to my house and also keeps seeing the one she claims means nothing to her. I told her I considered her nothing but a friend and gave her cool receptions, which did not stop her from calling in the least. About a month ago she asked me to marry her and still has her regular caller.

Do you think a sensible girl would ask a fellow to marry her? Or would she wait for the fellow to ask her?

She told me I was the one she wanted and that I was the one she is going to get, if she had to follow me everywhere I went. But she is sure to be at her home when her regular calls.

What do you think that girl takes me to be?

A friend gave me the name and address of a girl in another State, and I have been corresponding with her for about two months. I sent her my picture and she sent me hers. The girl is neat in appearance and writes a sensible letter, as they are not full of so-called "mush." This girl lives about 300 miles away and, if I go half way she will come the other half and meet so we can get acquainted and then one can see what the other is like.

This girl wants to know what I would like for my birthday present. She said she would get me anything, and I told her that I didn't want her to spend any money on me. Do you think it is right for a fellow to receive presents from a girl?

What would you advise me to do in my case. FELIX.

Well, Felix, you will never be lonesome again if the girls have anything to say about it! How true it is that we never do know when we are well-off! You would banish that lonesome feeling and now see what has happened already! One girl going to follow you around willy-nilly and get you whether you want her or not, and another coming 150 miles to see you—and start some more trouble for you!

Listen, Felix. Never consider any woman who asks you to marry her. So stop worrying over whether she still sees the other man or whether she dates the man in the moon. Even at 19 a man can protect himself from a forward girl if he wishes. And you had better start. Neither a sensible or intelligent girl proposes marriage.

As to the other girl. She, too, seems a bit of a go-getter. Funny, Felix, but if I were a man I would like a girl who let me come all the 300 miles. I would not like one little bit of help in getting myself married.

Calm yourself. Matrimony happens to the best of us, but no use to deliberately walk into it—and at 19! Watch your step. And take your time.

Culbertson on Contract

by Ely Culbertson

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

"INVENTION'S MOTHER."

"NECESSITY is the mother of invention," runs the time honored proverb.

It means that human nature is so constituted that it rarely provides for an unexpected contingency until lack of provision has demonstrated its need.

In the recent international team-of-four match at duplicate contract there appeared a void in bidding technic which one of Necessity's pretty children filled. The nice old lady rose to the occasion in fine fashion and gave birth to a new idea in attacking strategy in Contract Bridge.

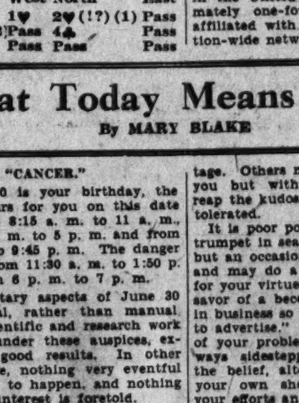
America was represented by Baron Waldemar von Zedtwitz, Theodore A. Lightner, Mrs. Culbertson and myself. England was represented by Col. H. M. Beasley, Sir Guy Domville, Capt. Kenneth Hogg and Mr. George Morris.

Duplication of values is the bane of many a well-bid Contract hand. Every player has found such cards as the A K Q of a suit in the hand of the Declarer, faced, in the supporting hand by a void in that suit. In such cases the three playing trick value of a void (with four trumps in the hand) becomes worthless. No matter how long in trumps the supporting hand may be, ability to trump losers in Declarer's hand becomes a frozen asset when the only thing that Dummy can trump is an unquestioned winner in its own right. These vanished bidding tricks may result in serious overvaluation of the combined hands, known to Contract payers as "duplication of values."

There are many hands, rich in playing tricks—assaying, possibly, to a count in excess of 13—the distribution of which is such that in play they may produce not more than 9 or 10. This is due to the structure of card games and particularly to the rules governing such games as Contract, which require a player to follow suit if he has a card of the suit led.

Knowledge of "duplication of values" is, therefore, requisite to sound partnership bidding. A method of showing a "duplication situation" was invented and first applied in this match. The hand which gave to an American the opportunity to display his brilliancy, was the following:

Neither Side Vulnerable.
South—Dealer.



The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♣	1♥	2♥ (!?) (1)	Pass
3♥ (!!!) (2)	Pass	4♣	Pass
5♣	Pass	Pass	Pass

Neither Side Vulnerable.
South—Dealer.

The bidding:

1—North's bid of two hearts over West's one heart bid showed his partner control of the heart suit. The bid could be interpreted as a slight encouragement to bid for Slam. However, the hand is perhaps a little too weak to justify Slam hopes.

2—This brilliant bid tells North that his void in hearts is of minor importance. Therefore, a Slam is improbable. Applying this information, North now gave all his Raises for the Club bid. So far as my knowledge goes, this was the first time that such a bid was made.

Contrast this result in the room where the American players were seated North and South (and thus controlled the bidding of this hand) with that where England's strongly individualistic players held the controlling cards. There the bidding on the same hand was:

South	West	North	East
1♣	Pass (1)	3♣	Pass
3NT	Pass	Pass (2)	Pass
Pass

1—Knowing the English predilection for notrump, West, who has a hand of sufficient honor and playing strength fully to justify an Overcall, passed, hoping that unaided by any information from the American players, England might land in the wrong bid. Such waiting, or Fabian tactics, are frequently the best defense in bidding, as well as in play. It is the mark of an expert to know when to bid and when to stop—particularly when to stop.

2—North's hand is altogether too freakish to justify his pass of his partner's game bid of three notrump, but the shrewd pass by West contributed to a misconception of the distribution of the hand and to the consequent disaster.

In the play five clubs was easily made, South losing only the club Ace and diamond King. Three notrump, however, proved an impossible task. One lead cleared the heart suit and West's two sure reentries permitted him to make four heart tricks, one diamond and one club.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"CANCER."

IF June 30 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8:15 a. m. to 11 a. m., from 3:10 p. m. to 5 p. m. and from 8:05 p. m. to 9:45 p. m. The danger hours are from 11:30 a. m. to 1:50 p. m. and from 6 p. m. to 7 p. m.

The planetary aspects of June 30 favor mental, rather than manual efforts. Scientific and research work will yield, under these auspices, exceptionally good results. In other walks of life, nothing very eventful is scheduled to happen, and nothing of exciting interest is foretold.

Children born on this June 30 will, after a normal infancy, develop fairly strong characters, become intelligent, although not necessarily intellectual, very painstaking and concentrative. Their dispositions will be cheerful, but they will view life as a serious undertaking and will never be flippant.

Born on June 30, you suffer from shyness, or, what is better known in these times, an inferiority complex. Although endowed by nature with much inherent ability, equipped with considerable intelligence as a result of hard study, and gifted with reasoning faculties, you always, when in the company of others, underrate yourself and do not show to advantage. Others much less capable than you but with more self-assurance, reap the kudos, whereas you are only tolerated.

It is poor policy to blow your own trumpet in season and out of season, but an occasional toot does no harm and may do a lot of good. Waiting for your virtues to be recognized may savor of a becoming modesty, but as in business so in private life, "it pays to advertise." The most serious part of your problem is that you are always sidestepping responsibility, as the belief, altogether unfounded, in your own shortcomings is sapping your efforts and causing mental stagnation.

You have it in you to go far. Your horoscope, however, indicates that if success should crown your work, you will only harvest your crop in later years. Your home will be a never-ending source of comfort and happiness, and so far as you are concerned will be the refuge to which you will always turn for solace and relief.

Successful people born June 30:

Harriet W. Sewall, poet.

William A. Wheeler, Vice President under Hayes.

Edward Burgess, yacht designer.

Walter Hampden, actor.

William E. Marshall, painter and engraver.

Washington Traits Described by Hart

Historian Reads Qualities of Patriot's Family by Ancestors.

Dr. Albert Bushnell Hart, historian of the Bicentennial Commission, in a lecture before his class at George Washington University yesterday, graphically portrayed the distinguished ancestry of Washington when he described the many military, political and ecclesiastical dignitaries in his family.

Dr. Hart based his lecture on data derived from a period of extensive travel and research in which he visited 215 places connected with the Washington family. Dr. Hart described the cradle of the Washington race as Durham, where the first Washington resided in the village of the same name in 1183. Dr. Hart eulogized George Washington as an excellent business man as well as a great soldier on account of his ancestry.

This is the first lecture of a series scheduled by the university on "George Washington and His Times." The remainder of the course will be conducted by Dr. William C. Johnstone, of the university faculty.

Girl Trespassers In Park Are Freed

Judge Tells Policeman to Nab Only Chronic Sign Violators.

Charges of walking across the grass in a park were dropped against two girl clerks of the Census Bureau yesterday in Police Court. The young women were Miss Margaret Rashaw, 20 years old, K street near Seventeenth street northwest, and Miss Irene Alvarez, 19 years old, Connecticut avenue near L street northwest.

Story told in court was that the girls were hurrying across a park to get to their offices on time when they were arrested by Park Policeman W. E. Riley. Charge was dismissed by Judge Isaac R. Hitt with suggestion that hereafter the park police issue warnings and arrest only chronic violators of trespassing signs.

The girls gave the names of Louise and Joan Mitchell when they were arrested. They explained this by saying that they were told that any old name would do.

LIBERIAN WOMEN ARE FORCED INTO HAREMS

men, many of them young and comely, that one sees around Liberian residences but who do not seem to be members of the family? Look beneath most of the ramshackle Liberian houses and even some of the "mansions" and wonder who lives in the close, windowless sheds that seem fit only for animal habitation.

Upon investigation it will be found, as I found, that these servitors, young and old, male and female, are certainly slaves or at best serfs. Most of them one sees receive no wages, only a comic collection of cast-off clothing and their food, which is none too plentiful. The little children in many cases are either the offspring of slave concubines, are pawns or youngsters who were handed over to Liberian families by trusting natives for the purpose of being educated, "learning book." Generally, these later, instead of receiving some schooling, are made the servants of their guardians' children and put to work around the house. They usually receive no reward, monetary or otherwise, for their years of service. Like the rest of the servants, they live in the sheds, under the houses or in some corner not in use.

The other retainers may have come into the service of their black masters in numerous ways. Perhaps they were in trouble of some kind and their masters got them off, claiming their services thereafter, or they were pawned to their masters by debtors, or they themselves started paying off a money debt to their masters with their services and can never seem to finish paying. The point is that they all are unpaid. Most of them have no other homes, are semi-civilized, detribalized and perhaps their relation with their masters might be termed a feudal one. They are supposed to be free and yet actually they are slaves.

Native Concubines.

As for the sometimes young and comely females one sees around many of the Liberian houses, it would not be correct to say that "they toil not neither do they spin." They do have their chores, but they are rather light ones. The real duty of these women is to act as supplementary wives to their masters. In brief, they are concubines. Mostly they are native women, either semi-civilized or just from the hinterland. Sometimes they have been bought, often they are pawns in payment of a debt and sometimes they have just grown up in the household. If there is any objection to them on the part of the Liberian wives, there is no audible complaint. It is just an old Liberian custom flourishing not only in the "metropolis," but in all of the counties and towns.

Notable men of the country have these slave-wives and are esteemed no less highly for it. The President has had one of these concubines for years and so have many of the highest government officials. If the custom is considered immoral by the nearby orthodox Liberian churchgoers (which means almost everybody) there has been no pronouncement against it from the pulpits of the land. Indeed, numbers of the clergy could not well denounce others for what they themselves are practicing. When former President C. D. B. King went to France and was met at the pier by an official welcoming committee, he was considerably embarrassed because the officer in charge found conveyance for every member of his party except his concubine, whom he had thoughtfully brought along. She was left standing on the wharf.

Some Go "Cave Man."

Sometimes rough and ready officials adopt cruder methods of getting slave-wives than the elite in Monrovia. Especially is this true back in the hinterland, where the natives are cowed and helpless and the outer world can not know what is going on. Despite native customs, tabus and so forth, a Liberian official will sometimes see a pretty young girl and just simply take her. Former District Commissioner David Carter, accused as the worst of the interior officials and now sitting in jail in Monrovia awaiting trial for murder and several other offenses, made, it is charged, a specialty of collecting native women, and sometimes had scores in his entourage. In at least one case, it is alleged, he seized a native man's wife, carried her off, installed her in his harem, later quarreled with her, beat her unmercifully and threw her out, reeking with disease, onto the public road to die. Former Director of Public Works John L. Morris had perhaps the largest collection of these slave-wives in Liberia, and still has a considerable number of them.

The little slave children the Monrovians have running around their houses and carrying their children's school books, do not by any means live an entirely carefree and happy existence. The Americo-Liberians do not believe in sparing the rod and spoiling the child. They are hard task masters, and if the little pawn does not do his or her chores then a whipping inevitably follows.

I was sitting one evening early in March on the veranda of the American Legation conversing with Mrs. C. E. Mitchell, wife of the American Minister. Suddenly from a house across the street came the most heartrending childish screams. Again and again they rose, punctuated by quite audible buffets and curses. Unable to stand it any longer, Mrs. Mitchell sent a legation messenger over to ask the family to please stop whipping the children as their screams were getting on her nerves. The messenger delivered his message and the screams ceased. I learned later that there were several children domiciled in the house, none of them the offspring of the family.

A few nights after this, Peter Davidson, manager of the banking department of the United States Trading Co. (a Firestone subsidiary), was awakened by childish screams which grew to such volume that he was forced to get out of bed and go to a nearby Liberian house and try to stop the punishment of the little children. When he arrived on the scene two of the young pawns were insensible from the beating they had received and a third was wailing pitifully in a corner. The whip-wielding Liberian was highly incensed at what he termed "this unwarranted intrusion."

"Ah!" explain high Liberian officials with charming naivete when these things have been brought to their attention, "former President King issued an emancipation proclamation in September, 1930, therefore pawning and domestic slavery are now illegal. The pawn has only to appear before a public officer and make a complaint that he is being held against his will and he is free."

Argument Is "Dry."

Hence, the evils reported above do not exist because officially outlawed. Your Liberian official is extremely legalistic and will argue for hours in this vein like an American Prohibitionist contending that the United States is dry because the Eighteenth amendment and Voldstead law are in operation.

The solicitor general of Liberia, Edward Summerville, hastens to explain with a certain note of satisfaction that the effect of the emancipation proclamation has not been exactly what reformers anticipated. He claims that many children who were in civilized persons' homes have taken advantage of the new law to leave and lead irresponsible lives. Women, too, says he, eager to rid themselves of unsatisfactory husbands, have availed themselves of this opportunity, and there are instances where such women have become public prostitutes. (Native wives are bought and sold.)

To those who know, these are merely crocodile tears and backhand praise of the good old customs now illegal but thriving right under the solicitor general's nose and of which he should certainly be aware. The new evils he and other Liberian officials pretend so to fear loom less large than the old ones which are still so widespread.

Edict Hit Mohammedans.

There is but one place in Liberia where the King emancipation proclamation seems to have wrought havoc and that is in the Vai country. The Vais are the most highly cultured of the Liberian aborigines. They are one of the two nations in West Africa having their own written language, the other group being in Nigeria. The Vais are chiefly Mohammedans and the work of the Christian missionaries has had little influence on them, as is true of the natives elsewhere in Liberia.

For centuries the Vais, who inhabit Grand Cape Mount County, have been agriculturists and reputedly wealthy, but their economic system has been based on chattel slavery. Naturally, when the emancipation proclamation was issued last September hundreds and thousands of their slaves took advantage of it and left. I have talked with some of these former Vai slaves and from what I could learn from them through interpreters, many of the Vai masters could have taken the laurels for cruelty from Simon Legree of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" fame.

Several weeks ago when I started on my tour of the hinterland, I first visited the Vai country and there saw concrete evidence that the loss of their slaves had seriously hurt them. They are not finding it at all easy to get out and do their own farm work. In many cases, large estates are going back to the bush for lack of labor to cultivate them. I noted that on several of these big clearings were thatch-roofed platforms on ten-foot stilts where the Vai overseers had formerly sat watching their slaves at work in the broiling sun and seeing that none sought to escape. It was with considerable amusement that I noticed the similarity of the laments of these black ex-slaveholders with those of their white brethren in our Southern States following the Civil War.

"Pawning" Undisturbed.

The Vais seem to be about the only ones in Liberia who have been hit by the new law. Beyond the county line, into what is called the hinterlands, the form of servitude called pawning is general and undisturbed. I have already shown that on the coast conditions exist much as of yore.

To sum up: Whereas hundreds of "boys" have been and may still be sent to Fernando Poo against their will and for a sizeable consideration which falls in the palms of Liberian officials and their associates, there are thousands of pawns and domestic slaves, toiling away in households and on farms, who get nothing but food and some castoff clothing for their labor, all along the coast in the so-called civilized section. Despite laws, nothing adequate is being done about it. Poorly p Liberian officials live in fine, if slightly nondescript, style, with troops of servants and concubines, whom they do not pay, to do their every bidding. The less fortunate of the ruling class, ever hoping for a political job, but marking time at farming, live similarly.

With the Liberian Constitution firmly forbidding slavery and with pawning outlawed, one is constrained in view of the facts to again ask, "When is a slave not a slave?"

APPENDICITIS FATALITIES.

It is up to the people to do something about appendicitis. This is one of the conclusions drawn from a study made by Frederick Hoffman.

The appendicitis death rate in 59 American cities in 1929 was 18. The same cities had a death rate of 13.3 in 1910. In other words, in nineteen years the appendicitis death rate of these cities went up nearly 50 per cent. The American city with the highest rate was Detroit. It came first with 20.1. Chicago had a rate of 19.5 and New York 15.5.

In comparison, in New York City, the diabetes death rate was 23.54; the automobile death rate was 17.25, and that due to measles, scarlet fever and whooping cough combined was 16.16. Appendicitis is in mighty bad company. Few diseases outrank it in the deaths it causes. A study of Canadian statistics shows that conditions are almost as bad there. In 1928 their appendicitis death rate was 14.6 and there is the same upward trend.

The study shows that men have about 30 per cent more fatal appendicitis than women. This covered appendicitis in some dozen European countries and to some lowly civilized peoples. Spain has the lowest European rate, Italy being a close second. Holland is third. Sweden, Scotland and Switzerland have the worst European rates, the last named being as bad off as were we 21 years ago.

On the other hand, primitive people almost escape it. Dr. Hoffman quotes Dr. W. Shrubshall as saying the Bantu natives in South Africa practically escape appendicitis. This freedom Dr. Shrubshall attributes to the diet and habits of these African Negroes. They go to the toilet three or four times a day. A man who pays only two visits a day regards himself as constipated and does something to correct matters. Their diet contains a great deal of roughening. They eat rough grains and breads made from coarsely ground grains and vegetable fiber. They are very fond of meat, but they seldom get a chance to eat any of it. When they do get meat they are likely to gorge.

Dr. Shrubshall follows his description of the diet with this statement: "These people do not suffer from appendicitis, and, moreover, are not afflicted with gall bladder affections." He thinks that some of the constipation habits of people in civilized lands are due to the comforts of the toilet seat.

RAYNAUD'S DISEASE.

L. K. writes: Will you write something on "white fingers?" During the warm weather I have no sign of it, but when I feel chilly or wash my hands in cold water the fingers turn white to the first joint. Sometimes one hand is affected and sometimes the other. At times three fingers are involved on one hand and one, two, or three on the other, and so on.

After the hands get warm again the whiteness disappears. This has occurred for three years now, in the fall, winter and spring.

REPLY.

The proper name for what you have is Raynaud's disease. This is a disturbing disorder, causing great inconvenience. Sometimes it is very serious.

THERE IS NO DANGER.

A. S. L. writes: Considerable anxiety has been aroused in our household over a report that aluminum vessels are poisonous, and that foods cooked therein absorb this poison, which is very harmful to some, while others are immune.

REPLY.

Your anxiety is unwarranted. Somebody is spending a lot of money frightening people on this subject, and for some reason or other there seems no way to stop these gallant scarecrows. The possibilities of poisoning in the way you mention have been investigated by several high class laboratories—official and non-official—and all reports are agreed that there is no danger.

I DON'T EXACTLY FOLLOW YOU, MR. OBLONG.
WELL SUPPOSE THE ACTUAL VALUE OF YOUR TRACT IS SEVEN MILLIONS. WE WOULD INCORPORATE FOR TWENTY MILLIONS, PUT THE TRACT IN AT ELEVEN MILLIONS, RAISE THE OTHER NINE MILLIONS CASH BY SELLING STOCK. YOU WOULD MAKE FOUR MILLIONS RIGHT THERE AND STILL OWN MORE THAN HALF THE STOCK, A CONTROLLING INTEREST.
YOU TALK IN BIG FIGURES. IT SEEMS TO ME THAT TO PUT THE TRACT IN AT ELEVEN MILLIONS WHEN IT IS WORTH SEVEN IS WATERING THE STOCK CONSIDERABLY.
DO YOU REALIZE, MR. WALLET THAT IF THIS WAS A STOCK JOBBING PROPOSITION THE TRACT WOULD BE VALUED AT TWENTY MILLIONS AND FIFTY MILLIONS IN STOCK SOLD? MY ENGLISH CLIENTS ARE HARD HEADED SUBSTANTIAL MEN AND THIS IS A CONSERVATIVE PROPOSITION.
NOT ONLY THAT, BUT COMPETENT OPERATION WOULD PRODUCE ENORMOUS DNIDENDS ON YOUR ELEVEN MILLIONS AND DOUBLE AND TREBLE THE VALUE OF THE PROPERTIES AND OF YOUR STOCK.

NOTABLES ADDRESS AFFAIRS INSTITUTE

Varied Topics Discussed at Fifth Annual Session in Charlottesville.

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., June 29.—An address on American politics and public administration by Dr. William B. Munro, of the California Institute of Technology, Pasadena; discussion of agricultural conditions in southeastern States by Carl Vrooman, of Bloomington, Ill., former Assistant Secretary of Agriculture; a critical study of municipal and local government by Charles P. Messick, chief examiner and secretary of the New Jersey Civil Service Commission, and round table talks on law enforcement, Latin-American relations and religious education in the rural church featured the opening day of the fifth annual session of the Institute of Public Affairs at the University of Virginia.

The institute was formally opened tonight with exercises in the McIntire Amphitheater. Welcoming addresses were delivered by Gov. John Garland Pollard and by Dean John Lloyd Newcomb, acting president of the university. Dr. Charles G. Maphis, director of the institute, presided.

Despite recent disclosures of corruption in political life and mismanagement in public administration, especially in the administration of the great cities, there is a silver lining, said Dr. Munro.

Election Improvements Seen.

Hopeful signs pointed out by Dr. Munro were: An increase in the fairness and dignity of elections, a greater insistence on honesty in public office, public interest in governmental economy, the improvements in the technique of public administration, and an increase in the number and effectiveness of citizen organizations. A dozen others could be added in the list, said the speaker. If any one feels discouraged with the progress made he may well ask himself what has been accomplished in other countries since the closing of the World War, he said. The whole world has been struggling against an adverse current and America has made better progress than any of them, and the wonder is that this country did not suffer more damage to its political standards during the years 1923-29, the speaker held.

Sporadic instances of dishonesty and malfeasance are discouraging, said Dr. Munro, but should not lead to the conclusion that rottenness has eaten all the way to the core. People are too much in the habit of judging their politics by isolated examples of wrongdoing, when, as a matter of fact, they ought to keep a debit and credit side to the ledger.

"A good deal of the trouble arises from the fact that American business is so efficient on the whole. Every nation has its special genius and the genius of the United States is for business organization and business efficiency. Public administration ought not to be strictly measured by the yardstick of business efficiency. The criterion of commerce can not be rigidly applied to governmental functions."

Need of "Time Off" Reform.

"Public Personal Administration and Good Government," was the topic treated tonight by Mr. Messick. Whether it be measured in terms of costs, in numbers, in quality or in its relation to better government, the effective handling of the public personnel remains the most important unsolved problem in the whole field of government, said the speaker.

Pointing out that the public as an employer pays its workers something like $500,000,000 a year when they may be absent from their duties or on account of illness, Mr. Messick contended that ordinary business prudence demands that when the welfare of millions of people is at stake and hundreds of millions of dollars are being spent, there should be a definite procedure governing vacations and leaves for the whole public service, and administrative machinery provided to see that procedure is observed.

Mr. Vrooman, discussing the present economic collapse as it affects agriculture, declared that if the country is to find a way back to normalcy before the people are driven to seek safety in dangerous demagogic or despotic panaceas, it is apparent that the patriotic elements of all classes and of all political parties will have to sacrifice their partisanship and declare a political "truce of God" in order to mobilize the spiritual resources of the Nation behind a constructive emergency program of economic rehabilitation.

"Superman" Held Not Needed

In a crisis like this no superman is either available or necessary, said Mr. Vrooman. There are no great difficulties or ogres barring the way back to sanity and prosperity. "We are richer in every form of material wealth than any other nation ever was," he said. "We are more efficient both individually and in industrial mass action than any other nation. Our only serious difficulties are mental, emotional and spiritual—in other words, our disorders are in the realm of character."

At the round table on law enforcement, Bruce Smith, of the Institute of Public Administration, New York, replied to the topic query, "Do Police Protect the Public?"

"For the moment our economic concerns bulk somewhat larger in the popular mind than questions of crime and criminal justice," said Mr. Smith. "When our economic ills have finaly been adjusted, however, the problems of crime and criminality will return to a leading position as matters of public concern. When that itme comes our police administrators would do well to be prepared with a definite, clear-cut plan for the reorganization of our police machinery, and the imposition of that deterrent influenece which real police protection can be made to afford. Any thoroughgoing proposal will probably result in breaking down many of the artificial boundaries to police jurisdiction which now exist. The unit of police administration may in time leap over narrow municipal limits or even county lines and be extended so as to include entire regions.

Latin-American Relations.

Dr. Paul Vanarden Shaw, of Columbia University, and Earle K. James, editor of Chile, New York City, spoke on "Latin-American Relations." The former asked that the people of this country develop a more tolerant view of the political technique and customs of other people. Mr. James made a plea that the United States aid present Latin-American countries in distress. The foreign policy opinion recently expressed by Norman Davis as to recognition of revolutionary governments was criticized as inexact and unwise, and the opinion expressed that the revolts in Latin-American countries are efforts to amalgamate two streams of culture, particularly in regard to political structure, emergence from agrarianism into industrialism, educational readjustment, labor legislation and consolidation of nationality.

At the round table on religious education, the Rev. C. C. Haun, of Vanderbilt University, and Dr. George T. Waite, executive secretary, Virginia Baptist Board of Missions and Education, Richmond, Va., spoke on the need for religious education in rural areas.

Americans Aiding Revolt in Zionism

Leadership of Weizmann Issue in Convention at Basle.

Basle, June 29 (A.P.).—The Jewish Telegraphic Agency said today that the 258 delegates to the seventeenth Zionist congress, which opens tomorrow, were attempting to establish coalitions pledged for or against Dr. Chaim Weizmann, whose leadership and policies are bound up with all the problems facing the congress.

Of the delegates the General Zionists or Centrists have 87; the Laborites, 80; the Revisionists, 50; the Mizrachi, or Orthodox Zionists, 34, and the Radicals, 7.

The General Zionists were reported sharply divided on the question of Dr. Weizmann's leadership. A majority of their 87 delegates, including most of the Americans of the present administration, known as the Brandeis group, were seeking a coalition of all parties including the Revisionists, the opposition to the Weizmann regime, but eliminating Dr. Weizmann and his supporters.

If the American program is acceptable to the other General Zionists the American delegation will formulate more definite proposals.

Cuban Rail Builder Loses Suit Verdict

Charles J. Harrah Must Pay $35,000 on Claim of McCormick.

Charles J. Harrah, pioneer Cuban railroad builder, will have to pay Edgar W. McCormick $35,000 for preparing data upon which Harrah secured from the Cuban government $350,000 for confiscation of railroad properties in 1917.

Cuban award was paid to the United States Treasury and McCormick had sued to compel the proper government agencies to pay him the 10 per cent his contract specified he should get in the event an award was made by Cuba. McCormick was a civil engineer.

Walter Fletcher Smith, a Cuban landowner, who also sued for a portion of the award, did not fare so well for the Court of Appeals ruled that he was too late in filing his papers. Smith wanted compensation because the railroad that was confiscated ran through his property and lessened its value. He did not bring suit until fourteen years afterward, and then only when the Cuban government settled the case with Harrah for $350,000.

MIDSUMMER ESCAPE LEADS TO WOODLAND

Post Colony on Two Coves of South River Spells Heat Haven.

Now that midsummer has gripped the Capital, the thoughts of every one are turned to nearby places where water and all the other elements necessary for comfort both day and night are to be found.

Woodland Beach, The Washington Post's summer home development site on South River, in Maryland, holds the answer for all those who desire such a place. Its popularity is attested by the fact that hundreds of Washingtonians already are listed as lot owners at this fine piece of country property.

Other hundreds have visited the place and are making plans to join the happy family at the Beach. Scores of lot owners have decided they might as well enjoy this summer in comfort rather than wait until next year, and are busy erecting their cottages on property they have purchased.

Many choice locations on the two coves of the South River are still available to those who act quickly. Every day sees the list of lot owners increase, and as all lots are disposed of on the basis of first come, first served, the chance to get a fine location diminishes with each day's delay.

Remember that the price of lots at Woodland Beach is such that you need not fear an undue strain on the family finances. All lots are priced alike—at $93; and of this amount only $9, plus the cost of a subscription to The Washington Post, need be paid when you select your lot. The remainder of the amount may be paid each month at the rate of $3.50 per month.

Cool nights and days lounging along the banks of the river. Cooler nights and days spent in it. Happy family picnics and parties in shaded cottages. Children romping along the water or through the woods. No traffic noises.

It is a picture that appeals to every one. Woodland Beach, just 32 miles away, presents just that picture and you are invited to become a part of it. Drop in today and learn all the details of the Beach proposition before it is too late and you regret it.

Church Fete Aided By 'Two-Gun Man'

Treasury Guard Among Many Volunteers at St. Gabriel's.

A "two-gun man," who lays his pistols aside every afternoon and becomes an ardent church worker, is one of the anomalies boasted by the St. Gabriel's grounds committee, making preliminary arrangements for a two-week carnival at the church beginning July 6.

He is J. E. Daily, the guard who accompanies millions of new dollars transported yearly from the Bureau of Engraving and Printing and the Treasury Department to Washington banks. James Butler, who earns his living making greenbacks at the bureau, is also on the committee.

ther members of the grounds committee who volunteer their time to erect the structures necessary for the carnival, include James W. Gessford, Edward T. White, O. J. Viehmyer and Edward Meehan. The carnival will open with a parade and will feature an exhibit of industrial and household equipment.

STONE SEES ELASTIC WHEAT POLICY NEED

Farm Board Chief Prefers Latitude in Decision When to Sell.

(Associated Press)

Chairman Stone of the Farm oard prefers an elastic policy on he disposition of stabilization wheat o meet the demands of an ever-hanging market.

He indicated this yesterday, while he Board, in response to requests om President Hoover, members of ongress and numerous private citi-ens, was considering a change in olicy.

Many grain men have urged that he Board pledge itself not to sell r fixed and announced period, any art of the 200,000,000 bushels of heat held by the National Grain tabilization Corporation.

Stone said that under its present olicy of selling wheat when market onditions are favorable, the Board ad not engaged in "dumping" ac-tivities and that none was contem-lated. A more rigid policy, he added, ight prove ruinous.

President Hoover's "suggestion" hat policy be reconsidered was ade Saturday. Stone expects to eply tomorrow.

Vice-President Curtis at Topeka, ans., yesterday asked the Board to old the wheat until the price had eached 85 cents or $1.

Stone said millers would need heat until the new spring crop eaches the market, about the mid-le of August. They are now buy-ng from the Grain Stabilization orporation.

George S. Milnor, president and eneral manager of the Grain Sta-ilization Corporation of Chicago, rrived yesterday and went into a ng conference with Stone and ther Board members.

Stone revealed that many millers nd growers had dispatched tele-rams in support of the Board's resent policy.

Fred Brenckman, Washington rep-esentative of the National Grange, aid the Grange favored a pledge of on-sale for a year and that its rive for adoption of the export de-enture farm relief plan would be enewed in the next Congress.

The announcement of a new pol-cy, Stone said, probably would re-uce United States exports this ear, if it had the effect of raising omestic prices above world levels. nder such conditions, he said, a urther surplus might be piled up n this country.

He predicted an agreement to hold heat would have the effect of ex-ending the influence of stabiliza-ion operations for the benefit of inter wheat growers at the expense f spring wheat farmers in the orthwest.

McCormick Heads Chest Group.

Vance C. McCormick, of Harrisburg, a., yesterday was named chairman f the special committee of the Na-ional Association of Chests and ouncils, which will assume imme-iate responsibility for the Nation-ide welfare and relief mobilization he organization has undertaken. ewbold Noyes, of this city, was ap-ointed to the committee.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

THE boys and girls in show business seem to be getting along all right! The first page of the June 27 issue of The New York Review, a theatrical journal published every Saturday, bears the following headlines:

"John Steel is up on alimony charges."

"Anna Chandler, vaudeville actress, is suing Lester Lee for a separation."

"Flo Goldenburg is sued for divorce by Bradford Hatton, actor."

"Seek Jack Kearns on alimony charge."

"Claire Rae, film actress, suing for separation."

"Josephine Dunn is given $75 alimony."

"Pauline Starke granted a decree for mental cruelty."

"Ukulele Ike (Cliff Edwards) is given divorce and canine pet."

Ain't love grand!

There can no longer be any argument about the progress of the movies. They have now reached a point where Nature isn't good enough and her duties have been taken over by the studio technical staffs.

For instance, the rain scenes for Joan Crawford's production of "Laughing Sinners," the camera version of "Torch Song," now at the Palace, had to be postponed on account of showers!

Harry Beaumont had directed practically all of the night rain scenes with mechanical sprinkler equipment when a real California downpour descended and made it necessary for the company to lay off until the moon came out and they could make their own cloudburst.

And if Mr. Lundy thinks I believe that one, he's crazy.

Speaking of Mr. Lundy reminds me that his predecessor as ink-splasher-in-chief for the loewcal Loew interests, Mr. Sam Rubin, now of Detroit, was a caller yesterday.

Mr. Rubin, more cherubic and more sunburned than usual, drove in from that town across from Windsor Sunday night and is leaving this morning for Atlantic City, whence in due course he will proceed to Winthrop, Mass., as his farthest east on this midsummer vacation jaunt. He still insists that he hates Detroit and that what ales him is that he has never been across the river into Ontario—but you know what lyre-birds these press agents are!

Tonight the Arts Club of Washington is presenting a "Dramatic Potpourri" under the direction of Mrs. Maude Howell Smith. Among those who will take part are Louise Irwin and Clifford Brooke, of the National Theater Players, in a dramatic skit; Marjorie Webster in original readings and pantomimes; the Misses Judy Lyeth, Martha Fisher, Betty Sleeper and Ruth Shoemaker in a part of the Gypsy Dance that was recently presented in the Sylvan Theater in the Drama Guild's production of "The Piper;" Mrs. J. Milnor Dorey in piano selections; Helen Carter, violin solos, and Dr. S. L. Christie, songs.

Sunday evening proofreading being what it is, I suppose it is not surprising that the celtic Mr. George M. Cohan appeared in yesterday's column as an hebraic Mr. Cohen. Having followed his career almost from the days of his violin virtuosity as a juvenile prodigy, I flatter myself that I am aware of the spelling of the Yankee Doodle comedian's celebrated patronymic, but apparently there be those about the diggings who aren't. Genuflections all around. And beside that, a paragraph is a paragraph!

Genevieve Tobin, the usually charming actress who isn't quite so perfect in "Up for Murder" as she was in "Seed," in addition to being a pianist, harpist and dancer, designs most of her own gowns, and if you don't care about that, you're certainly hard to please in hot weather.

Eddie Cantor, now in Hollywood, will sail within the next few weeks for an extended tour of Europe, during which he will make personal appearances in London, Berlin, Paris, Vienna and Rome in connection with the showing of his second talking picture, "Palmy Days," just completed as a Samuel Goldwyn production for United Artists. Charlotte Greenwood appears opposite the nervous comic.

This announcement is interpreted as meaning a complete nullification of the rumors that the goggle-eyed funster planned a return to the Broadway stage this summer.

The membership of Waring's Pennsylvanians, currently packing them in at the Palace, will be present at Griffith Stadium come Sunday, to see what the Nationals are going to do about it, but will not take their instruments with them—and thereby hangs a tale.

On a distant previous visit to the Capital, Fred and his boys thought it would be a pretty compliment to Clark Griffith and Walter Johnson to toot a few tunes for them while the boys were warming up out there on that diamond. So they did.

But it seems that Mr. Griffith had not been in the habit of hiring union bands to regale his customers and the officials of the musicians' local therefore deemed the Pennsylvanians to have deprived the resident instrumentalists of twenty-odd employment opportunities—which is their slang for jobs. The penalty was a fine of $1,200—and that ain't turnip greens!

So I doubt if you will be able to shake even so much as a mouth organ out of the whole twenty-odd, come Sunday!

By the way, I wonder what kind of a season they're having down at Hains Point?

Woodridge School Bid Of Rose Company Low

AIR TORPEDO DEVICE HELD UNPATENTABLE

Court of Appeals Reverses $198,500 Judgment Admiral Won.

The District Court of Appeals decided yesterday that the "amazement" with which Rear Admiral Bradley A. Fiske viewed the issuance to him of a patent on plans and specifications for an apparatus that would enable airplanes to launch torpedoes was "justified" and that "a dream, like an idea, is not an invention and can not be patented until embodied in a physical contrivance making it practically useful."

The Appellate Court was called to pass on a $198,500 judgment given Admiral Fiske against Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of naval aeronautics, for alleged infringement of the patent. The District Supreme Court ruled that the Navy had infringed upon Admiral Fiske's idea and should pay.

An appeal was noted by the Government and the record showed that Admiral Fiske expressed amazement at the ease with which he was given a patent. He said that his idea was only a dream.

The Appellate Court set aside the award and incidentally declared the idea was not patentable. The court found that the idea was developed when airplanes could hardly arise from the ground, let alone carry a 1-ton torpedo. The court also remarked that Fiske had seen only two flimsy airplanes in flight when his idea was originated and that his work was a result of technical study for the Government and as such the Government would have vested right in his patent if it were a patent.

ATTORNEYS ATTACK SERVICE ON O'BRIEN

Mayflower Counsel Assert He Is Not Authorized to Accept Summons.

A motion to quash the service of a summons on Daniel J. O'Brien, managing director of the Mayflower Hotel, on the grounds that at the time of service he was not, and is not now, an officer of Mayflower, Inc., a Delaware corporation, was filed in the District Supreme Court by attorneys for the Mayflower Hotels Corporation, who are fighting a petition recently filed that would have the hotel thrown into receivership.

Another of the reasons assigned in the motion to quash the summons is that while Mr. O'Brien is president of the Mayflower Hotels Corporation of America, he is not authorized to accept service of summons on behlf of Mayflower, Inc., in "this cause or any cause whatsoever."

The motion to quash was filed by Attorneys William J. Hughes, jr., Edmund D. Toland and William E. Leahy. The service of the summons was in the petition of Mabel Walker Willebrandt, who, representing five men, filed an amended bill last week seeking to have receivers appointed for the hotel and also to have Charles C. Moore, trustee of the $2,400,000 second trust, removed as trustee.

The Mayflower, Inc., is one of five corporations named as defendants in the petition. The others are the Mayflower Hotel Co., Mayflower Hotel Corporation of America, Mayflower Hotels Management Corporation and the American Bond & Mortgage Co.

It was learned that 5,400 additional temporary employes of the bureau will be released within the year, as the statistical work is brought to completion. Twenty employes of the Shipping Board, who have been on leave with pay since June 1, also will be dropped today. They were given notice last March.

OWNERS SUE RIVAL OF SCRATCH SHEET

Massey and Byrne Charge Armstrong Threats to Newsdealers.

Robert A. Massey, of the Harrington Hotel, and Thomas Byrne, of Alexandria, Va., publishers of Massey's Scratch Sheet, a publication giving data on horse races, yesterday filed suit for $100,000 against Henry T. Rodier, William Armstrong and the William Armstrong Publishing Co., charging that they had conspired to wreck the Massey sheet.

The suit, filed by Attorneys Benjamin L. Tepper and Samuel M. Boyd, alleged that the defendants had conspired to threaten news dealers and others if they sold or handled the Massey sheet, which, the suit asserts, was a reliable source of information for race track followers.

The declaration of the suit charges that from April, 1931, on, the defendants carried on a general opposition to the Massey sheet by threatening to boycott any one who handled the rival publication. The defendants publish a similar sheet, it was disclosed.

Masons Will Invite Hoovers to Service

Worshipful Masters Plan Special Meeting in September.

President and Mrs. Hoover will be invited as guests of the Worshipful Masters Association at special services at Temple Heights in September, the association voted in a meeting last night at the Hotel Hamilton.

The association formerly entertained Mr. Coolidge, when he was President, at Temple Heights services. President and Mrs. Hoover were invited last year, but the visit of Ramsay MacDonald, British prime minister, forced cancellation of plans.

C. Fred Cook, grand master of Masons of the District and an honorary member of the association, was a guest at last night's meeting. John M. Littlepage, president, and Webster Manning, vice president, attended the session.

UNION AGENT LOSES APPEAL OVER WRIT

Appellate Bench Holds Fish Did Not Seek Remedy Within Local.

Because he had failed to exhaust remedies within his own organization, the appeal of Henry E. Fish for an injunction against the late Arthur M. Huddell as general president of the International Union of Operating Engineers, to prevent his suspension as a business agent of the local union was denied by the Court of Appeals yesterday.

The District Supreme Court ruled against Fish and he carried the case to the Court of Appeals, which affirmed the action of the lower court in dismissing the Fish petition for an injunction. Both courts declared Fish had ample remedy under the laws and regulations of the union and that he should have exhausted those remedies before appealing to the courts.

Fish sued for an injunction on the ground that he was dismissed from his position summarily, and was also suspended from the union for a year, thus being deprived of his means of earning a living. He said that he did not seek a remedy in the union because Huddell dominated its affairs and an appeal to him would have been futile.

Huddell died recently from heart disease. He and two other union officials were shot at by a gunman while they were dining in a lunchroom opposite the union headquarters. A notebook in Huddell's pocket kept the bullet that hit him from penetrating his chest.

Drownings of This Year Exceed Those of 1930

Drownings this year have shown a slight increase over the first six months of last year, Health Officer William C. Fowler said yesterday. There have been 17 in District of Columbia waters since January 1, whereas last year there were 13 during the same period.

The greatest number of drownings ordinarily occur during the vacation months of July and August, although June is also above the average.

Lawyer Denies Guilt As Stolen Bond Holder

New York, June 29 (A.P.).—Franklin P. Ferguson, lawyer and broker, who gave the Harvard Club, in this city, as his address, pleaded not guilty to an indictment charging him with criminally receiving part of the securities obtained by seven thugs last September in the $1,200,000 holdup of the Lincoln National Bank at Lincoln, Neb. Judge John J. Freschi continued Ferguson's bail of $5,000 to await trial.

Ferguson said he received the bonds in good faith and denied he knew they had been stolen.

Miss Skinner Returns After British Triumph

New York, June 29.—(A.P.).—Cornelia Otis Skinner came back today from England, where she made staid Britishers sit up and take notice by impersonating the six wives of Henry VIII, all in one afternoon.

One of Miss Skinner's performances was given at a charity matinee in the great hall of the old Knole Castle in Trent. Using Tudor costumes, old Tudor music and lights, she portrayed the six wives in dramatic sketches of her own composition. Miss Skinner was accompanied by her father, Otis Skinner, actor.

NATS BOW TO CHISOX AGAIN AS MACKS ALSO LOSE

Blake Named Title Bout Referee

Pilot of La Barba Given Post at Cleveland.

Rates High as Expert; Stribling Still 7-5 Choice.

By EDWARD J. NEIL.

CLEVELAND, June 29 (A.P.).—Cleveland's five-man boxing commission today climaxed a series of arguments that have been vieing in heat for days with the weather by choosing George Blake, of Los Angeles, to referee Max Schmeling's fifteen-round heavyweight title defense against Bill Stribling in the Municipal Stadium Friday night.

Ever since the championship match was allocated to Cleveland the commission had struggled with the problem of finding a local man capable of doing the job or settling upon an outside official satisfactory to both warriors. Today the choice narrowed down to Tommy McGinty, proprietor of a local race track, fight manager and promoter, and Blake, who manages Fidel La Barba. After a short, final argument, Blake was named unanimously.

Considered Nation's Best Referee.

The commissioners reached Blake by telephone in Los Angeles and he informed them he would leave by train tonight for Chicago and fly from there to Cleveland Thursday in plenty of time for the fight. Blake has long been noted as a referee on the Pacific Coast. Among the experts he is considered the Nation's outstanding referee.

The commission also announced late today that a substitute referee and two judges would be chosen immediately, but that their names would not be made known until Schmeling and Stribling are in the stadium ring Friday night.

Settling of the referee controversy stole the fight spotlight from Schmeling and Stribling as the athletes loafed about their training camps. The champion had a day of rest at Conneaut Lake, where he plans to box tomorrow and Wednesday, while Stribling tried to keep out of the sizzling heat at his camp on Geauga Lake. The Georgia challenger will box tomorrow night for the last time before the fight.

All Seats Give Fine View of Ring.

The Cleveland faithful began to show increased interest in their new municipal stadium today and hundreds who have purchased tickets visited the huge concrete and steel oval on the Lake Erie shore to ferret out their seats and find out how well they had fared at the hands of the Madison Square Garden ticket sellers. Despite the size of the structure, seating 94,000 for the inaugural sporting event, almost every seat in the stadium carries with it a fine view of the ring.

Adding a bit of color to the scene, Bill Carey, president of the New York Madison Square Garden, was host at a luncheon to sports writers and Garden officials and he had the cold cuts and salads served in the ring where the heavyweight champion and his challenger will square off about 9 p. m. (Eastern standard time) the night before the Fourth.

With the fighters ready to battle now but for a few polishing licks, what little betting there is on the match favored Stribling at about 7 to 5. Both are in splendid condition. Schmeling probably will have a slight weight advantage as he expects to scale 189 pounds to Stribling's 186.

Londos Beats Steele After An Hour

Retains Title Before 40,000 by Double-Arm Lock.

YANKEE STARIUM, New York, June 29 (U.P.).—Jim Londos, the might man of Greece, successfully retained what he pleases to call the "heavyweight wrestling championship of the world" by defeating Ray Steele, of California, in a bout scheduled for the finish here tonight.

Actually, Londos is recognized as the title holder in but two States—New York and Pennsylvania.

The struggle, which came to a dramatic close after one hour nine minutes and twelve seconds, was watched by the largest crowd in the history of wrestling and marked the climax of the mat games' sensational comeback in the last two years.

There were something like 40,000 customers in the stands when the two principals climbed through the ropes. It was estimated that the box office total would reach $115,000. Twenty-five per cent will be turned over to the New York Milk Fund, sponsors of the match.

Londos, although outweighed by 11 pounds and considerably shorter than his foe, was in front all the way and never was in danger of losing. Once they hit the mat after some five minutes of wary sparring, the Greek took command and forced Steele to take the defensive.

Hans Steinke, 240, Germany, and Richard Shikat, 218, Philadelphia, drew in 30 minutes.

Jim McMillen, 215, Chicago, drew with Sandor Szabo, 205, Hungary, in 30 minutes.

Van Ryn Eliminated in Singles Play at Wimbledon.

Shields and Borotra to Clash; Wood to Meet Perry.

LONDON, June 29 (A.P.).—Two American youngsters, seeking the title William Tatem Tilden 2d renounced to follow professional trails, won their way to the semifinals of the Wimbledon tennis championships today, along with a battle-scarred Frenchman and a London player no older than themselves.

The four semifinalists are Frank X. Shields and Sidney B. Wood, jr., the singles stars of America's youthful Davis Cup team; Jean Borotra, the darling of Paris, and Fred Perry, Laborite member of British tennis circles. They will play Wednesday.

The possibility of another all-America final such as last year when Tilden defeated Wilmer Allison for the title thus asserts itself as Shields and Wood are in different halves of the draw.

Shields-Borotra Match Is Topic.

The probability, however, is something less as Borotra stands in the way of Shields while Perry, whose rise to front rank has been almost meteoric, bars Wood's path to the finals.

The gossip of Wimbledon tonight was whether the flashes of form Shields showed in defeating H. W. (Bunny) Austin in five sets, 6—3, 2—6, 5—7, 7—5, 6—1, will give him victory over the Basque of Biarritz, who has been playing at Wimbledon more years than Shields has been playing tennis.

The American youngster defeated Borotra in straight sets in their only meeting this year—in New York in March—but that was indoors and it is admitted Shields must be at his top to beat the Frenchman as he played today in winning from the little Japanese star, Jiro Satoh. Observers were agreed that Borotra seldom had looked better than he did in trimming the cool little Oriental, 6—2, 6—3, 4—6, 6—4.

Wood appeared to advantage in winning from G. P. Hughes, 4—6, 6—4, 6—3, 6—1, but he will have to play better to down the Perry who won from John Van Ryn in straight sets, 6—4, 8—6, 7—5.

Women Hold Stage Today.

While the men take a rest tomorrow, the women will play off their quarter-final matches in singles with the feature bringing Helen Jacobs, of Berkeley, Calif., against Betty Nuthall, the American champion.

Miss Nuthall won her quarter-final bracket with a straight set victory over Mrs. L. A. Harper Saturday and is the favorite to defeat Miss Jacobs, who has not been playing in good form so far.

Shields and Wood also will play in doubles, on the center court tomorrow, meeting Ian G. Collins and J. G. Gregory in a quarter-final match, and George Lott, jr., and Van Ryn will play Baron de Kehrling and H. W. Artens in a fourth-round contest.

Mme. Rene Mathiew, France, will play Peggy Scriven, young English girl, and Doorthy Round will meet Fraulein Krahwinkel in other quarter-final matches of women's singles. The fourth quarter-final match, between Cilli Aussem and Miss Payot.

More than 20,000 persons packed the stands around the center and the number 1 courts to witness the semifinal matches today.

Recovery Seen Likely For Betty Robinson

Chicago, Ill., June 29 (A.P.).—Miss Betty Robinson, who at 16 won international fame in the 1928 Olympic games, was winning a race for life tonight, but injuries she suffered in an airplane crash Sunday have ended her athletic career.

The 19-year-old sprint star lay semiconscious in the Oak Forest Infirmary, her left thigh shattered and her left arm broken.

"She has good chances for recovery, but it is hardly posible she will ever run again," an infirmary physician said after an X-ray examination.

HEAT BALKS DRILL FOR U. S. OPEN

Title Aspirants Duck for Showers on Hot Inverness Links.

By PAUL MICKELSON.

TOLEDO, Ohio, June 29 (A.P.).—Except for the few brave and reckless, a stifling, sultry heat wave today forced rivals in the approaching national open golf championship to abandon their serious drills over the Inverness battle grounds.

Ice packs, shower baths, and shade trees were more in demand than birdies and pars.

The mercury mounted to 94 degrees, and an early morning rain made the air so heavy, sultry and oppressive that virtually all the contestants on hand swung a few clubs, played a few holes and then beat a retreat for cooler spots.

Espinosa's Putter Gets Red Hot.

Abe Espinosa, the golfing toreador from Chicago, contributed the high spot of the concentrated, verbal attack on the weather when he dashed through the locker room, exhibiting a putter.

"Just look at this putter," Abe shouted. "I was practicing on the putting green and it got so hot that I burned my fingers when I touched the blade. I had to duck it into a pail of water."

From that time on, stories of the weather became so numerous "and doubtful" that reporters ducked for cover.

Because of the sultry heat, most of the recognized "big shots" of the COMISKEY PARK, Chicago, Ill., June 29.—Manager Walter Johnson and his charges entrained tonight for St. Louis, where they open a four-game series with the Browns tomorrow in the final set of this second Western invasion. The stop here was not particularly pleasant, for not only was the weather a record breaker with respect to heat but the White Sox looked like anything but last place opponents, winning three of the five games played.

And the jump to St. Louis holds out just as little promise to the Nationals, for the weather there is reported to be just as scorching as it has been here, while the Browns have been playing super ball, having won all but one of their last thirteen games, including ten straight.

Last season, the Browns, although finishing well down in the race, proved to be the only team to beat the Nationals on the season's play, but so far this year the Capital City team has dropped but one contest in eight starts. Carl Fischer, the Nats' best pitcher, will draw the mound assignment tomorrow. He will be seeking his tenth victory. George Blaeholder is expected to get the call from Pilot Bill Killefer.

Third Baseman Ossie Bluege took time off this morning to pay the $10 fine slapped on him by Umpire Brick Owens for too strongly expressing his opinion of the arbiter's judgment and eye-sight in last Friday's game. The Nat infielder thought Owen was "kiddin'" until he received a notice from league headquarters last night advising him that he would be suspended today unless he paid the fine.

The first and second innings ended for the Nats with players being

Bar at Hollenden, Famed Landmark, Now Profaned By Strawberry Sundaes

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

CLEVELAND, Ohio., June 29.—The train arrived in Cleveland at 3:45 p. m. and I went straight to the Hollenden which is one of those old ball-club hotels with the bar still preserved, a magnificent cherrywood piece with rolling curves reminiscent of the era when furniture and ladies were inclined to billow.

The back-bar mirror is still in place, too, and at this time of the year, back there before Volstead, there would have been a beautiful soap painting on it done by some itinerant artist who would have received 50 cent or four drinks of bar whisky for the same.

This bar is one of the few old hotel bars remaining in place but it might better have gone the way of the old Waldorf bar in New York which was ripped out and sold to come millionaire who loved it for its association with the past and wished to give it a good home. No strawberry sundae ever profaned the wood where Garry Hermann and Ban Johnson opened wine at the old meetings of the National Commission, but this Hollenden bar has been used as a soda fountain all these years since prohibition, with soda water sputtering and gasping in ignorant accents up through the old spigots which used to give quiet, gentlemanly Pilsner and Muenchener.

Press Headquarters Recalls Old Times.

The telephone operator said the offices of the headquarters for the Schmeling-Stribling fight was upstairs in room 468, but there was no room 468 on the fourth floor and after a long time a bellboy explained that 468 was up in the tower. I remembered the tower; I had been up there for breakfast with Matt Hinkel one morning during the Republican convention several years ago. Mr. Hinkel was a prize-fight promoter and referee. When he let me into his room he was dressed in a vast pair of those rompers which chorus girls call their practice clothes, with a big, pink jiggly fold of meat dangling over the waistband.

"I am just taking my regular morning work," Mr. Hinkel said, giving his biceps a twitch and trying to control the soft undulations of this dew-lap over the belt.

"He is a liar," said a quiet voice from beneath the covers of the other twin bed. "This is all an act to impress you so that you will write something in the papers about Matt Hinkel, the well-preserved man. This workout is his first in fifteen years and he will be laid up in bed from it tomorrow."

The covers then upheaved, revealing the innocent, impudent altar-boy countenance of Ray Campbell, the most precocious kid I ever met in that twilight zone which exists between the prize fight business and the newspaper business. He had a writing job with one of the Cleveland papers and also, from time to time, he had a piece of this fighter and that one or a piece of a wrestler or fight club. He seemed a child, but he sometimes drank and swore with exaggerated manliness to make people think he was grown up, a re-

GIANTS LOSE TO CARDS IN NINTH

Hubbell Wilts After Holding 3-2 Lead; Final Score, 5-3.

NEW YORK, June 29 (A.P.).—Carl Hubbell weakened with one out in the ninth today and the Cardinals scored three runs to defeat the Giants, 5 to 3, in the opening game of their crucial National League series. The victory increased St. Louis' lead over the McGraw men to two and a half games.

Up to the ninth inning, which opened with the Giants leading, 3 to 2, Hubbell had yielded only five hits.

Chick Hafey led off the winning rally with a single after one was out. Mancuso popped to Jackson for the second out, but Williams came through with a single, Wilson doubled, Blades drew a pass and Jimmy Collins drove in the winning runs with a single.

The Browns, who made five double plays, put across their only runs in the last of the ninth, losing a chance to tie the score when Burns grounded to Sweeney for the final out with two men on bases.

Bunt by Johnson in 9th Leads to Defeat of Mackmen.

Homers Mark Game; Whitehill Hurls for Tgiers.

DETROIT, Mich., June 29 (A.P.). The Detroit Tigers broke the Philadelphia jinx today when they defeated the Athletics, 6 to 5, in the last game of the current series. It was the first victory Detroit has had over Philadelphia this season.

Ed Rommell was Connie Mack's choice for pitcher while Earl Whitehill started for Detroit. Rommell allowed 13 hits and Whitehill 12. Foxx knocked a homer in the fourth with one on, Johnson repeating the feat in the fifth, but with none on.

The game went into the ninth inning before the winning score was made. Johnson bunted to third and beat out the ball. Doljack singled. Stone was purposely passed and then Johnson scored from third as Alexander filed to Miller.

Yanks Twice Beaten By Indians, 15-6, 4-2

Cleveland, Ohio, June 29 (A.P.).—The Indians made it four out of five from the Yankees by sweeping today's double header, 15 to 6 and 4 to 2. In the first game the Indians assaulted four Yankee pitchers for 15 hits, totaling 25 bases, while the Yankees' only extra base blow off Milburn Shoffner was Ruth's eighteenth home run of the year. It came in the sixth, with Combs on base.

Harder limited the Yanks to five hits in the second game, while his mates bunched their six off Lefty Gomez in two innings to score all their runs.

Cronin and Myer Hit Futile Homers as Sox Take Series.

Frazier Goes Route; 6-Run Rally in 4th Wins Game.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.
(Post Staff Corerspondent).

CHICAGO, June 29.—Manager Walter Johnson and his charges entrained tonight for St. Louis, where they open a four-game series with the Browns tomorrow in the final set of this second Western invasion. The stop here was not particularly pleasant, for not only was the weather a record breaker with respect to heat but the White Sox looked like anything but last-place opponents, winning three of the five games played.

Fortunately, no ground was lost by the Nats in the race, for the Mackmen were accommodating enough to lose to the Tigers, but a golden opportunity of reducing the two and one-half game lead was lost.

Manager Johnson was mighty quick to yank Jones, but he alone knows why he failed to withdraw Crowder in the fourth inning when the Sox packed away the verdict with a six-run rally. Crowder was hit hard and often and it is hard to understand why, with the Nationals considering themselves pennant contenders, no effort was made to save this game until too late. Harry Rice hit for Crowder in the seventh and this brought Irving Hadley into action, and he held the Chisox hitless during the two frames he toiled.

Myer Hits Hard, Leaving Slump.

Lu Blue and Buddy Myer were the game-hitting heroes. The former singled his first four times up, while in addition to his homer, Myer, who has been in quite a batting slump, also poled out a double and two singles.

Myer gave the Nats a good start by hitting the first ball pitched for a home run to deepest center. The drive was an ordinary single, but Watwood slipped when about to take the ball on first bounce and Myer had no trouble completing the base-circle while the outfielder was retrieving it.

This lead stood up no longer than it took for the Sox to come in from the field. Kerr, Blue and Reynolds, the first three up, singled, and these, with the aid of Fonseca's long fly, netted two runs. With one dead in

BLUES DEFEAT ARTILLERY, 6-5, IN ARGENTINE CUP POLO

Decisive Shot Is Made by Col. Swift

Artillery Holds Lead Aided by Handicap, Until 5th Period.

By RICHARDS S. TENNYSON.

A SHOT from a scrimmage by Col. Swift in the final period gave the War Blues a victory over the Sixth Field Artillery yesterday on the Potomac Park oval in the second game of the Argentine cup elimination tourney. The final score was 6 to 5, but this was with a two-goal handicap given the Artillerymen.

With its handicap, the Sixth held the lead until the fifth period when the Blues crashed through for three goals. Col. Swift opened the fifth with a marker and Lieut. Strobehm equalized with a deft strike from a scrimmage. Apparently both teams realized that the play had been sluggish up to this period and attempted to put on speed which resulted in several minutes of the best play of the afternoon.

The Sixth defense proved strong at this time while the Blue attack was determined but disorganized. When Col. Swift scored the goal that put the War Department in the lead he tapped through the sphere that had been missed by three teammates. Maj. Blunt, Col. Chaffee and Lieut. Strobehm all charged at the still ball in front of the Sixth uprights and missed but the Blue No. 3 mallet-man dashed in and sent the leading score through.

For a moment of the final period the game was tied due to a goal from the mallet of Capt. Mallonee, of the Artillery. The teams cuffed the ball about the field until about a minute before the final whistle when Col. Swift counted the deciding tally. Today War Whites and Third Cavalry meet and fans who witnessed the stirring contest of the two Sundays are not apt to miss this tilt.

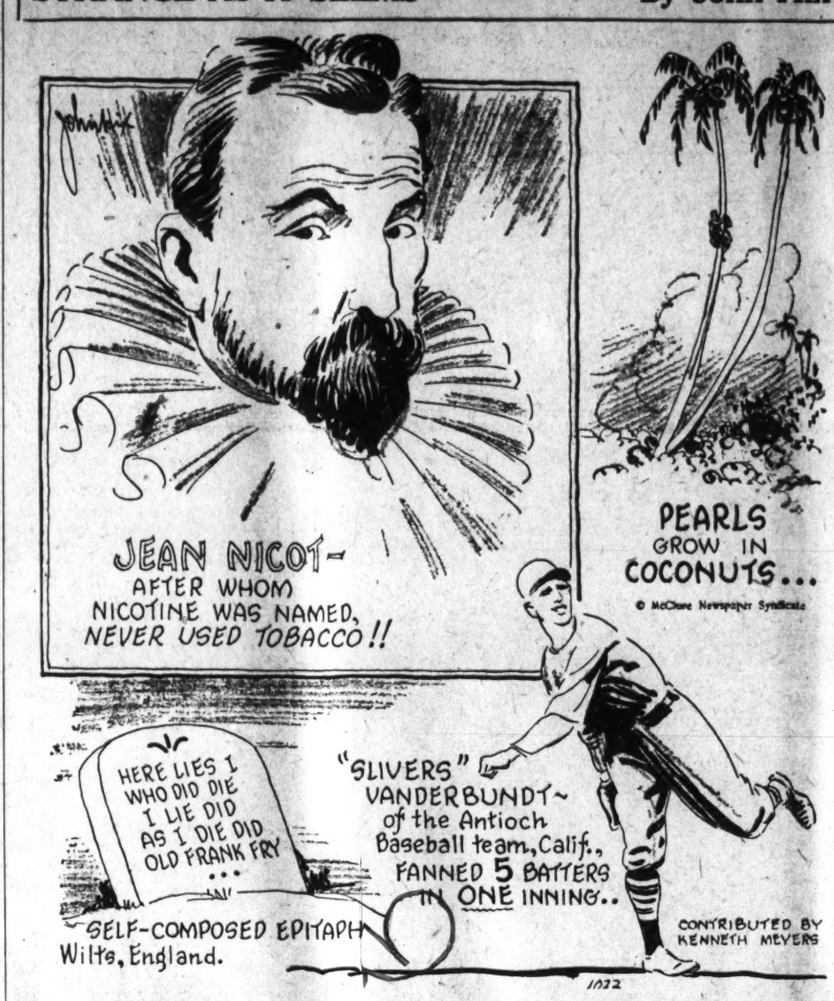
STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix



THE tobacco smoking habit was acquired by sailors of the crew of the ships of Columbus, when they discovered the Indians partaking of the "petun" weed as they called it. In the Old World for some time smoking was only indulged in by the wharf rats, stevedores and seafaring men. It was not until Jean Nicot, French Ambassador to Portugal, took notice of the weed that official cognizance was taken of smoking tobacco. He became interested in it, bought some tobacco seed from the sailors and planted them in his yard. After carefully cultivating the plants he sent some of the leaves to Queen Catherine de Medici to "help cure her headaches." The queen, pleased with the effects of smoking, became a regular addict. As the queen usually set the style, nobles commenced to smoke, and the habit became quite the thing in the French court, and among citizens of the higher caste.

Tobacco was commonly referred to as the "herb that cured every ill," "the Ambassador's herb" and "Nicotine."

Although Nicot did much to popularize tobacco, he did not use it in any form.

Pearls are frequently found in coconuts on the island of Celebes in the Dutch East Indies. Pearl-producing coconuts usually have all of their circular depressions (used for propagating purposes) sealed tight. Without an outlet, peculiar actions take place within the shell, producing a pearl about the size of a pea.

—Arlington Park Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

ARLINGTON RACE TRACK, Chicago, Ill., June 29.—The Lexington Purse at $2,000, allowance affair for 3-year-olds and upward, a test over the one mile route, which attracted a select field of seven, will serve as the feature event on the Arlington Park program today. Another allowance race, at six furlongs, which is fashioned for fillies and mares, will support the main issue. The remainder of the program is devoted to the platers but all of the events have attracted evenly matched fields and the card appears well balanced.

In the mile of the feature, fourth offering, DARK SEA, consistent Tramer colt in the H. M. Woolf stable and a double winner at Washington Park, is the selection in this event. The Woolf color bearer stepped this distance in 1:37 1-5 in his last victorious effort and that repeated here would return him the winner. Mrs. Katherine Hitt's much improved SUNVIR raced well in his Belmont Park campaign. The Sun Briar offspring is given the place call with Miss Watson's NOSTAW, steady Whisk gelding, as the show possibility.

Six evenly matched fillies and mares are scheduled to match strides at the six furlongs distance, of the Chattanooga, to be run as the fifth and which will serve as the secondary feature. Mrs. J. D. Hertz's potential 3-year-old champion of the weaker sex, RISQUE, after his sensational performance at New York, is favored to annex the purse in this overnight event. CON AMORE should contest the issue. This High Cloud filly in the Martin string scored impressively last start and nicely weighted with 108 pounds, should go well. COUSIN JO, carrying equal weight with CON AMORE and in receipt of two pounds from RISQUE, figures to gain the minor award.

FIRST RACE—WELL HEELED, another from Mrs. J. D. Hertz' string, appears best of the fifteen juveniles which will oppose him in the five and one-half furlongs dash of the opening number. PLAYING, from the J. F. Schorr stable, graduated from the maiden ranks last out and appears in fit condition. The Messenger filly is given the place call, while OSCILLATION should hold the others safe for the show money.

SECOND RACE—A limit of 20 maiden 3-year-olds will face the barrier to contest the 6-furlong sprint of the second event, under allowance conditions. TRED AVON has shown the most consistent form of the group. He was beaten a length by Canfil in a fast race last start and off that effort figures to graduate. DUSKY BOY has trained well and should furnish the opposition. EGYPT has been freshened up by a brief rest and rates the show call.

THIRD RACE—AT SUNRISE, clever juvenile in the J. F. Schorr string, has displayed excellent form in previous efforts and should lead her eight rivals to the wire in the 5½furlong dash of the third. DARK SEEKER, from the W. S. Kilmer establishment, has enjoyed a short rest since her winning effort at Belmont Park. The Kilmer miss is selected to force the pace. NEVADA QUEEN showed a return to her best form last outing and will be difficult to keep out of the money.

SIXTH RACE—Eighteen platers will contest the purse over the mile route in the sixth event. HIS LAST is another of the popular Mrs. J. D. Hertz string. This steady plater raced Dunstan to a head last out and should show enough improvement to take down the purse. KADIAK, a consistent 7-year-old from Miss B. Watson's string, will contest the issue with the top one. BAGGAGE MAID has turned in some fair efforts recently and appears best of the others.

SEVENTH RACE—Twenty 3-year-olds and upward will be dispatched over the 1⅛ miles route in the final event, which carries the claiming clause. LILLIAN T. has shown improvement in her previous efforts and figures to annex the purse. PRINCESS EDITH is credited with some splendid races over a route and is favored for the place, with CLASSY as the show selection.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PAIR BY PAIR, $3.64, $4.10, $3.24; BRAVE AND BOLD, $73.56, $45.90; MEXICO, $4.40.

PAIR BY PAIR lost little time in getting to the front and, under a well judged ride, was never in serious danger. BRAVE AND BOLD, a forward contender from the start, held MEXICO at the end. MEXICO was in close quarters approaching the stretch turn, and came gamely when clear. MARMION attempted to bolt at the start, but raced well after being straightened out and was going fast at the finish. MONK'S FIRST and FORT DEN had early speed, but tired. TEXAS KNIGHT was in close quarters after the start and never threatened.

SECOND RACE—About two miles (short course). Purse, $2,000. Owenstia Claiming Steeplechase. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 2:50. Off at 2:51½. Two-dollar mutuels paid—CONTRITION, $4.96, $2.38, $2.26; AUTUMN BELLS, $2.44, $2.44; VICHET, $4.04.

CONTRITION, well rated in the early running and fencing well, went to the front after going one turn of the field and held his opposition safe thereafter. AUTUMN BELLS was carried wide at times and made an occasional bobble, but was good enough to hold the others. VICHET set the pace, but could not keep up. CHARMARTEN dropped back when the real racing began. PROOF POSITIVE was far back of the others when she fell at the ninth jump. TASSEL broke down badly after taking the eighth fence and was pulled up. HILLOCK fell at the third jump.

SEEDED PAIRS TRIUMPH EASILY IN ARMY TENNIS DOUBLES

Robinson-Stone Entry Much Feared at Columbia.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

BUTTRESSED by a post entry in the persons of Lieut. Stan Robinson, singles champion, and Lieut. J. N. Stone, the doubles championship of the United States Army got under way yesterday at Columbia Country Club with nothing in the shape or form of an upset marking the opening day's play.

A select field of nine teams toed the mark at the start of play, and this number had been reduced to five before a halt was called to the day's activities. Neither of the seeded pairs experienced much in the way of opposition toward their advancing.

Hobbs, Hills Easily Win First Match.

Majs. J. H. Hills and Leland S. Hobbs, first seeded combination, disposed of Capt. J. H. Drake and Lieut. J. E. Poore, 6—1, 6—4, the losers finding the unorthodox tactics of the majors too much to combat. Hobbs' ability to poach successfully upon the court of his partner, and Hills' general all-around play spelled the victory.

The second seeded pair, Lieuts. David D. Hedekin and Millard Lewis, disposed of Col. Easton and Capt. Spangler, 6—3, 6—3, without undue trouble.

The feature match of the day brought together the teams of Maj. Newgarden and Lieut. Morrill and Lieuts. Brooks and Helms. The former pair copped the decision, 2—6, 8—6, 11—9, in a bitterly contested match. The losers gained match point in the third set at 5—4 and held two match points at 9—8 and 40—15, only to see victory snatched from their racquets by reactivated play on the part of their opponents.

Newgarden Rallies at Critical Point.

Newgarden's two timely forehand drives saved the match points at 9—8. Lashing out for all he was worth, his blows swept by Brooks as that player advanced to the net after his service. Morrill, the weak sister of the winning combination throughout a major part of the last set, came to life in spectacular manner, as he tied the score with a tremendous overhead smash, and followed this up by dominating the play throughout the remaining minutes.

Unseeded, the post entry of Robinson and Stone looms as the winner of the event. They swing into action this morning at 10 o'clock against Newgarden and Morrill, and, if successful, take on the second seeded pair of Hedekin and Lewis this afternoon.

YESTERDAY'S RESULTS.

First round—Majs. J. H. Hills and L. S. Hobbs defeated Capt. J. H. Drake and Lieut. J. E. Poore, 6—1, 6—4; Capt. R. C. Crane and Lieut. J. S. Moran defeated Capts. E. J. House and Gene Eubanks, 4—6, 6—0, 6—3; Lieuts. D. D. Hedekin and Millard Lewis defeated Col. K. Easton and Capt. M. Spangler, 6—3, 6—3; Maj. P. W. Newgarden and Lieut. P. K. Morrill defeated Lieuts. Brooks and Helms, 2—6, 8—6, 11—9.

TODAY'S PAIRINGS.

Second round (10 o'clock)—Lieuts. S. K. Robinson and J. N. Stone vs. Maj. Newgarden and Lieut. Morrill.

Semifinal round (10 o'clock)—Majs. Hills and Hobbs vs. Capt. Crane and Lieut. Moran.

2 o'clock—Lieuts. Hedekin and Lewis vs. winner of Robinson-Stone vs. Newgarden-Morrill match.

Considine and Mangan To Play Army Stars

The final round of the Army Doubles Championship, to be played tomorrow at Columbia Country Club at 2 o'clock, will see a trio of exhibition matches as an extra added attraction. Lieut. Stanley K. Robinson, recently crowned singles champion of the Army, will play Tom Mangan, veteran local star, and Dolf Muehleisen, Pacific Coast ace, will meet Bob Considine, District champion.

A doubles match featuring Robinson and Muehleisen against Mangan and Considine will follow. The exhibitions will start directly after the conclusion of the finals of the doubles.

Braves Held to 4 Hits By Kremer of Pirates

Boston, June 29 (A.P.).—The Pittsburgh Pirates outhit the Braves 14 to 4 today to win the first game of the series, 4 to 2. Ed Phillips, Pirate catcher, connected for a home run off Zachary in the eighth, and George Grantham continued his recent batting spurt by hitting three singles.

The game was marked by loose fielding on both sides, the winners contributing four errors and the Tribe three. Three of the four hits off Ray Kremer were for extra bases, but the Braves were able to score in only one inning.

Klein's 20th Homer Aid In 11-10 Defeat of Cubs

Philadelphia, June 29 (A.P.).—Chuck Klein's twentieth home run of the season in the sixth inning and his timely triple in the eighth enabled the Phillies to win an 11 to 10 uphill battle from the Chicago Cubs here today.

It was a seesaw game from the start to finish. The Phils obtained a four-run lead in the first inning, but lost it in the sixth when the Cubs pounded in six runs. Klein's homer with two men on base in the sixth and a two-run rally in the eighth gave the Phils the victory, however.

Robins Win 5th Straight Beat Reds on Homers

Brooklyn, June 29 (A.P.).—Home runs by Johnny Frederick and Del Bissonette proved the undoing of the Cincinnati Reds today as the Robins took the series opener, 6 to 4, and ran their winning streak to five straight.

The Reds were leading by three runs when Frederick came to bat with the bases loaded in the fifth inning and put one of Eppa Rixey's curves over the right field wall. Bissonette hit his off Kolp in the seventh round to clinch the victory.

Quinn, who went in for the Robins after Vance had been relieved for a pinchhitter in the big fifth, held the Reds scoreless the last four frames. Vance, however, received credit for the win.

Winston Guest Injured As Polo Mount Falls

Mineola, N. Y., June 29 (A.P.).—Winston Guest, international polo player, received a fractured collar bone in a practice game on the private polo field of John Hay Whitney. His horse fell upon him during the play.

Physicians at Nassau Hospital, to which he was taken, said his condition was favorable.

Guest is rated as the greatest indoor polo player in the world, having a handicap of ten goals, the highest possible.

The accident happened in the fourth chukker, when a rider on the opposing team dashed in front of Guest's pony, which had been borrowed from Mr. Whitney.

Guest's pony, in halting, fell and the player was caught beneath. Play was stopped and Guest taken to the hospital.

STOCK PRICES DROP IN PROFITS-TAKING

Losses Range From 2 to 8 Points on Turnover of 2,100,000 Shares.

New York, June 29.—(AP.)—The stock market lost its zest for the advance today. Reactionary tendencies were the rule throughout the quiet session and final prices represented declines of 2 to nearly 8 points.

After so violent a rise as was experienced last week, the downward movement seemed to have been inspired chiefly by profit-taking. Paris dispatches, nevertheless, called attention to the delicate stage reached in the Mellon-Laval negotiations, and however strongly Wall street may believe a final settlement will be reached, the fact that the conversations were being extended brought considerable selling. It was also pointed out that the strenuous pace set last week could not be expected to last. Today's sales were only 2,100,000 shares in five hours of trading against 1,900,000 in two hours on Saturday.

Some irregularity crept into the bond market and also into the commodities. Wheat and corn made narrow advances, but cotton lost $1.10 to $1.70 a bale net and bar silver eased.

Rails Are Heavy.

Rail stocks were heavy. Nearly complete reports on May earnings disclosed that railroad income had shown a slightly smaller decline as compared with 1930 than was reported in April, but the drop of more than 30 per cent from a year ago again emphasized the troubles of the carriers. Atchison lost 7¾, Union Pacific 5¾, New York Central 4 and numerous others 2 to 3.

United States Steel, which closed last Saturday at 104⅜, got as low as 101¾ and as high as 103⅝, closing at 102¼, off 2⅛. The net declines in American Can, Sears Roebuck, Woolworth, Consolidated Gas, American & Foreign Power, Kennecott, Anaconda, North American and Johns-Manville were between 2 and 3, while American Telephone lost 3¾, Eastman Kodak and Allied Chemical 4 and Auburn Auto 7½, after getting down 8. The market made three attempts to rally, but grew discouraged each time.

Copper metal again advanced, putting the domestic price at 8 cents, and there were fresh reports of a movement to curtail production in this country by closing some mines. Forecasts of the June output estimate another increase in stocks.

Funds Withdrawal Abates.

Advices from Germany said that the renewed withdrawal of foreign funds, noticed last Saturday, had abated. The Reich's midyear requirements, for which the $100,000,000 international credit was arranged, are expected to be taken care of by that accommodation, but it is understood here that if further help is needed the New York Reserve will step in and purchase German acceptances. The mark closed steady after early easiness.

Approach of the month-end settlements, involving large dividends and interest payments, was reflected moderately by the money markets.

Some dealers quoted a higher rate for long-term time loans, and the spread between the call money charge of the stock exchange and the outside rate was nominal.

Foreign exchanges were dull. Montreal made a further recovery. Latin Americans were generally firm.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, June 29 (A.P.).—Belief that a break in the hot wave was imminent led to reactions in grain prices today. The reaction came after a steep rise in which oats had outdone the season's top record. Temperatures exceeding 100 at many points for more than a week were largely responsible for boisting corn temporarily to a maximum of 103⅜ cents and oats to 85⅝ cents above values current about two weeks ago.

Wheat strength, more lasting than that of corn and oats, resulted chiefly from successful mediation by President Hoover, inducing the Federal Farm Board to reconsider plans not to keep old-crop surplus wheat off the market for any definite period.

Wheat closed unsettled, ¼ cent to 2 cents high; corn unchanged to ⅞ cent up, oats ⅛ to 1½ cents advanced, and provisions varying from 5 cents decline to a rise of 2 cents.

Unusually active trading in all grain accompanied the rise of prices. Wheat was influenced upward not only by the results of President Hoover's intervening with the Farm Board but also by crop damage in Canada and parts of the Dakotas and Montana, damage described as the worst yet known in regard to the amount of acreage past recovery. An evident check on the upward swing of wheat prices, however, was the fact that any new departure in Farm Board policy hinged on a survey to be completed by July 1.

Pressure of newly harvested domestic wheat marketings in the Southwest counted as a decided weight on values during the late dealings. Total receipts of new wheat at eight terminal markets were 4,691 cars, against 1,523 on Saturday. Today's arrivals included 580 cars at Amarillo, Tex.; 775 at Fort Worth, 651 at Wichita, 888 at Hutchinson and 1,213 at Kansas City. A decrease of 5,812 bushels in the amount of wheat on ocean passage and 2,415,000 bushels falling off in the United States wheat visible supply were given but little attention.

Heavy profit-taking sales cooled the ardor of high-price enthusiasts in corn and oats after both markets had scored steep transient gains. Chicago receipts of corn were on a large scale, 590 cars, compared with 265 a week ago and 121 at this time last year.

Provisions were easier, affected by weakness of hog values.

Curb Review

New York, June 29 (A.P.).—The curb market reacted under pressure of profit-taking sales today, in sympathy with the big board. Trading slackened, the day's turnover of about 400,000 shares showing a shrinkage of 180,000 shares from Friday's business.

Utilities bore the brunt of the selling. Electric Bond & Share was offered in large volume, and lost 1¾ points. American Gas & Electric lost as much in less active trading, and American & Foreign Power, Brazilian Traction and Middle West Utilities lost about a point. Middle West Utilities sagged about a point.

Oils held up fairly well. Vacuum and Plymouth each lost about a point, but Gulf, Indiana and Cities Service were off only fractionally. The new Socony-Vacuum shares were admitted to trading on a when issued basis, replacing General Petroleum, for which all when issued trades were canceled. The stock opened at 18 and closed at 17⅞, or ⅜ below the closing price of Standard of N. Y., on the big board, for which it will be exchanged share for share.

In the industrials and specialties, Aluminum Co. lost 6 points, and A. O. Smith, in a few odd lot deals, 9. Universal Pictures dropped 1¼ to a new low at 4. Elsewhere in this group losses were largely fractional. A few thinly traded issues were higher, Pepperell Manufacturing gaining 8 points, and Northwest Engineering 2.

In the mining issues, Newmont lost 2, in sympathy with big board coppers.

HUNT SPEEDY IN TRAINING FOR BOUT

Star Heavy on Card at Laurel Arrives; Corri Due Today.

WHILE a small group of fans looked on, Angy Gerrin's gymnasium, located in rear of 1731 K street northwest, fairly hummed with action and excitement yesterday morning, word was received that Corri would not report here before noon today. He will go through his paces for tomorrow night's performance shortly after his arrival.

"Babe" yesterday declared that he expected to enter the ring tomorrow night slightly under the 200-pound mark, his best fighting weight. He anticipates some furious mixing, but believes he will cop, possibly by a knockout.

As fight time nears interest also is increasing in the 32-round follow-up program which promises some exciting moments. Baltimoreans are rallying to the 10-round semiwindup bringing Herman Weiner, a hometown product, into action against Mike Sullivan, slugging Philadelphia heavyweight.

Clever Boxers Meet in Main "Prelim."

For speed and skill the third spot prospects are good. Over a routed 8-round distance Arthur Devere, veteran French lightweight, exchanges blows with Mickey Diamond, Philadelphia's junior welterweight crack.

El (Billy Edwards) Kadir meets another dusky cyclone in Young Gorilla Jones, Gotham welterweight, while two four-round bouts of intercity flavor ring up the curtain.

White Line Tours Co., Inc., offers bargain rates in bus transportation from North Capitol and E streets northwest, to the stadium and return. The trip starts at 7:30 o'clock.

In the meantime a brisk advance ticket sale is reported at several downtown resorts. They are: The New Willard, Fourteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest; A. G. Spalding & Bro., 1338 G street northwest; Vic Sport Shop, 716 Ninth street northwest, and Curb Lunch, 714 H street northeast.

Mineral Nine Bows To Orange Boosters

Special to The Washington Post.

Gordonsville, Va., June 29.—The Boosters from Orange County swamped Mineral, 11 to 0, here today. The game was close during the first five innings. In the sixth, Mineral weakened and the local team piled up their score. Only one Mineral player reached third. P. Coker, first baseman for Mineral, was injured in a collision with a base runner in the sixth and taken from the game.

In the Wake Of the Game

thrown out at second. Cronin, who walked, was nipped there trying to advance on a half-passed ball in the first and Kuhel died trying to put himself in scoring position by a theft with two dead in round two.

Jones did some nobby fielding to pull himself out of possible trouble in the second after Jeffries had opened with a single. Tate flied out and then Frazier bunted to the pitcher, who wheeled and threw to second just as he was falling. Cronin took the peg and completed a twin murder by getting the ball to first ahead of the batter.

Kerr was fortunate to knock down West's hard bounder over second in the fourth. It prevented the Nats from scoring a run although the infielder had no chance to make a putout. Scorer, however, ruled it an error instead of a hit.

In addition to being charged with a mechanical error in the fourth, Cronin made a mental miscue which gave the Sox two runs. Watwood fouled to Spencer and Fonseca tried to advance from first to second after the catch. For some unknown reason, Cronin intercepted the throw and, even then, had time to get Fonseca, who stopped running. By the time the Nat shortstop saw what had happened, it was too late. This would have been the third out. Cissell then singled two more runs home.

After the Sox rang up their big lead, Manager Johnson decided to give Bluege and Spencer needed rests, Hayes and Hargraves supplanting them.

When Blue opened the sixth with a one-baser, it was his fourth successive single of the game.

Fonseca went back almost to the stands in left to rob Cronin of an extra-base hit opening the eighth.

Hadley walked Frasier opening the home eighth, but ended the round by fanning both Blue and Reynolds.

Joe Judge made his first appearance in the line-up since his appendicitis attack in Boston on May 1, when he pinch-hit for Hadley in the ninth. His best was a tap to Kerr.

Manush almost put Frasier out of commission in round nine when his drive hit the pitcher on the right knee. The ball caromed directly to Kerr, who relayed the ball to first in time for the out.

SUNDAES NOW EATEN OVER FAMOUS BAR

minder of Richard Harding Davis' tough newspaper office boy, Gallagher, who scooped the town.

News Manufacture Tests Press Agents.

When Ray died a couple of years ago it turned out that he had been only 16 or so when he started going around the country being a man among men and that he had been helping to support his mother and his invalid father ever in Philadelphia for years. On his deathbed, he was a pathetic, lonely kid again, wanting his mother.

Up in the fight headquarters in the tower, Dick Dunne, who used to be the manager of the Detroit branch of the Madison Square Garden firm and may still be, said there was nothing doing there. It was hot, wasn't it? Yes, it was hot. Who was going to win the fight? Well, Stribling ought to, I thought, having more experience and guile and being just as strong as Schmeling.

"Well, some say one thing and some say another," Mr. Dunne observed, putting the situation rather neatly. "They are going to pick the referee. Either George Blake, of Los Angeles, or Eddie Purdy, of Chicago. He used to be in New York."

Yes, Mr. Purdy used to be in New York. A rather small man with gloomy brows and dark eyes. The last big fight that Mr. Purdy refereed in New York was the one between Harry Greb and Mickey Walker, in which Walker, being shoved into a corner just beneath the ring post bearing the radio microphone, grunted for all the world to hear, "You're winning, Harry; don't knock me out." That night, Mr. Purdy twisted his right knee going between the boys and counted nine over himself before he could get up as the astonished pugilists dropped their arms and wondered what the rules prescribed in such cases.

Purdy Needs More Size to Referee.

Thereafter every time Harry Greb hit Mickey Walker or vice versa, Eddie Purdy would go down for a short count. He went most of the way on a leg that should have been cased in a concrete cast in a hospital. Mr. Purdy is a good referee but with that leg and his small dimensions he doesn't seem quite enough man to handle a couple heavyweights in a dirty fight for the million-dollar asset for the title.

Down in room six-forty-something, Mr. Walter St. Denis, the head man of the ballyhoo department was trying out candidates for base drum on his band which will go around Cleveland and the outlying towns on a circus wagon to notify the people that a prize fights impends.

"I like the big, sweaty one over there," Mr. St. Denis said, confidingly. "Man, he hits that big drum a beautiful belt. Nice back-swing; nice down-swing and lots of wrist in it. Ta-boom, ta-boom, ta-boom. Isn't that music?"

Some boys came in from Stribling's camp out among the roller-coasters, the shooting galleries and the roll-the-ball fakes of an amusement park. There had been a beauty contest out there.

"We had to give it to a brunette," said one of the judges. "Stribling and a lot of the boys were judges and we all liked blondes but the blondes all had funny legs. Everybody calls everybody judge now, like Judge Stribling, Judge Kofoed, Judge Corum and so forth. A beauty contest judge is the only thing lower than a Kentucky colonel."

Fourth Estate Much In Evidence.

There are as many press headquarters as ticket offices for this fight with typewriters and copy paper all around and the gentlemanly agents of the Western Union and Postal checking up on the chaps of our set as they arrived and bespeak their business.

It looks as though there will be more reporters here for this fight than there have been at any sport event since Dempsey spanked Carpentier in Jersey City, because there is no crossroad in these highly literate and intensely political Midwest States, but has its daily press and hundreds of these papers can afford to send the sport editor or the principal advertiser to Cleveland as accredited correspondent for the fight which never sent agents to New York, Chicago or Philadelphia.

There is great indignation at Schmeling's camp, 90 miles from here, because one of the neighbors telephoned the law to come over and investigate some all-night free-style singing in the press headquarters. The gallant officers suspected, of all things, that stimulants were fluent there, but to the honor or the resourcefulness of the fourth estate it may be said that they found no evidence.

NINE TRACKS ASK FLORIDA LICENSES

Horse and Dog Meets Planned December 1 to April 1.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., June 29 (A.P.).—Applications to operate four horse race tracks and five dog tracks under provisions of the State's new law that permits pari-mutuel betting were received by the newly created Florida Racing Commission at its first meeting here today.

The applications were filed by the following horse racing organizations:

The Florida Jockey Club, Inc., for a meet at St. Johns Park, between Jacksonville and St. Augustine; Belvedere Jockey Club, Inc., for a meet at Belevedere Park in West Palm Beach; Miami Jockey Club, Inc., for a meet in Dade County, near Miami; the Miami Jockey Club, Inc., for a meet at Hialeah Park, near Miami.

Applications for dog races came from the following:

Palm Beach Greyhound Association for a meet at Belvedere Park, West Palm Beach; Palm Beach Kennel Association for a meet at West Palm Beach; St. Petersburg Kennel Club for a meet in Pinellas County, near St. Petersburg; Miami Beach Kennel Club, Inc., for a meet at Miami Beach; Biscayne Kennel Club, Inc., for a meet near Miami.

Season to Extend Four Months.

The Florida racing season will extend from December 1 to April 1. The law provides that counties in which racing would be held must approve of it by referendum. Members of the commission said they interpreted the law as intending that all permits should be granted and then leave approval of racing to voters of the counties affected.

With the application of the Palm Beach association was a request for permit to erect a $110,000 dog racing plant in Palm Beach County.

CROWDER AND JONES POUNDED AT CHICAGO

the third, the enemy started sharp-shooting again, scoring one run on two singles, with a walk sandwiched in between, and causing Jones to depart for the showers in favor of Crowder. The latter stopped this rally, but was pounded unmercifully in the next frame.

Sam Rice's Bunt Leads to Run.

The Nats opened the fourth by molding a single run from Sam Rice's opening safe bunt, a walk, Kerr's error and Bluege's long fly. A great opportunity was passed up here, for the Nats had the bases loaded, with one out, but neither Bluege nor Kuhel could hit safely.

Then came a deluge of Sox hits and runs. A walk and theft started Crowder off badly and, after Tate had fouled to Bluege he seemed to lose everything he had in the way of effectiveness. Before the Nats could get another man out, Kerr, Blue and Fonseca singled and Cronin contributed one charged error and one that was mental. Cissell later scored two more mates on a one-baser before the side was finally retired.

This made the score 9 to 2 and, to all intents and purposes, ended the game then and there. The Nats kept pegging away, however, and scored three times in the seventh and eighth sessions. One-basers by Kuhel, Pinch-hitter Harry Rice and Myer netted the run made in the "stretch" frame, while Hargrave's double propelled West and Hayes over the counting block after a respective hit and walk had put the pair on.

In the ninth the Nats scored twice more. Cronin cracking out his homer after Myer had opened with his fourth hit of the game, but this final stand still found the Sox comfortably in front.

GOLF HONORS TO ARMOUR, M'KIMMIE

Win Middle Atlantic Best-Ball Match at Columbia.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

WHEN Alex. Armour, professional at the Congressional Country Club, better known as "Sandy," ran down a 25-foot putt on the eighteenth green for a birdie three on the Columbia course yesterday afternoon, he and his partner, R. Cliff McKimmie, unattached, won the four-ball, best-ball tournament played under auspices of the Middle Atlantic Professional Golfers Association. Armour and McKimmie had a best ball of 69, leading the field by one stroke.

The round played by the winners was remarkable in many respects, especially because on no less than ten holes McKimmie rimmed or lipped the cup for birdies which did not drop. However, after the pair had secured a par 4 on the first hole, McKimmie scored a birdie three on the second with an easy putt. Every hole on the first nine was played thereafter in par, with the exception of the sixth and ninth holes.

McKimmie Scores Eagle 3 on 500-Yarder.

On the incoming nine, however, both played brilliant golf. On the long twelfth hole, 502 yards, McKimmie came within 8 inches of duplicating the feat of Fred McLeod, ten years ago, who then holed out with a deuce, the only time in the history of the club when a two has been made on the twelfth hole.

Out ..... 4 3 4 3 5 5 4 3 5—36
In ..... 4 4 3 2 5 4 4 4 3—33—69

Robert T. Barnett, Chevy Chase, and Mel Shorey, East Potomac Park, tied for second place, 36—34—70, with Al Treder, Manor, and George Diffenbaugh, Indian Spring, 35—35—70. Diffenbaugh was fortunate enough to score two birdies in a row, a 4 on the long fifth, 560 yards, with a single putt, and a 3 on the sixth when he chipped into the cup from 50 yards off the green. The other scores were as follows:

Arthur B. Thorn (Woodmont) and Frank Cunningham (Burning Tree), 37, 35—72; Walter Hall, unattached, and Archie Clark (Congressional), 38, 34—72.

J. Monro Hunter (Indian Spring) and Walter Cunningham (Burning Tree), 36, 37—73; William Major (Columbia) and Daniel Burton (Chevy Chase), 38, 35—73; Gene Larkin (Chevy Chase) and Claude Orendorf (Woodmont), 38, 36—74.

In order to prevent personal selection of partners, the names of the players paired with each other were drawn from a hat. The fact that Armour and McKimmie were drawn together as partners was due entirely to the luck of the draw.

HEAT AT INVERNESS HAMPERS PRACTICE

Farrell, Sarazen "Putter Around."

Johnny Farrell came in around noon but did not even play a hole after swinging a few clubs in the sun, while Gene Sarazen just putt-tered around. All of the British and American Ryder Cup team members were somewhere around or expected for workouts tomorrow. Tommy Armour, of Detroit, out gunning to equal Bobby Jones' record by winning the British and American opens in the same year, was expected tomorrow also. The Black Scot got in a few fine workouts last week while his principal rivals engaged in the Ryder Cup warfare at Scioto.

Pete O'Hara, who finished in a tie for ninth in the big show at Winged Foot in 1929, gained considerable today by fighting the heat and par to a standstill. He breezed over the outward stretch in 34, one under par, and came in with a fine 37 for a perfect 71. It was one of the best practice rounds turned in.

Allis, Briton, Makes Impression.

Another favorite among the early galleyrites was none other than Percy Allis, the Briton who has been headquartered in Germany ever since the war. The stocky Britisher steamed over the Inverness layout Sunday with a 71 and shot a par 36 for nine holes today, after which he engaged in an exhibition with Helen Hicks, Marion Turpie Lake, and Charles Hall. On his outward trip this morning, Allis clicked off an eagle on the first hole, a 392-yard stretch. He whacked out a pretty 285-yard drive and his number 5 iron shot nestled right in the cup for the eagle two.

The championship Inverness course tonight was one of "beauty and the beast" filling both roles itself. The early morning rainfall made the course in perfect condition and gave new life to a heavy rough that fringes the fairways.

I have ever seen," commented "Light-horse Harry" Cooper, of Chicago. "It seems to get worse and worse and the fairways seem to get narrower and narrower. I never saw a place where tee snots count so much unless it was Oakmont. But those greens are beautiful."

Decapitated Body Found on Railway

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., June 29.—Decapitated body of John W. Dorman, for 18 years an employe of the Southern Railway but more recently with the firm of Jones & Conquest, contractors for the athletic stadium at the University of Virginia, was found at 5:30 o'clock this morning near the Southern Railway tracks four miles south of Charlottesville.

An inquest today revealed wounds on the head, but how they were inflicted was not determined. He was known to have left the home of a friend shortly after midnight, presumably to walk to his home at Hickory Hill, one mile distant. No accident was reported by train crews.

Dorman, son of John Dorman, of Augusta County, was 53 years old. He married Miss Ella Gibson, of Albemarle, who survives, with nine children. A brother and sister reside at Schuyler, Nelson County.

Johnson, of the Virginia Department of Agriculture, assisted by M. C. Kilpatrick, State secretary of the Virginia Poultrymen's Association, and H. B. Derr, Fairfax County agricultural agent. The serum developed by the State Department is being given a practical test for the first time among commercial flocks in Fairfax County.

INTOXICATED DRIVER GETS YEAR IN PRISON

Prince Georges County Court Metes Out Long Sentence to Baltimore Man.

Convicted of reckless driving and driving while drunk, Roland Hill, colored, of Baltimore, was yesterday sentenced in Prince Georges county to serve one year in the Maryland House of Correction. This is one of the heaviest sentences ever meted out in the county police court for this offense.

Hill was arrested by State Policeman C. W. Cubbage after an accident on the Baltimore boulevard near Muirkirk. Cubbage said Hill's car struck one driven by H. S. Klopper, also of Baltimore. No one was hurt in the crash.

Another of the cases tried in the Laurel police court yesterday, in one of its heaviest days, involved Raymond Riggs, of Bladensburg. Officer Cubbage, who charged Riggs with speeding, said that he came through Laurel so fast that it took the policeman 1½ miles to overtake him. Riggs was convicted and fined $5.

Seven raids by county police and three by Federal dry agents marked the week-end drive on liquor in Prince Georges County. Among the places raided was the Forestville Club at Forestville, formerly the Marlboro Club, and a former chief of the county firemen's association was one of those arrested.

The raid on the Forestville Club netted nearly five kegs of beer, 5 gallons of alcohol, a gallon of gin, a slot machine and a beer-cooling machine, as well as one prisoner. Benjamin Morris, alleged proprietor of the place, was released on bond of $1,000 on a charge of possession. He was arraigned before Judge Thomas D. Griffith, of Forestville.

Sergt. A. W. Hepburn, who led the raiders, believes that an attempt was made to "tip off" the operators of the place, as the beer-cooling apparatus was found on the lawn and most of the beer was in the barn. About fifteen couples were reported to be in the place when the raid was made, early yesterday morning. Policemen who made the raid included G. William Gray, Claude Reese and Elon Turner.

A liquor raid on the home of Mrs. Jean Cummings, near Bladensburg, resulted in the arrest of Robert E. Mahoney, former president of the county volunteer firemen's association, on a nonsupport warrant. When offered his release on his personal bond, Mahoney said he did not want to go home, according to Constable Howard Slater, one of the raiders. He was committed to jail, but later released.

Mahoney, who is also a former chief of the Branchville Fire Department, was arraigned before Judge John L. Fainter, the first president of the county association.

Mrs. Cummings was held for bond of $1,000 on a possession charge. Several weeks ago, arrested in a similar raid, she was convicted and fined $100 in police court.

A liquor chase early yesterday resulted in the arrest of Bannie Goldman, of Washington, who had ten cases of alleged liquor in his machine. He was arrested by Policeman Claude Reese.

Other county police raids were: Mrs. Sarah Kans, Capitol Heights, disorderly house, $300 bond; Joseph Artini and John Poletti, a raid on a barber shop in Capitol Heights, possession, $1,000 bond each; Mary Knott, Surrattsville, possession, $1,000; Thomas R. Gladwin, Cedarcroft, sale and possession, a raid by Brentwood police.

Dry agents nabbed Mrs. Naomi Higgs, of Brandywine, and James Norman Proctor and Martin Proctor, both of Cedarville. Mrs. Higgs, who only recently completed a jail sentence on a liquor charge, was placed under bond of $1,500 on charge of sale and possession.

The two men were arrested in separate raids on their separate farms near Cedarville. Each was charged with sale and possession and their bond was set at $1,500 by J. Frank Parran, U. S. Commissioner at Marlboro.

H. H. Wingo, a Marine stationed at Quantico, was painfully injured early yesterday morning when the car in which he was riding alone struck a culvert on the Baltimore boulevard near Laurel. Both the man's knees were badly cut, the kneecap of one being exposed. He was removed to the Marine hospital at Quautico.

Construction of roads in the county is proceeding according to schedule, according to E. G. Duncan, State Roads Commission engineer.

The contractor expects to finish a new concrete stretch of one mile on the Old Powder Factory road today. This work has been done from the Hyattsville end of the road, Mr. Duncan said.

Work on the Jefferson avenue bridge in Riverdale will begin in about two weeks, he said, and will take about three months. A temporary bridge will be built to take care of traffic, after which the present bridge will be removed and a new one, of concrete, substituted.

Work on the Chillum road-University drive stretch also has been begun, but will require about four more months. A new surface of concrete is being put down here.

Dredging the Eastern branch at Bladensburg began yesterday, although work on widening the bridges along the route has been going on for some time. Preparation of the road for the widening between the District line any Hyattsville also has begun.

Two Girls and Two Boys Treated at Hospitals and Permitted to Leave; Youth, 17, Seriously Injured, Is Patient at Providence.

Five persons were injured, one seriously, when the driver of an auto is reported to have fainted at the wheel on the Marlboro pike near Marlboro, Md., yesterday afternoon.

The most badly hurt is William H. Pace, 17 years old, of 6307 Connecticut avenue, Chevy Chase, who is in Providence Hospital with a compound fracture of the jaw, possible internal injuries, and shock. His condition is serious.

The other injured are Frances Wooley, 16 years old, of 3401 Prospect avenue northwest, lacerations of the elbow and shock; Lillian Gilbreth, 17 years old, of the same address, lacerations of the lips and gums and shock; Daniel Murphy, the driver, 16 years old, of 3012 Thirty-second street northwest, lacerations and contusions of the nose and left arm and shock, and Pinckney Harmon, of Indian Valley, Md., lacerations of the chin. According to the two girls, Murphy fainted while driving and the car ran off the road and hit a pole. The injured were brought to the hospital by passing motorists.

Apartment Robber Routed by Woman

Mrs. Codel Persuades Intruder That He 'Wastes Time.'

A burglar who entered the home of Martin Codel, Washington newspaper man, was foiled in his purpose by the presence of mind of Mrs. Codel, who persuaded the intruder to leave.

Early yesterday Mrs. Codel was awakened by the presence of a man in her room at 1109 Sixteenth street northwest. She coughed, and the unwelcome guest retreated to a window and waited for her to resume her slumber.

A few minutes later the man started toward a clothes closet. Mrs. Codel said, "My good man, there is nothing in there worth your attention." The man needed no further persuasion and slipped out the window to a fire escape and fled.

Mrs. Codel awakened her husband and police were notified. A search of the neighborhood failed to uncover the burglar.

Buckhannon Woman's Death Self-Inflicted

Special to The Washington Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., June 29.—A self-inflicted shotgun wound over the heart, inflicted three days ago after she made two other unsuccessful attempts to commit suicide, resulted fatally for Mrs. Adaline Ware, 25, of Buckhannon, estranged wife of Quentin Ware. She succumbed last night in a Buckhannon hospital.

Before shooting herself the woman attempted to drink poison and started slashing herself with a razor but relatives intervened. She leaves two small children.

Alleging that her husband has been convicted and sentenced to the penitentiary in Virginia for bigamy, Dorothy Kramer yesterday filed suit to annul her marriage to David H. Eagle, alias David H. Kramer, of Winchester, Va.

The petition recites that the couple were married here May, 1925, and that recently the wife discovered her husband had another wife.

Fort Meade Army Post to Get 1,200 Students in Summer Course.

Baltimore, June 29.—From all parts of the Third Corps Area hundreds of selected young men between the ages of 17 and 24 years will gather Thursday, July 2, at each of seven Army posts for annual opening of the Citizens' Military Training Camps.

Final details will be completed in the next three days by officers in charge at designated posts for housing, clothing, feeding and training a total of 4,600 youths over a period of 30 days. More than 10,000 applied for admission to the camps, but appropriations limit the number that can be accommodated.

Fort George G. Meade, Md., home of the Army Tank School, will lead all other camps of the corps area in point of numbers with 1,200 young men, chiefly basic and infantry, from 21 counties of southeastern Pennsylvania, including the City of Philadelphia. Included, however, are approximately 250 Signal Corps candidates coming from all parts of the corps area. Col. Harry L. Cooper is post commander.

600 Go to Fort Howard.

Six hundred students from 23 counties of western Pennsylvania will train as basic and infantry at Fort Howard, Md., under Col. William W. Taylor, jr., commanding the Twelfth Infantry.

At Fort Washington, Md., near the National Capital, 800 students in the basic and infantry courses from the remaining 22 counties of northeastern Pennsylvania will train under Lieut. Col. Louis A. Kunzig, graduate of this year's class at the Army War College.

All other basic and infantry candidates, numbering 900, from Maryland, Virginia and the District of Columbia, will assemble at Fort Eustis Va., for training under Col. Daniel Von Voorhis, commander of the mechanized force.

Students in other branches from the corps area as a whole will train at three other posts. Fort Hoyle, Md., will receive 450 red, white and blue candidates of the Field Artillery, and a limited number of basic students of that arm. Brig. Gen. James B. Gowen, commanding the First Field Artillery Brigade, will be in command of the camp.

Fort Myer Takes Cavalry.

Two hundred Cavalry students will train at Fort Myer, Va., under Col. Harry N. Cootes, commanding the Third Cavalry. Fifty Cavalry candidates from the Second Corps Area will also train there.

Four hundred and eighty-five candidates from Pennnsylvania, Maryland and the District of Columbia will train at Fort Monroe, Va., under Brig. Gen. S. D. Embick, commanding the Third Coast Artillery District.

The four classifications into which the summer training courses are divided consist of basic, for those without previous military training who are attending camp for the first time; red, or second-year candidates; white, for those of the third year, and blue, or fourth-year candidates.

The 1,200 trainees at Fort George G. Meade will be organized into two infantry battalions of three companies each and one signal battalion of two companies. Prior to reporting at camp they will be assigned so far as practicable to companies according to the town or county in which their homes are located. It is estimated that approximately 2½ companies will come from Philadelphia.

Camp Has Been Rebuilt.

The camp at Fort Meade has been practically rebuilt. Mess halls are all new and modern. Concrete tent floors have replaced wooden ones. Boys will live six in a tent, grouped into platoons under an officer and regular Army enlisted insrtuctor.

A number of attractive prizes have been donated for proficiency in various lines of camp activity. Gold, silver and bronze medals, donated by the National Training Camps Association, will be presented to students adjudged the best in each course, Basic, Red, White and Blue.

The outstanding trainee of camp will receive a gold medal offered by Veterans of Foreign Wars and known as the Commander in Chief's Medal. Winner of this award will also have his name engraved upon a plaque which hangs in the office of the national headquarters of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

A Louisville slugger bat and a baseball, autographed by "Babe" Ruth, will be presented to the trainee adjudged the best athlete in camp. Winners of various awards will be adjudged near the close of the camp by a board of officers selected from the camp personnel

Driver Fined and Given 30 Days on Rum Charge

Warren Wempsey, 32 years old, of Vienna, Va., was found guilty of a driving while drunk charge at a hearing before Mayor L. P. Daniel's court of Falls Church yesterday. He was fined $200 and costs and 30 days in jail. An appeal was noted to the Fairfax County Circuit Court. He was released on a bond of $750.

According to evidence introduced at the hearing, the charge was preferred May 21, when he was arrested by Town Sergt. Walter Mitchell, of Falls Church. Mitchell was called to Great Falls street, in Falls Church, when someone reported that two girls were being molested by two men. Mitchell said that Dempsey was one of them, and that he resisted arrest when he was caught by the officer. For resisting the arrest, Dempsey was fined an additional $20. An assault charge was not pressed.

"THIS program, ladies and gentlemen, is coming to you by courtesy of the Milliken Cigarette Co., makers of good old-fashioned cigarettes, made from nothing but good old-fashioned tobacco, treated and picked in the good old-fashioned way. It is not scientifically dried, sweetened or assorted. The tobacco used is just run-of-the-mill tobacco. There is considerable dust in it, of course. As far as we know, there is nothing in this cigarette that will improve your complexion, keep you kissable, give you more poise or elevate you socially, morally or physically. It's just a good cigarette, and you'll like it."

"Members of the radio audience, this splendid band concert has been coming to you under the auspices of the Whiffleby Motors Corporation. Their new line is about the same as the last year's models. All the company cares to say is that it makes a very reliable car at a reasonable price. It will not mention the car again during this program."

"Ladies and gentlemen of the radio audience, you are about to hear the regular Tuesday evening program of the Kokismo Oil Co. The company feels the program is of such merit and appeal that this fact alone will win friends for the oil company and that any further mention of the company's name will be superfluous."

• • • •

"FRIENDS, you have been listening to a philharmonic concert presented by Scrubbem Brothers Tooth Paste. Scrubbem Brothers tooth paste is made from an old-fashioned formula that has given satisfaction for many years. All we claim for it is that it will clean the teeth, no matter whether you brush from left to right or from north to south. Thank you, and maybe we've said too much."

"I am sure, ladies and gentlemen, that you are enjoying this splendid series of dramatic recitals given by the Cuban Commander Cigar Co. The Cuban Commander is a very good cigar for the money, but it will not lighten your business responsibilities, blot out your home cares or make you a man of obvious distinction in any company. We are giving this program three nights a week, but we intend to mention the cigar on only one evening. We have a feeling this will make a big hit with the unseen audience."

INSTABILITY.

OH, there were days and weeks and months,
And changing seasons, too,
When I'd have given all the world
For just a glimpse of you,
And yesterday your face shone thru
Amid the Broadway rush;
I can not say "my heart stood still"—
I've got another crush.

PROSECUTOR HEARS BEALLE SIDE OF ROW

Former Editor of Montgomery Independent Confers With Prescott.

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post, 9103 Conn. Ave., North Chevy Chase, Md. Telephone Wisconsin 4205.

Morris A. Bealle, former editor of the Montgomery Independent, and his attorney, Fred A. Maltby, of Washington, were closeted with State's Attorney Stedman Prescott, of Montgomery County in the latter's office for more than an hour yesterday. They declined to make public the purpose of their visit, but Saturday night they had declared that they intended visiting the State's attorney in an effort to force Harold C. Smith, Rockville attorney, to produce books and papers of the Independent Publishing Co. and 284 shares of stock which they claim belong to the company.

Mr. Smith ordered them from his office Saturday night when they attended a meeting he had called of the board of directors of the Independent Publishing Co., of which he claims to be president. Mr. Bealle claims that Mr. Smith has been deposed as president and that he is the president as well as treasurer of the corporation. Mr. Maltby is secretary, they assert.

The 284 shares are stock in the Montgomery Printing & Publishing Co. and are alleged to be the balance of the purchase price agreed upon by that company in purchasing the Independent, which is a weekly devoted to attacking the county administration.

In the meantime Mr. Bealle is having difficulty in finding a judge to sign the order in a civil suit for injunction he has filed naming the directors of the Montgomery Printing & Publishing Co. as defendants.

Judge Robert B. Peter has disqualified himself because he is related to several of the defendants and Judge Harry D. Willard has declined to serve because Mr. Smith was his campaign manager in the recent county election. The Bealle forces expect to place their petition, which has been filed in the Circuit Court at Rockville, before Judge Hammond Urner today.

The suit asks that Mr. Smith be forced to turn over the books and papers and the stock to Mr. Bealle and that the members of the board of the Montgomery Publishing & Printing Co. be forced to complete the terms of their agreement to pay over the 284 shares or the sum of $2,000 in completion of the payment for the paper. It was filed by Attorneys Maltby and John S. White, the latter of Hyattsville.

The defendants, Harold C. Smith, E. Barrett Prettyman, Vivian V. Simpson, Edward Peter, John E. Oxley, Robert L. Tolson, Charles C. Jones and Dr. C. Eugene Jones, have declined to make any statement regarding the suit.

Mrs. Ruth Irene Prichard, of Varnum street near Third street northwest, was found guilty of reckless driving yesterday by Judge Charles W. Woodward in Police Court at Rockville. She was fined $15.

The charges arose from an automobile accident May 24 at Four Corners, Md., when Mrs. Prichard's car was in collision with a car operated by Miss Wilhelmina Rose, Randolph place near Thirteenth street, in which five persons were injured, three seriously, the injured persons being passengers in Miss Rose's car. Mrs. Prichard was arrested by Corpl. D. L. Snyder, of the Silver Spring substation, Montgomery County police, following the accident, and released on bond.

Those injured were Miss Agnes Sheetz, of Alexandria, Va.; Miss Charlotte David, Chapman Apartments; Audrey Hottel, O street northwest near Thirtieth street; Miss Annabelle Rogers, Belmont street near Thirteenth street, and Miss Rose.

One woman was injured yesterday when an automobile operated by John H. Hardy, Woodbine, Md., was in collision with an automobile operated by Mrs. George Hill, Willsboro, Pa., on Seventh street pike at Wheaton. Mrs. Hardy was injured about the nose, wrist and both legs. She was treated by a nearby physician.

A final decree of absolute divorce from Gerald Fitzgerald, of New York City, and formerly of Washington, yesterday was awarded to Mrs. Emma S. Fitzgerald. Bradley Hills, Md., by Judge Robert B. Peter in Rockville Circuit Court. In her petition, filed by Attorney Robert B. Peter, jr., the wife alleged desertion. The couple was married in Washington February 2, 1921, and has no children.

APARTMENT SYSTEM BLAMED FOR THEFT

Court of Appeals Reverses Decision That Exonerated Manager.

Holding that the manager of the Monmouth Apartment House had exercised less care in the control of a key for the apartment of Violet Foster, a tenant, than she had for the key to her own apartment, the Court of Appeals yesterday reversed a decision of the Municipal Court which had held that the management of the apartment was not responsible for the theft of money and jewelry from the Foster apartment.

The court observed that the manager did not permit the key to her apartment to be retained on the key board because she often kept large sums of money in her apartment. When she failed to exercise a like care for the keys of others in the building, the court decided, she was negligent.

Testimony was that the key to the Foster apartment was taken from the key board, the apartment was entered and a total of $410 in jewelry and money was taken. Later the key was found on the second floor of the building and the tenant sued for recovery of the lost articles.

The Municipal Court upheld the contention of the Fidelity Storage Co., owner of the building, that reasonable care had been exercised, and the Court of Appeals ruling means that the case will be retried with the appelate ruling bearing on the responsibility of the apartment house owners as a factor.

Man Held For Examination.

Charged with throwing milk bottles at a house, at 24 Seaton place northeast, and with tearing down a fence, John J. Whelan, 61 years old, of Lincoln road, near 8 street northeast, was sent to Gallinger Hospital yesterday by Judge Hitt. He will undergo an examination at the hospital, and a report will be made to the judge by physicians.

Jewelry Stolen From Hotel Room.

Jewelry valued at $235 was stolen over the week-end from a bureau in the Harrington Hotel, according to a report made to police yesterday by Mrs. Ralph Fahrner, a guest.
